Byron R. (Whizzer) White Named To Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former All-America halfback Byron R. (Whizzer) White has been appointed to the U.S. Supreme Court —the first team of the nation's courts.

White, deputy attorney general, was named to the court Friday night by President Kennedy.

At 44, he will become the court's youngest member if he's confirmed by the Senate for the seat to be vacated Sunday by Justice Charles E. Whittaker who is retiring on doctor's orders.

The first Senate reaction to White was favorable. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he couldn't be happier. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois described White as "one of those solid people who makes a decision and stands by it."

Kennedy called newsmen into his office to announce his selection of White—his first Supreme Court appointment.

"His varied experience in legal practice, in government, and in the Navy—in addition to his remarkable scholarly accomplishments and his service as law clerk to Chief Justice Vinson — have given him a humane and understanding approach to people and to problems," said Kennedy.

BYRON R. WHITE
To Succeed Whittaker.

"He has excelled in everything he has attempted," Kennedy said, "And I know that he will excel on the highest court in the land."

White has had no experience on the bench, but Kennedy said the bar association has rated White "as 'exceptionally well qualified' for his new responsibilities."

However, Rep. George Meader, R-Mich., a member of the House Judiciary Committee, disagreed. He said the President had delivered the court a "devastating blow by appointing a totally unqualified political minion to a post regarded by every lawyer and every citizen as the acme of legal attainment."

White got word of his appointment by telephone while attending a social science foundation meeting at the University of Denver.

He said, "I'm very, very honored. I'm very happy the President has the confidence in me to nominate me and I'll try to justify his confidence. It's a very large undertaking."

The appointment was the latest of many honors for White.

He was graduated as valedictorian of the 1938 class at the Uni-

Guido Begins Task Of Picking Cabinet To Deal With Crisis

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's anti-Peronist political parties showed signs today of rallying to the new president, Jose Maria Guido. But the shadow of military rule hovered over the nation.

The diminutive 51-year-old former Senate president set about to assemble a Cabinet to deal with the confusion created by the military's ouster of President Arturo Frondizi. In this, Guido is expected initially to get support from almost all political parties. But he faced formidable opposition ahead, both at home and abroad.

Angry and possibly violent opposition was expected from the followers of exiled dictator Juan D. Peron, who drew more than 2.5-million votes—35 per cent of the total—in the March 18 elections that touched off the crisis and from the powerful confederation of labor, with more than 3-million members.

The military wants Guido—they apparently consider him under their thumb—to once again drive the Peronists underground and sharply curtail the powerful labor unions, largely Peronist. It is up to Congress to make the decision.

The military showed signs of splintering. The War Ministry announced that five top generals who had opposed the coup here asked for retirement.

Guido also faced a knotty problem of winning diplomatic recognition for his regime. No foreign diplomats attended Friday's ceremony in which Guido glumly took the oath of office publicly under the eyes of the nation's military bosses.

Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt announced a policy of "belligerent repudiation" of the coup and withdrew the entire Venezuelan diplomatic mission from Buenos Aires.

In Washington, State Department press officer Lincoln White said the United States would consult with its "friends in this hemisphere" before deciding on its policy.

Guido's biggest encouragement came from indications that he might be able to weld the two major parties into some kind of coalition. Together they control Congress, whether or not the Peronists are allowed to take office.

AT STEEL PACT PARLEY. The USW's 134-member Executive Board today approved a new two-year contract for the steel industry at Pittsburgh. Full Terms Of Contract Are Awaited

No Wage Increase, But 10-Cent Hike In Fringe Benefits Due

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Steelworkers Union executive board today approved a new two-year contract agreement for the steel industry.

President David J. McDonald of the union was enthusiastically cheered as he left the executive board session for a larger meeting of the union's wage policy committee.

The meetings were closed sessions but it was reliably reported in advance that the agreement calls for a two-year contract providing 10 cents an hour worth of additional fringe benefits but no immediate pay increase. Wage rates would be subject to renegotiation after the first year.

Announcement of the full contract terms was expected following the wage policy committee meeting.

A union source disclosed that the finishing touches were put on the proposals early this morning.

Chief executives of the major steel firms are believed to have approved the pact beforehand. They held a secret meeting here Friday night.

Contract details were to be announced about midday after meetings of the United Steelworkers Union's Executive Board and Wage-Policy Committee. It was reliably reported the agreement fell within the guides for wage-price stability laid down by President Kennedy.

The agreement was reported to call for around 10 cents an hour in additional pension, vacation and work guarantee benefits but no pay increase in the first year. Pay rates could be renegotiated later for the contract's second year.

Coming a full three months ahead of the June 30 expiration of present contracts, they met the administration's expressed wish

U.S., Soviet Seek Formula On Arms Talk

Take Differences To Sidelines At Geneva Conference

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. and Soviet diplomats took their differences to the sidelines of the 17-nation disarmament conference today to try to find a formula for getting started on detailed disarmament negotiations.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin put forward the Soviet draft treaty Friday and proposed the conference discuss it virtually line by line.

He ran into immediate opposition from U.S. Chief Delegate Arthur H. Dean, who contended that the conference's first task was to reach understanding on fundamental disarmament issues before plunging ahead with work on a full treaty.

The foreign ministers, in three weeks of clamorous arguments on the broad principles dividing East and West, failed to narrow their differences. They left the conference earlier this week in deadlock.

At the prompting of delegates from India and Brazil, Dean and Zorin, in their roles as conference cochairmen, agreed to meet to try to find a way to keep the conference moving.

The two chairmen met briefly later but reportedly made no progress. Another meeting is scheduled for Sunday. They are expected to report back to the other delegates Monday.

So far, the American side has put forward specific disarmament proposals but has not come up with a full draft treaty.

Rescue teams were combing the debris for more victims. Names of the victims were not yet available.

They include the armed robbery case of James Booher of Poland, two more non-support cases, Oliver Joseph Martin of Salem and George Samuel Bourne of California, and three traffic manslaughter cases.

The Grand Jury will be seated Tuesday morning and will be sworn in by Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp, who will handle criminal trials this term.

4 U.S. Atomic Facilities To Be Inspected

WASHINKGTON (AP) — International inspectors will arrive soon at our U.S. atomic plants for what a U.S. spokesman calls a dry run to prove international inspection will work.

The four peaceful-use reactors opened to the international sleuths for the first time are the graphite research and medical research reactors at the Brookhaven National Laboratory, N.Y.; the experimental boiling water reactor at Argonne National Laboratory, Ill., and the organic cooled and moderated power reactor at Piqua, Ohio.

The inspectors for the International Atomic Energy Agency will come to this country under an agreement signed Friday by the United States and the agency.

The technical aim is to prove that the atomic facilities are not being used for military purposes, to train the inspectors and to work out any kinks in the inspection system that might be uncovered.

There is also a political goal from the U.S. point of view: To knock a hole in Soviet claims—advanced at the Geneva conference and elsewhere—that the inspections the West says are needed for arms-cut accords are unworkable and are really designed only for espionage.

Assistant Secretary of State Harlan Cleveland, in signing the agreement for the United States, called it "a dry run to find the bugs in the system, to prove that it is possible technically, politically, administratively."

Another U.S. authority added that the inspectors would be limited to the four designated facilities—among the hundreds of nuclear installations scattered through the United States—and not be allowed to "shop around" elsewhere.

Under the agreement, which runs from one to two years starting June 1, 12 inspections a year will be permitted at the Brookhaven graphite research reactor, two at the Brookhaven medical research reactor, four at the Argonne plant and two at Piqua.

The agency has yet to appoint its inspectors. Russians could be on the inspection team.

Sleet, Snow And Rain Mark End Of March

March — the month of mixed weather—maintained its reputation as it ended today with sleet, snow and rain and a forecast of more of the same through the weekend.

There was brief sleet this morning, followed by a short fall of big and damp snowflakes, then more rain with the possibility it will continue the remainder of the day.

The Stratton Dam said the precipitation totaled 1.14 inches, with 0.65 Friday and 0.49 during the night.

The mercury may not exceed 40 today and tonight's low will be 31 to 37. If it nears the freezing mark, then the rain will be mixed with more snow but it may end early tonight. Light rain or snow is forecast for Sunday by afternoon or evening.

Kennedy Due Senate's Aid On UN Bonds

His Willingness To Compromise Seen Reason For Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's willingness to compromise appears likely to win him Senate support for a plan to provide the United Nations with up to $100 million in U.S. funds.

Although the final details remained to be wrapped up, Kennedy was reported ready to approve a compromise by which Congress would authorize up to $100 million in loans to the United Nations—to be negotiated at interest rates and at time ranges set by the President.

This represents an amalgamation of administration proposals with substitutes offered by Senate Republicans. Many believe it will get top-heavy Senate approval. The Senate is scheduled to begin debate on it Monday.

Kennedy originally asked for authority to purchase $100 million in 25-year, 2 per cent interest U.N. bonds as financial assistance for U.N. operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee defeated 8 to 7 a substitute proposal by Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and George D. Aiken, R-Vt., for a three-year loan to the United Nations at prevailing rates, about 3.5 per cent.

The committee then approved a proposal for the outright purchase of $25 million in U.N. bonds, with the provision the United States would make additional purchases up to $100 million by matching other nations' subscriptions.

Although the administration reportedly had rounded up a majority of Senate votes for this proposal, Kennedy was represented

DRIVE TO STAY ALIVE

LISBON — An 8-year-old village boy was killed when struck by a car on Route 45 just two-tenths a mile north of the Lisbon limits Friday afternoon at 4:15.

Michael Wayne Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cannon, 336 N. Market St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Salem City Hospital of multiple injuries suffered in the mishap.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said the youth ran into the path of a car driven by Sherman Wherry, 43, of Lisbon R. D. 5.

Officers said the boy and his brother, Gilbert Cannon Jr., 9, had been selling magazines to residents in the area.

They were walking along the west side of the highway when Michael ran across the highway and into the path of the Wherry vehicle. Officers said he almost made it across as he was hit by the right front fender.

The youth suffered head injuries, internal injuries and multiple fractures, officers said.

The patrol said another motorist following the Wherry car witnessed the accident.

This is the 11th traffic fatality in Columbiana County this year, compared to four for the same period in 1961.

Born at Salem, Nov. 30, 1953, he spent his lifetime in Lisbon and was a second grade student at Lincoln School.

Surviving besides his parents are two sisters, Jayne Luann and Connie Marie Cannon and another brother, Darrel Allen Connon, all of the home; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Tullis of Lisbon and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow of Lisbon.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the Eells-Leggett Funeral Home by the Rev. Paul T. Gerrard, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Lisbon Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

19 Are Hurt In California, Texas Blasts

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—Explosions rocked a half-finished missile frigate in San Pedro and a rocket engine plant in Marshall, Tex., Friday, injuring 19 persons.

A natural gas leak was blamed for a blast aboard the USS England, a $50 million frigate that will fire Terrier missiles. Nine men were hurt, three seriously.

Three explosions in a building at the Longhorn Ordnance Plant in Marshall injured 10 persons, none seriously. The Thiokol Chemical Corp., which makes rocket engines at the plant, did not disclose the cause but said there would be no production delays.

The plant is working on the Nike-Hercules and Bull Pup missiles, and is expected to begin work soon on the Pershing.

John C. Gerard, a Los Angeles fire department inspector, said natural gas was being used as fuel for cutting torches aboard the England, and a pocket of escaping gas had accumulated near the steering-engine room at the stern of the ship. A witness said the explosion sent debris 100 feet into the air.

The Navy, scheduled to take delivery of the vessel about the middle of next year, said structural damage was minor.

The England, launched March 6, is 533 feet long, will displace about 7,000 tons and will have a speed of about 30 knots.

It is named for Ens. Charles E. England, who was killed in action at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

No Wage Increase, But 10-Cent Hike In Fringe Benefits Due

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Steelworkers Union executive board today approved a new two-year contract agreement for the steel industry.

President David J. McDonald of the union was enthusiastically cheered as he left the executive board session for a larger meeting of the union's wage policy committee.

The meetings were closed sessions but it was reliably reported in advance that the agreement calls for a two-year contract providing 10 cents an hour worth of additional fringe benefits but no immediate pay increase. Wage rates would be subject to renegotiation after the first year.

Announcement of the full contract terms was expected following the wage policy committee meeting.

U.S., Soviet Seek Formula On Arms Talk

Take Differences To Sidelines At Geneva Conference

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. and Soviet diplomats took their differences to the sidelines of the 17-nation disarmament conference today to try to find a formula for getting started on detailed disarmament negotiations.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin put forward the Soviet draft treaty Friday and proposed the conference discuss it virtually line by line.

He ran into immediate opposition from U.S. Chief Delegate Arthur H. Dean, who contended that the conference's first task was to reach understanding on fundamental disarmament issues before plunging ahead with work on a full treaty.

At the prompting of delegates from India and Brazil, Dean and Zorin, in their roles as conference cochairmen, agreed to meet to try to find a way to keep the conference moving.

The two chairmen met briefly later but reportedly made no progress. Another meeting is scheduled for Sunday. They are expected to report back to the other delegates Monday.

So far, the American side has put forward specific disarmament proposals but has not come up with a full draft treaty.

4 U.S. Atomic Facilities To Be Inspected

WASHINKGTON (AP) — International inspectors will arrive soon at our U.S. atomic plants for what a U.S. spokesman calls a dry run to prove international inspection will work.

The four peaceful-use reactors opened to the international sleuths for the first time are the graphite research and medical research reactors at the Brookhaven National Laboratory, N.Y.; the experimental boiling water reactor at Argonne National Laboratory, Ill., and the organic cooled and moderated power reactor at Piqua, Ohio.

The inspectors for the International Atomic Energy Agency will come to this country under an agreement signed Friday by the United States and the agency.

The technical aim is to prove that the atomic facilities are not being used for military purposes, to train the inspectors and to work out any kinks in the inspection system that might be uncovered.

There is also a political goal from the U.S. point of view: To knock a hole in Soviet claims—advanced at the Geneva conference and elsewhere—that the inspections the West says are needed for arms-cut accords are unworkable and are really designed only for espionage.

Assistant Secretary of State Harlan Cleveland, in signing the agreement for the United States, called it "a dry run to find the bugs in the system, to prove that it is possible technically, politically, administratively."

Another U.S. authority added that the inspectors would be limited to the four designated facilities—among the hundreds of nuclear installations scattered through the United States—and not be allowed to "shop around" elsewhere.

Under the agreement, which runs from one to two years starting June 1, 12 inspections a year will be permitted at the Brookhaven graphite research reactor, two at the Brookhaven medical research reactor, four at the Argonne plant and two at Piqua.

The agency has yet to appoint its inspectors. Russians could be on the inspection team.

The mercury may not exceed 40 today and tonight's low will be 31 to 37. If it nears the freezing mark, then the rain will be mixed with more snow but it may end early tonight. Light rain or snow is forecast for Sunday by afternoon or evening.

Kennedy Due Senate's Aid On UN Bonds

His Willingness To Compromise Seen Reason For Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's willingness to compromise appears likely to win him Senate support for a plan to provide the United Nations with up to $100 million in U.S. funds.

Although the final details remained to be wrapped up, Kennedy was reported ready to approve a compromise by which Congress would authorize up to $100 million in loans to the United Nations—to be negotiated at interest rates and at time ranges set by the President.

This represents an amalgamation of administration proposals with substitutes offered by Senate Republicans. Many believe it will get top-heavy Senate approval. The Senate is scheduled to begin debate on it Monday.

Kennedy originally asked for authority to purchase $100 million in 25-year, 2 per cent interest U.N. bonds as financial assistance for U.N. operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee defeated 8 to 7 a substitute proposal by Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and George D. Aiken, R-Vt., for a three-year loan to the United Nations at prevailing rates, about 3.5 per cent.

The committee then approved a proposal for the outright purchase of $25 million in U.N. bonds, with the provision the United States would make additional purchases up to $100 million by matching other nations' subscriptions.

Although the administration reportedly had rounded up a majority of Senate votes for this proposal, Kennedy was represented

DRIVE TO STAY ALIVE

LISBON — An 8-year-old village boy was killed when struck by a car on Route 45 just two-tenths a mile north of the Lisbon limits Friday afternoon at 4:15.

Michael Wayne Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cannon, 336 N. Market St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Salem City Hospital of multiple injuries suffered in the mishap.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said the youth ran into the path of a car driven by Sherman Wherry, 43, of Lisbon R. D. 5.

Officers said the boy and his brother, Gilbert Cannon Jr., 9, had been selling magazines to residents in the area.

They were walking along the west side of the highway when Michael ran across the highway and into the path of the Wherry vehicle. Officers said he almost made it across as he was hit by the right front fender.

The youth suffered head injuries, internal injuries and multiple fractures, officers said.

The patrol said another motorist following the Wherry car witnessed the accident.

This is the 11th traffic fatality in Columbiana County this year, compared to four for the same period in 1961.

Born at Salem, Nov. 30, 1953, he spent his lifetime in Lisbon and was a second grade student at Lincoln School.

Surviving besides his parents are two sisters, Jayne Luann and Connie Marie Cannon and another brother, Darrel Allen Connon, all of the home; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Tullis of Lisbon and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow of Lisbon.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the Eells-Leggett Funeral Home by the Rev. Paul T. Gerrard, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Lisbon Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

19 Are Hurt In California, Texas Blasts

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—Explosions rocked a half-finished missile frigate in San Pedro and a rocket engine plant in Marshall, Tex., Friday, injuring 19 persons.

A natural gas leak was blamed for a blast aboard the USS England, a $50 million frigate that will fire Terrier missiles. Nine men were hurt, three seriously.

Three explosions in a building at the Longhorn Ordnance Plant in Marshall injured 10 persons, none seriously. The Thiokol Chemical Corp., which makes rocket engines at the plant, did not disclose the cause but said there would be no production delays.

The plant is working on the Nike-Hercules and Bull Pup missiles, and is expected to begin work soon on the Pershing.

John C. Gerard, a Los Angeles fire department inspector, said natural gas was being used as fuel for cutting torches aboard the England, and a pocket of escaping gas had accumulated near the steering-engine room at the stern of the ship. A witness said the explosion sent debris 100 feet into the air.

The Navy, scheduled to take delivery of the vessel about the middle of next year, said structural damage was minor.

The England, launched March 6, is 533 feet long, will displace about 7,000 tons and will have a speed of about 30 knots.

It is named for Ens. Charles E. England, who was killed in action at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

First Windjammer In 30 Years Launched

SOUTH BRISTOL, Maine (AP) — For a century or more, Maine's coastal villages received and shipped their freight in bluff-bowed, two masted schooners called "coasters."

But with the advent of the macadam road and trucks, the white sails of the coasting schooners disappeared from the "down east" harbors.

A mere handful have survived. They carry vacationers, rather than goods and chattels. And they're so old their cruising, for safety's sake, is confined to sheltered waters such as Penobscot Bay.

But windjammer cruises still are popular with city people. So Capt. Havilah Hawkins of Sedgwick had a new one built — the first to be launched in 30 years.

Harvey Gamage built the 83-foot "Mary Day" at his South Bristol yard. Mrs. Hawkins christened the stubby little hull, and it slipped down the ways in a snowstorm.

Man, 72, Born In Same Cabin As Abe Lincoln

HODGENVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ivy Davenport, 72, was born in the same log cabin as Abraham Lincoln, the last person to be born there.

The cabin, now enclosed as a memorial, is located at Hodgenville, just south of Louisville.

"Lincoln and I had some things in common," Davenport says. "Besides being born of poor parents, we lost our mothers at about 10½ years of age and we both had little formal education."

But there, he says, the similarity ends.

"I'm just an ordinary country boy and I've lived just an ordinary life," he says. "Abe studied, while fellows like me played."

Davenport is a maintenance man at Hodgenville Elementary School and has spent most of his life in the area.

His parents lived in the Lincoln cabin 19 years and left when Davenport was 5 years old. He still remembers corn-shuck mattresses, meals prepared over an open fireplace, beds fitted into the wall by pegs and cramped conditions of the 16-by-18 foot cabin.

Indiana Team Falters After Great ABC Start

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—For a few fleeting moments Friday night the Hal Libers Bowling Shop team from Gary, Ind., was the toast of the American Bowling Congress. Then disaster struck.

The team opened its three-game regular division series with an 1134 total, best beginning by any team in the 59-year history of the event and the 14th best game ever in the tournament.

But the Hoosiers skidded to 866 and 927 for a 2927 total, not good enough to make the top 10 standings.

There were no changes in the standings for the third straight day.

Professor Cites 'Most Important' Discovery Of '61

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Make a note of N6 - benzylamino purine. In the opinion of Dr. S. H. Whitwer, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University, N6-benzylamino purine probably was the most important discovery of 1961.

The chemical doubles the storage life of harvested vegetables, Whitwer told a science meeting at the University of Tulsa. It's tasteless and doesn't affect the nutritional qualities of food, he added. He said the federal Food and Drug Administration has given it temporary approval.

"What the chemical does is inhibit respiration of the plant—slow up its breathing," he said. "That's all—and it works.

"No matter what the temperature of storage, such products as lettuce, celery, cabbage and broccoli keep their freshness twice as long," he said. "If a head of lettuce normally keeps fresh three days in a refrigerator, then it will last nearly a week if it has been treated."

He said an East Berlin scientist discovered the food-preserving qualities of N6 - benzylamino purine about six months ago.

Mechanics Pact Talk To Continue

City automobile mechanics and operators of auto agencies and repair shops failed to reach an agreement on a new contract at the fifth meeting in a series of negotiations Thursday night in the Travelers Hotel.

Another meeting is scheduled April 9 at 7:30 in the hotel, with a federal mediator from the Cleveland area to attend again.

The mechanics are members of Ceramic City Auto Mechanics Lodge 1019 of the International Association of Machinists, who are negotiating for a new contract with the East Liverpool Dealers Association and Repair Shops organization.

Eurshel T. Powell of Litten's, president, said the mechanics will meet soon to discuss the situation. Harry Y. George, also of Litten's, is secretary - treasurer of the dealers' association.

The mechanics have continued at work without a contract since the old agreement expired March 23.

Insurance Man Retires

Thirty - five associates and retired employes attended a farewell dinner Friday night at Piatt's Tearoom in Wellsville for Roy W. McVay of Lisbon St. Ext., who has retired after 32½ years as an agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

McVay was the central figure in a "This Is Your Life" program presented by Metropolitan employes from the East Liverpool district.

McVay, right, receives a gift of binoculars from Leo C. Lawrence on behalf of the agency's staff. He was presented his retirement certificate by William Kent, office manager.

The program included selections by an "old-timer's quartet," John Hiscox, Richard Milner, Robert Miller and Robert Murray. A skit depicting McVay's first day with the company in 1929 was presented by Keith Dunlevy and Roger Cline.

McVay has been agent for the St. Clair Ave.-Maplewood sections of the city during his career with Metropolitan.

Following the farewell dinner, McVay was presented a tape recording and movie film of the proceedings.

Miss Catherine Franzetta, office supervisor, offered brief comments on McVay's career, and Miller commented as the newest agent in the East Liverpool district.

Guests included John Diemer and Grant Smith of Wellsville, John Ruhe of East Liverpool and Miss Pearl Welsh, all retired Metropolitan employes. Miss Welsh was agency nurse for 20 years.

McVay plans to travel during his retirement and will make his first trip to visit a daughter in Portland, Ore., and later take in the World's Fair in Seattle.

First Windjammer In 30 Years Launched

SOUTH BRISTOL, Maine (AP) — For a century or more, Maine's coastal villages received and shipped their freight in bluff-bowed, two masted schooners called "coasters."

But with the advent of the macadam road and trucks, the white sails of the coasting schooners disappeared from the "down east" harbors.

A mere handful have survived. They carry vacationers, rather than goods and chattels. And they're so old their cruising, for safety's sake, is confined to sheltered waters such as Penobscot Bay.

But windjammer cruises still are popular with city people. So Capt. Havilah Hawkins of Sedgwick had a new one built — the first to be launched in 30 years.

Harvey Gamage built the 83-foot "Mary Day" at his South Bristol yard. Mrs. Hawkins christened the stubby little hull, and it slipped down the ways in a snowstorm.

Man, 72, Born In Same Cabin As Abe Lincoln

HODGENVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ivy Davenport, 72, was born in the same log cabin as Abraham Lincoln, the last person to be born there.

The cabin, now enclosed as a memorial, is located at Hodgenville, just south of Louisville.

"Lincoln and I had some things in common," Davenport says. "Besides being born of poor parents, we lost our mothers at about 10½ years of age and we both had little formal education."

But there, he says, the similarity ends.

"I'm just an ordinary country boy and I've lived just an ordinary life," he says. "Abe studied, while fellows like me played."

Davenport is a maintenance man at Hodgenville Elementary School and has spent most of his life in the area.

His parents lived in the Lincoln cabin 19 years and left when Davenport was 5 years old. He still remembers corn-shuck mattresses, meals prepared over an open fireplace, beds fitted into the wall by pegs and cramped conditions of the 16-by-18 foot cabin.

Indiana Team Falters After Great ABC Start

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—For a few fleeting moments Friday night the Hal Libers Bowling Shop team from Gary, Ind., was the toast of the American Bowling Congress. Then disaster struck.

The team opened its three-game regular division series with an 1134 total, best beginning by any team in the 59-year history of the event and the 14th best game ever in the tournament.

But the Hoosiers skidded to 866 and 927 for a 2927 total, not good enough to make the top 10 standings.

There were no changes in the standings for the third straight day.

Professor Cites 'Most Important' Discovery Of '61

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Make a note of N6 - benzylamino purine. In the opinion of Dr. S. H. Whitwer, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University, N6-benzylamino purine probably was the most important discovery of 1961.

The chemical doubles the storage life of harvested vegetables, Whitwer told a science meeting at the University of Tulsa. It's tasteless and doesn't affect the nutritional qualities of food, he added. He said the federal Food and Drug Administration has given it temporary approval.

"What the chemical does is inhibit respiration of the plant—slow up its breathing," he said. "That's all—and it works.

"No matter what the temperature of storage, such products as lettuce, celery, cabbage and broccoli keep their freshness twice as long," he said. "If a head of lettuce normally keeps fresh three days in a refrigerator, then it will last nearly a week if it has been treated."

He said an East Berlin scientist discovered the food-preserving qualities of N6 - benzylamino purine about six months ago.

Mechanics Pact Talk To Continue

City automobile mechanics and operators of auto agencies and repair shops failed to reach an agreement on a new contract at the fifth meeting in a series of negotiations Thursday night in the Travelers Hotel.

Another meeting is scheduled April 9 at 7:30 in the hotel, with a federal mediator from the Cleveland area to attend again.

The mechanics are members of Ceramic City Auto Mechanics Lodge 1019 of the International Association of Machinists, who are negotiating for a new contract with the East Liverpool Dealers Association and Repair Shops organization.

Eurshel T. Powell of Litten's, president, said the mechanics will meet soon to discuss the situation. Harry Y. George, also of Litten's, is secretary - treasurer of the dealers' association.

The mechanics have continued at work without a contract since the old agreement expired March 23.

William, 11, suffered a chest wound. Keith, 8, was shot in the left arm and shoulder. Another daughter, Marcy, 3, suffered bruises.

Mrs. Parkis was charged with second-degree murder and was taken to a mental hospital.

'More Gaullest Than DeGaulle'

His friends pay this tribute to Christian Fouchet, the Frenchmen who will exercise French sovereignty in Algeria during the transitional period leading to independent:

"He is more Gaullist than De Gaulle."

This conveys clear meaning. It means Fouchet does his duty as he sees it; that he stands up for his beliefs and makes sure his beliefs are well-known.

It means he will not slant his convictions or modify his behavior to make himself popular.

It means he qualifies himself for the title of leader by doing what his ramrod preceptor has been doing as the modern savior of France; he has been leading. Instead of waiting to see which way the mob is running so he can run ahead of it, he takes his position and asks the mob to stand by him.

Fouchet is important at this time. Someone like him will have to be found when President De Gaulle leaves a vacuum in French leadership.

There is a new fashion in politicians—the Gaullist fashion. Its disciples do not seek popularity. They do not try to make themselves loved. They do what they believe to be right and gamble on the possibility they will be upheld. If they aren't they have lost nothing but their political positions. They have not lost their honor.

"He is more Gaullist than De Gaulle." The time may be coming when to describe a politician as a Gaullist may be to pay the supreme tribute to the strength of his character.

Time For Review

While the manner in which the presentation was made can be questioned, Councilman Frank Duffy's request for economies in the operation of the municipal government could have a beneficial result in the long run.

This should not be construed in any way as an all-out endorsement of the job eliminations Mr. Duffy suggested, but it is a suggestion that a review of the payroll is in order. If such a review should indicate that some jobs could be eliminated without impairing the over-all operation, proper action should be considered.

In view of the city's financial condition, no stone should be left unturned to hold down expenses. It doesn't hurt to have someone rock the boat now and then if the "rocking" follows the procedure established by municipal law.

Ready To Foreclose

It Wasn't Always Like This

On the Atlantic Gold Coast they're getting ready for the spring vacation crowd from high school and colleges.

Extra cots are being moved into the jails. Policemen are rehearsing herdsmen tactics in the event mobs of "students" try to take over their towns.

Beer salesmen are writing extra orders for the favorite beverage of the college set. Beach costume lines are booming — the scantier the better.

This is the proverbial last fling of the college set in the eastern part of the nation. When it's over, everybody settles down to educational routine again until school lets out in June. But for Easter vacation it's beaches, beer and singing under the stars. The boys go where the girls are and vice versa.

Some towns put out "Welcome" signs for the student vacationists, some let it be known in advance they will throw them in the pokey. Their presence and patronage are not unmixed blessings, because the "students," many of them of high school age and many of them drop-outs from years long past, are capable of doing more damage than ever can be recovered by overcharging them.

It's a phenomenon of our times, one more thing to baffle those who frankly confess our times cannot be fathomed. Spring vacation . . .

It used to be the time when a student tried to nail down a temporary job to pick up a little walking-around money; when a comatose darling stayed in bed 16 hours a day under the home roof; when the studious asked special permission to use the college library for special work; when the penurious saved board by cooking on the premises — a hiatus between winter and summer on the campus, not a Bacchanalia on the Gold Coast.

In seven blunt words, "Where do the kids get the money?"

A Place For Everybody

After reading an "open letter to the college graduates of 1962" by Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, we wished we had lost it in the shuffle.

After congratulating the graduates and declaring they are setting a numerical record this year, Secretary Goldberg goes into a spiel that gives us the willies.

He tells where all the juiciest plums are to be found — engineering, accounting, mathematics, teaching, medicine, chemistry, physics, biology, statistics, business administration, restaurant management, geophysics, library work, geology, forestry, political science, veterinary medicine and law.

But even in these particularized places only the best qualified graduates can hope to latch on to fruitful employment. There will be no place for also-rans even in the specialties. It is no longer enough just to attend a trade school with a view to turning education into ready cash. It is necessary to finish at the head of the class.

What distresses us is a wisecrack that has been rubbed into many of us senior citizens until it isn't funny any more — the one about not being smart enough to get into college if we had to try it again, let alone being smart enough to get out.

We recall that in far-off days most people went to college for an education, not for a job. When, in due course, they had been educated after a fashion they presented themselves to prospective employers as potential wage earners and frequently went on up the ladder of success until they became decision-makers.

Sometimes the big shots must shake their heads and wonder how they managed to do it with so little specialized knowledge. They must have been lucky. Either that or they were so smart they didn't have to go to trade school to get into the job groove; they just know how to get the job by instinct and what to do from then on.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

United Nations, organization for world peace, is in war over its own survival. Currently it can't even agree on whether its objectives should be booted around by members who won't pay dues and assessments.

General idea among civilized and honest people is that a fellow who hasn't paid dues for years has no right to show up at crucial meetings, throw weight around and vote on rules, regulations, programs, budgets and operations.

No other club on earth welcomes a delinquent member and gives floor to one who says, "I have never paid dues and don't intend to. So pipe down while I give you a long lecture on your proper behavior in matters of honor, dedication and location of goalposts."

Uncle Sam has been treated like Uncle SAP, and meetings have seemed to be opened with loud chanting of "Never give a sucker an even break." He has come through with millions, keeping U.N. alive by his willingness to attend all sessions with cheerful "Let us have peace at MY EXPENSE."

Soviet acts as if it didn't know U.N. was using money. Satellites, neutrals and some of our best friends not only want benefits free of charge but demand trading stamps.

Big debate will be over bond issue to keep U.N. breathing without oxygen tents.

Uncle Sam will be big buyer and talks of public shares at $100 each in a sort of "Help keep Russia supplied with monkey wrenches" or "Contribute to support of those who rough you up on a free pass" movement.

There is an article in U.N. charter which says members shall have no right to vote in General Assembly if amount of arrears equals what it owes for two years. If lived up to, Soviets would be barred from voting. But trouble is they could continue TALKING. How do you keep peace through an organization in nonstop fight with its own members, big, small and medium?

It looks like a case of too many people going in too many directions using their own traffic signals.

TOBACCO STOCKS have fallen as much as 25 points in last few months. Tough factor is that drop hasn't been a filtered "DIP."

Sir Cecil Hardwicke, says trouble with TV is that it is making acting commonplace. "If you give audience raw liquor every hour on hour can you expect it to retain taste for vintage wine?" he asks.

582,000 postal workers are to vote on union affiliation. This is first time union movement has embraced men of letters.

No strikes will be permitted, however, which is good news. Who wants to see a sign "This Mail Box Unfair?"

John G. Kemeny, Dartmouth professor, in article on college admissions, says he would favor a small quota for screwballs. To bar them means to eliminate the unorthodox student and encourage conformity, he thinks. He has something there. Some of our best citizens had early "rep" as screwballs, including Tom Edison.

National Aeronautics Board says United States won't try moon flight for six years. Okay, moon, you needn't rush up those "No Parking" signs.

GOP says that because President travels so much 58 more agents have been asked for by Secret Service. Why the squawk? Doesn't the party want to encourage an active President who has slogan "Have energy and ideas; will travel?"

Sen. Jackson says United States worries too much in U.N. about world opinion. Getting straight on world opinion these days is like trying to appraise a blue-bottle fly on a revolving floor.

GE Answers Union's Challenge

By Victor Riesel

A few weeks ago the telephone rang in the district office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Syracuse, N.Y. At the other end of the wire was an executive of the super secret Heavy Military Electronic Department of General Electric's Farrell Road plant.

Victor Riesel

The caller, speaking officially for the corporation, said the company wanted itself investigated.

A surprised FBI agent moved quickly. This GE division has tighter held secrets than the Sphinx. It helps operate vital installations across the world, including BMEWS — the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System which stretches across the Arctic.

But the secrets were not leaking. GE opened itself to the FBI because the local union newspaper, edited by John Stanley, regional International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) business agent, had charged that GE was betraying the Defense Department in particular and the American people in general!

ALWAYS SWIFT to respond to the IUE's rapier thrusts in what has become the most famous labor-management duel since Lysistrata, the GE executives moved like greased lightning on this one.

They had taken many barbs from Jim Carey's union. But now they were being charged with deliberately deceiving the Pentagon on material essential to the electronic defense front of the cold war.

Seldom has a union (Local 320) more bluntly or more seriously attacked a company. A crackling issue was created, which now is being discussed, and a battle was launched, which now is being watched carefully, by topside labor and management circles.

GE has fired John Stanley. The company has said in effect that he was disloyal. Its position is that it need not keep on its payroll anyone who hurts the corporation's integrity and ability to produce and complete, or who impugns its loyalty.

WHAT HORRIFIED the company, it says officially, is the following excerpt from the union newspaper — a quote which GE itself makes available to inquirers:

"Why All the Fuss," asked a headline in the March edition of Local 320 IUE News. "Company Insists on Bad Parts. In order that there be no mistake about it, the union is charging the company with engaging in activities which are a serious threat to the nation and to the lives of the citizens in service of their country. . . . How would you feel if your husband's, your son's, or your brother's life depended upon these parts which should not have been passed."

There was more. But you get the general tone. The union then said it would go to the government to charge that GE final inspectors had been instructed to let imperfect components go by.

On reading this, GE started its own probe. It interviewed all 69 inspectors in its supersecret plant. It called in the FBI. There was no evidence. The FBI never comments, never publicly clears anyone. There is only action if something is wrong. The bureau was satisfied. There was no action — not from any agency in Washington, including the Pentagon.

THE COMPANY wrote to Stanley on March 16. It wanted an apology. It wanted a front page story in the union newspaper stating that the probes had turned up nothing.

GE gave Stanley until the evening of March 22 to act. The firm's three-page note added that Stanley's failure to apologize would mean discharge from his job on the TV assembly line. Stanley refused. GE fired him for disloyalty.

His was more than a firing. It was a challenge. Stanley is virtually a full-time IUE business agent. He has spent about half a day a month in the plant to qualify as an employe.

But this is just the beginning.

In the last few lines of its letter, GE warned him that failure to apologize would mean more than discharge. The firm said it would move against him and the union.

That will be the next round in a national fight which could well decide just how far union officials can go in criticizing their employers.

Ozone, the gas that gives air its fresh clean smell after a thunderstorm, may help scientists make more exact weather forecasts.

No Real Solution

By David Lawrence

Steel Situation Merely Postponed

Over in England they have been calling it The Pause — a temporary restraint on wages and prices. Maybe in America the new settlement between the steel companies and the unions could be called The Standstill, but this would apply only to the halt of increases in hourly wage rates. For the steel industry is going to have to pay out approximately $100 million per year in so-called fringe benefits.

David Lawrence

Also, in less than 12 months, the steel unions will be demanding an increase in wages, as they will have the right to reopen the contract in July, 1963. Thus, while they forego a wage rise for the time being, they can insist upon it and bring about a strike, if they wish, a year from June 30 next.

Whenever a strike has been averted for the time being, however, there's a tendency to applaud. This time there already is an inclination to credit the Kennedy administration with a substantial achievement but this, unhappily, is only a way to gloss over some unpleasant facts.

The truth is that the steelworkers didn't get a wage increase this time for the same reason that the steel companies didn't dare to raise their prices after the 1959-60 strike. Politics or White House pressure wasn't the decisive factor.

The better way to describe what has just happened in the current negotiations is to say that the facts of economic life have at last caught up with the wishful thinkers. If the labor unions have learned a lesson, then real progress can be said to have been made.

The facts show that neither the steel managements nor the labor unions have as much flexibility today as they have had before.

The steel companies face some stiff competition at home from comparable products, and they face a continuing loss of markets to steelmakers abroad, who can ship, even to this country, and undersell American steel because wage costs are much lower in Europe than in America.

The public was led to believe last autumn that the steel companies didn't raise prices just because the President asked them not to do so. Mr. Kennedy himself would be the first, however, to concede that the main reason was that the steel companies couldn't keep an important part of their markets if they raised prices.

These same facts, of course, were hammered home currently to the steel union leaders, and Secretary Goldberg did play an influential part in convincing the unions that they had gone about as far as present conditions will allow.

As for price raising in the future, there indeed will be some. Little publicity will be given to the matter, and the increases will be selective — in those categories where competition isn't so keen and where specialization in product can be a helpful factor in making sales at higher prices.

THE UNFAVORABLE aspect of the whole situation, on the other hand, is on the employment side. Now that there is to be no strike, the artificial rise in steel production, resulting from the recent increase in inventories, will be ended.

Production will go down again and hours of work will also be decreased. This is a penalty that grows out of the tactics of labor unions when they constantly demand the maximum in wages and threaten strikes. In 1959 they forced a big strike, the losses from which the workers will be unable for a long time to recover in their pay envelopes.

There will be a good deal of gobbledygook heard, too, about how the new guidelines or standards of productivity have been followed in the steel settlement now being made.

The fact is that the cost of the fringe benefits will exceed current productivity gains, and the companies will for a long time be trying to absorb the 30-cents-an-hour increase — far above productivity — which was added to wage contracts during the last three years.

The administration, of course, is promising the labor leaders that it will persuade the Common Market countries in Europe to advance their wage rates and thus lessen the cost differential with American steel products. But that's a long way off.

In the meantime, the Europeans are at an advantage in at least 20 per cent of the market for steel products in this country. Eventually, the steel workers will more and more feel this pinch. That's why their leaders couldn't justify demands for further increases in wages at this time. They saw the handwriting on the wall.

HOW LONG the labor leaders will continue to be impressed by these stark facts doesn't depend on the Kennedy administration's promises but on whether these same union officials can hold their posts without winning substantial wage increases for their constituents in every new contract.

The latest steel settlement has not solved the real problem — it has merely postponed the solution for about 12 months, when everyone will take another look at the situation.

If recovery is on at full swing by that time, there will be wage increases granted. If another recession is on, there will be gloom in the labor union ranks and maybe some new leaders at the helm.

Letters To The Editor

Ladies and gentlemen of East Liverpool, may I ask you to forget all about your income tax and everything else that seems to be plaguing our fair citizens, and put your thoughts on what is going to happen to all of us if the federal government passes that particular law that wants to take a 20 per cent tax of all your earnings and savings from investments in advance.

I wonder how many Review readers noticed the page ad in the March 6 Review which was sponsored by several of our local banks and loan companies? If the readers did notice that warning ad, how many wrote to the respective congressman and senators objecting to the bill?

If this bill is passed, then look out for a tax to take half of your hard-earned wages. And along with that comes the administration wanting to weaken the Supreme Court of the United States in which the President is asking for more power.

That to me is dictatorship. If Congress ever gives any president that power, then goodbye Constitution, which then would take away our freedom of the press and worst of all our freedom to worship God in the way each individual desires to worship Him.

It seems to me that Lincoln's Proclamation regarding a government for the people, of the people and by the people has been scuttled into obscurity.

We no longer count as a majority should, but are driven by a few men mad for power. We Protestants are asleep at the switch and no longer do we protest anymore. What this country needs is a back-to-God movement, with oldtime revival fire stirring our hearts and minds to Penecost Days.

That man of sin who heads a great organization which the Bible reveals in the Book of Revelations, a worse adversary than Communism, has entered the thresh-hold of this world.

So let us pray earnestly to our Heavenly Father who knows the secrets of men's hearts and be ever alert and watchful for the things that are coming to pass.

I say "Wake Up America" as there is danger ahead.

Black Tulip?

Fame and fortune await the green-thumbed genius who produces a black tulip.

Since the 17th century, the tulip fanciers have searched for a jet-colored tulip as eagerly as medieval alchemists hunted for the fabled philosopher's stone. Growers have succeeded in developing varieties that appear black at a distance, but close inspection reveals them to be an intensely dark shade of maroon.

A Dutch tulip grower has said he would gladly pay $100,000 plus royalty for a single bulb of a truly black tulip. No one has collected, but the potential rewards are so great that frauds have been attempted. One man skillfully blackened a tulip with shoe polish. Laboratory technicians quickly detected the deception.

Some tulip fanciers believe that a lustrous black tulip may one day pop open in somebody's back yard. United States Agriculture Department specialists say they know of no reason why such a tulip cannot eventually be produced, although no fully black flower has ever been found.

'More Gaullest Than DeGaulle'

His friends pay this tribute to Christian Fouchet, the Frenchmen who will exercise French sovereignty in Algeria during the transitional period leading to independent:

"He is more Gaullist than De Gaulle."

This conveys clear meaning. It means Fouchet does his duty as he sees it; that he stands up for his beliefs and makes sure his beliefs are well-known.

It means he will not slant his convictions or modify his behavior to make himself popular.

It means he qualifies himself for the title of leader by doing what his ramrod preceptor has been doing as the modern savior of France; he has been leading. Instead of waiting to see which way the mob is running so he can run ahead of it, he takes his position and asks the mob to stand by him.

Fouchet is important at this time. Someone like him will have to be found when President De Gaulle leaves a vacuum in French leadership.

There is a new fashion in politicians—the Gaullist fashion. Its disciples do not seek popularity. They do not try to make themselves loved. They do what they believe to be right and gamble on the possibility they will be upheld. If they aren't they have lost nothing but their political positions. They have not lost their honor.

"He is more Gaullist than De Gaulle." The time may be coming when to describe a politician as a Gaullist may be to pay the supreme tribute to the strength of his character.

Time For Review

While the manner in which the presentation was made can be questioned, Councilman Frank Duffy's request for economies in the operation of the municipal government could have a beneficial result in the long run.

This should not be construed in any way as an all-out endorsement of the job eliminations Mr. Duffy suggested, but it is a suggestion that a review of the payroll is in order. If such a review should indicate that some jobs could be eliminated without impairing the over-all operation, proper action should be considered.

In view of the city's financial condition, no stone should be left unturned to hold down expenses. It doesn't hurt to have someone rock the boat now and then if the "rocking" follows the procedure established by municipal law.

It Wasn't Always Like This

On the Atlantic Gold Coast they're getting ready for the spring vacation crowd from high school and colleges.

Extra cots are being moved into the jails. Policemen are rehearsing herdsmen tactics in the event mobs of "students" try to take over their towns.

Beer salesmen are writing extra orders for the favorite beverage of the college set. Beach costume lines are booming — the scantier the better.

This is the proverbial last fling of the college set in the eastern part of the nation. When it's over, everybody settles down to educational routine again until school lets out in June. But for Easter vacation it's beaches, beer and singing under the stars. The boys go where the girls are and vice versa.

Some towns put out "Welcome" signs for the student vacationists, some let it be known in advance they will throw them in the pokey. Their presence and patronage are not unmixed blessings, because the "students," many of them of high school age and many of them drop-outs from years long past, are capable of doing more damage than ever can be recovered by overcharging them.

It's a phenomenon of our times, one more thing to baffle those who frankly confess our times cannot be fathomed. Spring vacation . . .

It used to be the time when a student fried to nail down a temporary job to pick up a little walking-around money; when a comatose darling stayed in bed 16 hours a day under the home roof; when the studious asked special permission to use the college library for special work; when the penurious saved board by cooking on the premises — a hiatus between winter and summer on the campus, not a Bacchanalia on the Gold Coast.

In seven blunt words, "Where do the kids get the money?"

A Place For Everybody

After reading an "open letter to the college graduates of 1962" by Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, we wished we had lost it in the shuffle.

After congratulating the graduates and declaring they are setting a numerical record this year, Secretary Goldberg goes into a spiel that gives us the willies.

He tells where all the juiciest plums are to be found — engineering, accounting, mathematics, teaching, medicine, chemistry, physics, biology, statistics, business administration, restaurant management, geophysics, library work, geology, forestry, political science, veterinary medicine and law.

But even in these particularized places only the best qualified graduates can hope to latch on to fruitful employment. There will be no place for also-rans even in the specialties. It is no longer enough just to attend a trade school with a view to turning education into ready cash. It is necessary to finish at the head of the class.

What distresses us is a wisecrack that has been rubbed into many of us senior citizens until it isn't funny any more — the one about not being smart enough to get into college if we had to try it again, let alone being smart enough to get out.

We recall that in far-off days most people went to college for an education, not for a job. When, in due course, they had been educated after a fashion they presented themselves to prospective employers as potential wage earners and frequently went on up the ladder of success until they became decision-makers.

Sometimes the big shots must shake their heads and wonder how they managed to do it with so little specialized knowledge. They must have been lucky. Either that or they were so smart they didn't have to go to trade school to get into the job groove; they just know how to get the job by instinct and what to do from then on.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

United Nations, organization for world peace, is in war over its own survival. Currently it can't even agree on whether its objectives should be booted around by members who won't pay dues and assessments.

General idea among civilized and honest people is that a fellow who hasn't paid dues for years has no right to show up at crucial meetings, throw weight around and vote on rules, regulations, programs, budgets and operations.

No other club on earth welcomes a delinquent member and gives floor to one who says, "I have never paid dues and don't intend to. So pipe down while I give you a long lecture on your proper behavior in matters of honor, dedication and location of goalposts."

Uncle Sam has been treated like Uncle SAP, and meetings have seemed to be opened with loud chanting of "Never give a sucker an even break." He has come through with millions, keeping U.N. alive by his willingness to attend all sessions with cheerful "Let us have peace at MY EXPENSE."

Soviet acts as if it didn't know U.N. was using money. Satellites, neutrals and some of our best friends not only want benefits free of charge but demand trading stamps.

Big debate will be over bond issue to keep U.N. breathing without oxygen tents.

Uncle Sam will be big buyer and talks of public shares at $100 each in a sort of "Help keep Russia supplied with monkey wrenches" or "Contribute to support of those who rough you up on a free pass" movement.

There is an article in U.N. charter which says members shall have no right to vote in General Assembly if amount of arrears equals what it owes for two years. If lived up to, Soviets would be barred from voting. But trouble is they could continue TALKING. How do you keep peace through an organization in nonstop fight with its own members, big, small and medium?

It looks like a case of too many people going in too many directions using their own traffic signals.

TOBACCO STOCKS have fallen as much as 25 points in last few months. Tough factor is that drop hasn't been a filtered "DIP."

Sir Cecil Hardwicke, says trouble with TV is that it is making acting commonplace. "If you give audience raw liquor every hour on hour can you expect it to retain taste for vintage wine?" he asks.

582,000 postal workers are to vote on union affiliation. This is first time union movement has embraced men of letters.

No strikes will be permitted, however, which is good news. Who wants to see a sign "This Mail Box Unfair?"

John G. Kemeny, Dartmouth professor, in article on college admissions, says he would favor a small quota for screwballs. To bar them means to eliminate the unorthodox student and encourage conformity, he thinks. He has something there. Some of our best citizens had early "rep" as screwballs, including Tom Edison.

National Aeronautics Board says United States won't try moon flight for six years. Okay, moon, you needn't rush up those "No Parking" signs.

GOP says that because President travels so much 58 more agents have been asked for by Secret Service. Why the squawk? Doesn't the party want to encourage an active President who has slogan "Have energy and ideas; will travel?"

Sen. Jackson says United States worries too much in U.N. about world opinion. Getting straight on world opinion these days is like trying to appraise a blue-bottle fly on a revolving floor.

There will be a good deal of gobbledygook heard, too, about how the new guidelines or standards of productivity have been followed in the steel settlement now being made.

The fact is that the cost of the fringe benefits will exceed current productivity gains, and the companies will for a long time be trying to absorb the 30-cents-an-hour increase — far above productivity — which was added to wage contracts during the last three years.

The administration, of course, is promising the labor leaders that it will persuade the Common Market countries in Europe to advance their wage rates and thus lessen the cost differential with American steel products. But that's a long way off.

In the meantime, the Europeans are at an advantage in at least 20 per cent of the market for steel products in this country. Eventually, the steel workers will more and more feel this pinch. That's why their leaders couldn't justify demands for further increases in wages at this time. They saw the handwriting on the wall.

HOW LONG the labor leaders will continue to be impressed by these stark facts doesn't depend on the Kennedy administration's promises but on whether these same union officials can hold their posts without winning substantial wage increases for their constituents in every new contract.

The latest steel settlement has not solved the real problem — it has merely postponed the solution for about 12 months, when everyone will take another look at the situation.

If recovery is on at full swing by that time, there will be wage increases granted. If another recession is on, there will be gloom in the labor union ranks and maybe some new leaders at the helm.

Letters To The Editor

Ladies and gentlemen of East Liverpool, may I ask you to forget all about your income tax and everything else that seems to be plaguing our fair citizens, and put your thoughts on what is going to happen to all of us if the federal government passes that particular law that wants to take a 20 per cent tax of all your earnings and savings from investments in advance.

I wonder how many Review readers noticed the page ad in the March 6 Review which was sponsored by several of our local banks and loan companies? If the readers did notice that warning ad, how many wrote to the respective congressman and senators objecting to the bill?

If this bill is passed, then look out for a tax to take half of your hard-earned wages. And along with that comes the administration wanting to weaken the Supreme Court of the United States in which the President is asking for more power.

That to me is dictatorship. If Congress ever gives any president that power, then goodbye Constitution, which then would take away our freedom of the press and worst of all our freedom to worship God in the way each individual desires to worship Him.

It seems to me that Lincoln's Proclamation regarding a government for the people, of the people and by the people has been scuttled into obscurity.

We no longer count as a majority should, but are driven by a few men mad for power. We Protestants are asleep at the switch and no longer do we protest anymore. What this country needs is a back-to-God movement, with oldtime revival fire stirring our hearts and minds to Penecost Days.

That man of sin who heads a great organization which the Bible reveals in the Book of Revelations, a worse adversary than Communism, has entered the thresh-hold of this world.

So let us pray earnestly to our Heavenly Father who knows the secrets of men's hearts and be ever alert and watchful for the things that are coming to pass.

I say "Wake Up America" as there is danger ahead.

Black Tulip?

Fame and fortune await the green-thumbed genius who produces a black tulip.

Since the 17th century, the tulip fanciers have searched for a jet-colored tulip as eagerly as medieval alchemists hunted for the fabled philosopher's stone. Growers have succeeded in developing varieties that appear black at a distance, but close inspection reveals them to be an intensely dark shade of maroon.

A Dutch tulip grower has said he would gladly pay $100,000 plus royalty for a single bulb of a truly black tulip. No one has collected, but the potential rewards are so great that frauds have been attempted. One man skillfully blackened a tulip with shoe polish. Laboratory technicians quickly detected the deception.

Some tulip fanciers believe that a lustrous black tulip may one day pop open in somebody's back yard. United States Agriculture Department specialists say they know of no reason why such a tulip cannot eventually be produced, although no fully black flower has ever been found.

'Parade' Resumes Tonight

Audience Enjoys Varied Program By Quartets

By CLARA HALL

Championship quartets, an octet and a romantic finale highlighted the 13th annual "Parade of Quartets" of the East Liverpool Chapter of SPEBSQSA Friday night at Westgate School.

Robert Blatchford, president, gave the welcome and introduced the master of ceremonies, John W. Brown of Medina, candidate for lieutenant governor, who tossed in a demonstration of the "twist."

The chorus, under the direction of Bill Brooks, sang "Cotton Pickers Ball," "Dream River" and "Down Our Way."

"The Mountaineers" of Cadiz, members of the local chapter, sang "Cruising In My Old Model T," complete with the motions. The group, dressed appropriately, is comprised of Milt Stewart, Bill Thompson, Dick Mikesell and Dick Smith.

Dean Manning, in trousers large enough to fit a quartet and carrying a giant-size yoyo, provided the comedy for the selections of "The Welcomeaires," which included "Darktown Strutters Ball" and "Georgia." The other members are Bob Blatchford, Dick Smith and Glenn Hart.

A group of "gas house kids" called "The Four Naturals" captured the hearts of the audience. The boys, not more than 16, complete with black eyes and bean blowers, did a fine job with "Freckles" and "Chattanooga Shoe Shine Boy." Residents of Cleveland, they are Tim Grant, Greg Macosko, Henry Martin and Tom Wik.

"The Hi-Fi Four," also of Cleveland, displayed real showmanship and harmony with their renditions of "Side by Side" and "The Ashmoulian Band." The three school teachers and a photographer are Dan Mihuta, David Johnson, George O'Brien and Stuart Pearson.

They coach "The Four Naturals" and the two groups formed an octet and sang "Down By the Riverside" and "Sleep Kentucky Babe."

A feminine touch opened the second-half of the show with the appearance of "The Related Four" of Chagrin Falls. The three sisters and a cousin are Lee Balaguer, Jackie Dickerson, Ruth Schneider and Sally Otis. These Sweet Adelines scored a hit with their version of "Little Curly Head."

Jim Raffle, Chuck Brooks, Dale Keddie and Bill Brooks, "The Colonials," added a new number, "Honey Bun," which was well received. Along with their all-time favorite, "Mobile," they sang "Marching Along" and "I'm Gonna Live Till I Die."

The featured quartet, "The Pittsburghers," kept a lively pace as they sang "Oh What a Pal Was Mary," "Sweet Adeline" and "Somebody Stole My Gal." They are Tom O'Malley, Tommy Palamone, Jiggs Ward and Dutch Miller.

Members of Ronnie Boston's dance classes added pantomime and dancing to the finale with the chapter chorus providing the background singing.

Robert Stoddard and Debbie Habenicht, in old-fashioned costumes, danced to the "Mandy." Susan Keeper and Brent English were the young lovers sitting under a flowered arch as the chorus sang "I Love You Truly" and "What a Wonderful Wedding That Will Be."

Participants of the wedding scene, all in Gay 90's costumes, were Janet Dunlap, Dianne Green, English and Stoddard. Charles Hartenbach of the chorus was the preacher. The group sang "Because," following which the newlyweds were wheeled from the stage in a portable "buggy."

Bob Blatchford was general chairman assisted by Jack Hile and Gerald Jividen, program; Bill Thomas, Don Schussler, Glenn Jarvis and Hartenbach, stage; Dick Smith, Glen Hart and Ed DeBee, tickets; Glenn Woods, advertising; Sam Wolfe and Gerald Watkins, afterglo; George Kemerer, stage manager; Henry Myers, production manager, and Wilbur Newman, corresponding secretary and treasurer.

The performance will be repeated tonight at 8.

White

versity of Colorado. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and won a Rhodes scholarship.

But when he joined the administration as No. 2 man in the Justice Department under the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, White was best known nationally as Whizzer White, the spectacular 190-pound halfback who led Colorado to the Cotton Bowl in 1938. He played that fall for the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

In 1939, while taking off a year to study at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar, White met the Kennedy brothers. Their father, Joseph P. Kennedy, then was ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

When he returned to the United States, White began working his way through Yale Law School by playing professional football with the Detroit Lions and won All-Pro honors his first year.

The war interrupted his football career. He was a naval intelligence officer in 1943 in the Solomons when Kennedy returned to the Pacific base after his PT boat was rammed and sunk by a Japanese destroyer.

After the war, White got his law degree, hung up his football spikes and became law clerk for the late Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson for the 1946-47 court team.

Kennedy had just been elected to Congress, and his office was right across the street from White's.

But while Kennedy chose to stay in politics, White went back to Colorado to become a corporation lawyer in Denver.

Then in 1960 when Kennedy decided to run for president, White organized the Kennedy-for-President group in Colorado that won for Kennedy 27 of the state's 42 delegates in the national Democratic convention. During the campaign he headed the national Volunteers for Kennedy.

Mild and still muscular, White was handed one of the administration's toughest trouble-shooting jobs — overseeing the federal marshals sent to Montgomery, Ala., during the racial violence that engulfed the "Freedom Riders."

If he is confirmed, White will become the fifth Democrat on the nine-man Supreme Court.

An Episcopalian, White is married to the former Marion Stearns whose father, Dr. Robert L. Stearns, was once president of the University of Colorado. They have two children, Charles, 8, and Nancy, 3.

O'Connor Gives Conflicting View On Oral Polio Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the National Foundation says there is no need for persons who have received all three shots of Salk vaccine to take the new Sabin oral polio vaccine.

The statement Friday by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, conflicted with recommendations earlier this week by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The service, in announcing that the last of three types of Sabin oral vaccine had been licensed for manufacture, said that in cases where mass immunization was required, everyone should take the new vaccine, including those who have had the Salk shots.

O'Connor said he saw no need for mass immunization programs. He expressed fear that the health service recommendations might undermine public confidence in the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk and licensed for general use in 1955.

"We feel that the publicity issued so far may not give the public what we believe is the true picture," O'Connor said at a news conference. "This may lead the public to take a course of doses of live virus at somebody's expense, we don't know whose, which we don't think warranted."

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry, head of the Public Health Service, said earlier this week that there were advantages and disadvantages to both vaccines.

He also noted that paralytic polio has been reduced more than 90 per cent since the Salk vaccine was introduced but warned that more than 65 per cent of preschool children and 70 per cent of young adults have not received the prescribed three Salk vaccine shots.

He said widespread use of both vaccines "could lead to early elimination of the disease."

Steel

for an early and noninflationary settlement.

For steel producers, faced with growing competition from steel firms abroad, the terms appeared to be the least costly of any industry labor contract in many years—one that may be absorbed without price increases.

For the union, the deal represented job security gains for workers more worried these days about retaining jobs in an industry hard-hit by unemployment than obtaining higher earnings. The workers already earn an average $3.28 an hour.

The new contract was expected to guarantee minimum weekly earnings, improved seniority and grievance settlement procedures and extended vacations for longer service employes.

The nation, as well as the companies and workers, have been spared the economic agony of another steel strike—in marked contrast to the record 116-day walkout featuring the 1959 steel negotiations.

This time negotiators—at the prodding of Kennedy and Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, former counsel for the Steelworkers Union—got off to an early start. They came to their reported successful conclusion in six weeks.

It will take a week or two to translate the general economic terms into signed contracts with the various producing companies, covering about 450,000 workers in the basic steel industry. Traditionally, the terms are applied later to about 500,000 other workers in steel fabricating, aluminum and iron ore mining industries.

Work On New School Ahead Of Schedule

HAMMONDSVILLE — Work is progressing ahead of schedule on construction of the new $1½ million Stanton Local High School on Route 213.

Supt. C. P. Henderson estimated today the J. A. Rader Construction Co. of Dover, general contractor, has completed about 65 per cent of the project.

Plastering is under way and floors have been laid in the corridors. No work has been done as yet on the auditorium.

The modernistic, campus-style school, designed by Robert F. Beatty, East Liverpool architect, is scheduled to open in September for the 1962-63 term.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — The sound of water rushing from broken plumbing brought deputies running, and they foiled an evident attempt to break out of Scioto County jail Thursday night.

OAS Seizes 50 Soldiers, Frees Them

ALGIERS (AP)—Secret army commandos overran three French army outposts near Orleansville, 100 miles west of Algiers, and captured 30 soldiers but released them after seizing their arms.

Qualified French sources said the commandos struck under cover of darkness Friday and made their escape into the surrounding mountains. The French soldiers were not harmed.

Algerian nationalist leaders are laying the groundwork for taking over the North African territory, which has been racked by bloodshed and terrorism for 7½ years.

Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda of the rebel exile regime in Tunis said independence would open a path for Algerian cooperation with France, the Arab world and all Africa.

He warned that first must come the "liquidation of the Fascist killers"—a clear reference to the underground secret army of Europeans fighting to keep Algeria French.

Ben Bella, another Algerian nationalist leader whose release from a French prison was part of the cease-fire deal with the Paris government, arrived today in Cairo for talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

A joint Algerian-French 12-man executive is running Algeria under the French high commissioner until the vote for independence is taken—and sure to be approved.

In Algiers life returned to comparative normalcy following several days of strikes and terrorist activity.

A warm Mediterranean sun appeared and the streets and sidewalks of the European quarter were again filled with auto and pedestrian traffic.

But while Kennedy chose to stay in politics, White went back to Colorado to become a corporation lawyer in Denver.

Then in 1969 when Kennedy decided to run for president, White organized the Kennedy-for-President group in Colorado that won for Kennedy 27 of the state's 42 delegates in the national Democratic convention. During the campaign he headed the national Volunteers for Kennedy.

Mild and still muscular, White was handed one of the administration's toughest trouble-shooting jobs — overseeing the federal marshals sent to Montgomery, Ala., during the racial violence that engulfed the "Freedom Riders."

If he is confirmed, White will become the fifth Democrat on the nine-man Supreme Court.

An Episcopalian, White is married to the former Marion Stearns whose father, Dr. Robert L. Stearns, was once president of the University of Colorado. They have two children, Charles, 8, and Nancy, 3.

O'Connor Gives Conflicting View On Oral Polio Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the National Foundation says there is no need for persons who have received all three shots of Salk vaccine to take the new Sabin oral polio vaccine.

The statement Friday by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, conflicted with recommendations earlier this week by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The service, in announcing that the last of three types of Sabin oral vaccine had been licensed for manufacture, said that in cases where mass immunization was required, everyone should take the new vaccine, including those who have had the Salk shots.

O'Connor said he saw no need for mass immunization programs. He expressed fear that the health service recommendations might undermine public confidence in the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk and licensed for general use in 1955.

"We feel that the publicity issued so far may not give the public what we believe is the true picture," O'Connor said at a news conference. "This may lead the public to take a course of doses of live virus at somebody's expense, we don't know whose, which we don't think warranted."

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry, head of the Public Health Service, said earlier this week that there were advantages and disadvantages to both vaccines.

He also noted that paralytic polio has been reduced more than 90 per cent since the Salk vaccine was introduced but warned that more than 65 per cent of preschool children and 70 per cent of young adults have not received the prescribed three Salk vaccine shots.

He said widespread use of both vaccines "could lead to early elimination of the disease."

Steel

for an early and noninflationary settlement.

For steel producers, faced with growing competition from steel firms abroad, the terms appeared to be the least costly of any industry labor contract in many years—one that may be absorbed without price increases.

For the union, the deal represented job security gains for workers more worried these days about retaining jobs in an industry hard-hit by unemployment than obtaining higher earnings. The workers already earn an average $3.28 an hour.

The new contract was expected to guarantee minimum weekly earnings, improved seniority and grievance settlement procedures and extended vacations for longer service employes.

The nation, as well as the companies and workers, have been spared the economic agony of another steel strike—in marked contrast to the record 116-day walkout featuring the 1959 steel negotiations.

This time negotiators—at the prodding of Kennedy and Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, former counsel for the Steelworkers Union—got off to an early start. They came to their reported successful conclusion in six weeks.

It will take a week or two to translate the general economic terms into signed contracts with the various producing companies, covering about 450,000 workers in the basic steel industry. Traditionally, the terms are applied later to about 500,000 other workers in steel fabricating, aluminum and iron ore mining industries.

Work On New School Ahead Of Schedule

HAMMONDSVILLE — Work is progressing ahead of schedule on construction of the new $1½ million Stanton Local High School on Route 213.

Supt. C. P. Henderson estimated today the J. A. Rader Construction Co. of Dover, general contractor, has completed about 65 per cent of the project.

Plastering is under way and floors have been laid in the corridors. No work has been done as yet on the auditorium.

The modernistic, campus-style school, designed by Robert F. Beatty, East Liverpool architect, is scheduled to open in September for the 1962-63 term.

Rushing Water Sound Helps Nip Jailbreak

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — The sound of water rushing from broken plumbing brought deputies running, and they foiled an evident attempt to break out of Scioto County jail Thursday night.

Sheriff Russell Burns said some one broke some old water pipes in a catwalk area. He said the prisoners all returned to their cells by the time deputies got to them and it was not determined which prisoners tried to escape.

OAS Seizes 50 Soldiers, Frees Them

ALGIERS (AP)—Secret army commandos overran three French army outposts near Orleansville, 100 miles west of Algiers, and captured 50 soldiers but released them after seizing their arms.

Qualified French sources said the commandos struck under cover of darkness Friday and made their escape into the surrounding mountains. The French soldiers were not harmed.

Algerian nationalist leaders are laying the groundwork for taking over the North African territory, which has been racked by bloodshed and terrorism for 7½ years.

Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda of the rebel exile regime in Tunis said independence would open a path for Algerian cooperation with France, the Arab world and all Africa.

He warned that first must come the "liquidation of the Fascist killers"—a clear reference to the underground secret army of Europeans fighting to keep Algeria French.

Ben Bella, another Algerian nationalist leader whose release from a French prison was part of the cease-fire deal with the Paris government, arrived today in Cairo for talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

A joint Algerian-French 12-man executive is running Algeria under the French high commissioner until the vote for independence is taken—and sure to be approved.

In Algiers life returned to comparative normalcy following several days of strikes and terrorist activity.

A warm Mediterranean sun appeared and the streets and sidewalks of the European quarter were again filled with auto and pedestrian traffic.

Firm Didn't Take 'Nyet' For Answer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Some months ago Elliott Sherwood received a circular saying a series of reference was being reserved for him, the first volume to be on Russia.

An enclosed return address card asked whether Sherwood wanted to buy the books. He wrote "nyet" on the appropriate line and mailed the card.

Someone in the publishing firm apparently didn't know "nyet" was Russian for "no." One by one Sherwood has received the reference volumes, which he has kept unopened to await developments. His correspondence from the publisher comes addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

The company apparently has sold its mailing list, because Sherwood now is receiving circulars from other companies addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I clean wrought iron?

A. Wrought iron fixtures and ornaments can be cleaned very efficiently by rubbing with a woolen rag, moistened with any thin oil, such as paraffin or kerosene.

Q. How can I make easier the job of scouring the inside of an oven that is encrusted with baking drippings?

A. After first turning off the pilot lights, place a bowl of household amonia in the oven and close the door. The fumes from the ammonia will loosen the charred drippings, making them much easier to remove.

Q. How can I strengthen some of my glassware, and make it less fragile?

A. Put your glassware into a vessel filled with slightly salted water which you allow to come slowly to a boil. The slower your boiling, the hardier your glassware.

Q. How can I keep egg yolks fresh for several days when I have no immediate use for them?

A. Place them in cold water, and keep in a dark, cool place.

Q. How can I remove some grease spots from my rugs and upholstered furniture?

A. Add enough water to a quantity of baking soda to make a paste, and then rub liberal amounts of this into the stained areas. Allow the paste to dry, then remove it with a brush or the vacuum cleaner, or the carpet sweeper. If the stain proves stubborn, you may have to repeat this operation a few times.

Q. How can some cracks in my laundry tubs be repaired?

A. By use of litharge - glycerin paste. This paste can be made by mixing enough glycerin with a quantity of litharge so that it can be applied as a plastic cement.

Q. How can I extract a stronger light from a reading lamp?

A. If you'll paint the inside of a parchment shade with a thin coat of white paint, you'll magnify the light from the lamp.

The Power Of Faith

THE EASTER STORY—I

Jesus' agony in the garden of Gethsemane provided a revealing contrast between divine strength and human weakness. "Not my will, but thine be done," he prayed. As for his followers, St. Matthew concludes his story of Jesus' betrayal with this comment: "Then the disciples all deserted him and ran away."

Homemakers Join Club For Slimming Fun

Reducing together in a club can be wonderfully invigorating—provided you get in the spirit of the thing. This promising report comes from one of the members of a newly - formed club in Lincoln, Maine. Written in February, their goal is to be a size slimmer by Easter.

Ida Jean Kain

"Everyone is enthusiastic about our new reducing club," a member writes. "The first night we met there were seven in spite of the weather — 30 degrees below. Last night we had our second meeting and nine attended.

"Three of us have lost a total of seven pounds; one member to her chagrin had gained a pound. The others weighed in at their starting weight, and resolved to do better.

"AFTER WEIGHING in, we take group calisthenics — stretch, bend, swing. It's fun and streamlining. Before we break up we have a hot beverage, served with melba toast. Nothing fattening!

"We plan to meet every Thursday evening between now and Easter, and we hope to be in far better shape by that special date.

Your leaflet, "Slimming Clubs," helped us in getting organized. Personally, I find it a lot easier to diet knowing I will have to weigh in come Thursday. The exercises are fun to do at home and my children think I'm playing with them when I'm doing setups."

Such enthusiasm is contagious, and we wager this club member is pulling more than her own weight. Apparently this is a homemakers' club. Homemakers sometimes need a change of pace.

Too much routine can lead to a rut, and ruts are deadly dulling. By the way, in one reducing club homemakers, bored with cleaning their own houses, just for a lark, decided to clean each others. They finished the cleaning refreshed and in high spirits. Gone was the tired feeling which is a common syptom of boredom.

But back to our reducing club. To stimulate interest, I would suggest that on alternate weeks measurements be recorded. Aim toward one size slimmer.

In misses' sizes there is a one and one-half inch difference from one size to the next — in the waist, bust and abdomen. And two inches in the hips.

On poundage there is a 10, 12, 14 or 16-pound difference, depending on your size range. But 10 to 16 pounds and a couple of inches off are small hurdles when you have the fun of reducing together.

THE CAMARADERIE and friendly spirit of rivalry can add unexpected zest. Keep the spirit of rivalry bubbling. Don't allow the group sessions to turn into tea and social sympathizing.

Send a stamped, self - addressed long envelope for "Slimming Club" and "Hunger Control Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

"The bearer of this card has established credit and is entitled to all the service and facilities of the hospital," the card reads.

The service is available to groups such as unions, corporations and municipal employes as well as individuals.

Blind Man Quality Control Inspector

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russell Bowers, though blind, has been a quality control inspector for 19 years.

The Sharples Corporation, where Bowers works, has developed an attachment for him for a gauging stand widely used in industry. The attachment has a control unit that measures to within five ten - thousandths of an inch. Oversize parts sound one buzzer, undersize parts another and those within allowable tolerances a third.

Sharples says the cost of equipping a blind inspector is $150 more than for a sighted person. However, the company says the investment usually will be repaid quickly since blind persons generally can be trained to out-produce sighted persons in this type of work.

Barren Isle Exports Produce First Time

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — For the first time in its history, the island of Aruba is exporting vegetables.

Aruba is an extremely dry island 35 miles off the coast of Venezuela. Its 69 square miles produce refined oil, salt and phosphates, but water is so scarce it has to be imported and the soil is barren.

Several months ago, a firm called Hydroponica International built two hydoponic farms to produce fresh vegetables for the 48,000 citizens of Aruba. On a hydroponic farm, vegetables are grown in sawdust and shavings in concrete beds with big doses of fertilizer.

S. R. Robbins of Fort Myers, president of the firm, said that recently the two farms produced more tomatoes than we needed. The excess is being shipped to Puerto Rico and Miami, he said.

Tavern Owner Tries To Turn Law Around

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Al Ettinger feels that what is good for the sauce should be good for the soused.

Ettinger protested when the Sarasota County Commission granted a zoning permit for a new Methodist Church within 2,500 feet of his business — a bar. He pointed out that regulations do not permit establishments which sell liquor to be opened within 2,500 feet of a church.

"If you won't permit a bar near a church," Ettinger told the commissioners, "then you should not permit a church near a bar."

The commission agreed to take the matter under study.

Talking Radiator Leads To Injured

Mrs. Merle Smith said she heard radiator noises when she got up one morning. "I don't know why I put my ear to the radiator," she said. "But when I did I could hear someone saying, 'Help, help.' "

On investigating, she found that Mrs. Nell Grant, who lives in the apartment below Mrs. Smith's, had fallen and broken her leg and had been stranded there until her cries were heard via the radiator.

Confident Living

Getting Yourself Organized

It happened, of all places, in an airplane washroom. On a recent speaking tour we were aproaching our destination and I saw the Vacant sign on the washroom, so I opened the door and stepped in. But, to my amazement, another man tried to push his way in with me.

DR. PEALE

"My friend," I said, "actually there is only room for one at a time in here. But I'm glad to step aside. You go first. Politeness, you know. What's the big hurry?"

"I want to see you," he announced.

"Well," I replied, "I'll be back at my seat in a couple of minutes and we can have a chat."

"No," he insisted, "I want to see you in private."

—:—

WELL, IT crossed my mind that this was an unconventional fellow to say the least, but I closed the door behind us fearful that more might crowd in and asked, "What's the matter? Must be important."

"It is for a fact. I'm really miserable. I've lost all my self-confidence. Everything is going wrong. I am as low as you can get."

Sparring for a clearer impression of the man's personality, I asked, "What line of work are you in?"

Dejectedly he answered, "I'm just a peddler."

"What do you mean, a peddler?"

"I'm a salesman. A traveling sales representative."

He was a tall man, about six feet, but he stood with shoulders slumped, head hanging dejectedly, his face looking as dark as a storm cloud. I stood staring at him, silently praying for guidance as to how to help him. Then I said, "Will you do me a favor? Stand up straight, raise your head and put your shoulders back... against the door."

Looking rather sheepish, he did as I asked.

"Now I am going to ask again what kind of work you are in, and in reply please repeat after me."

SO I PROMPTED him sentence by sentence and he reiterated, "I am a salesman and I am proud of it! I am a representative of one of the great occupations in our free enterprise system! I am a necessary factor in transmitting goods and services to people who need them!" As he spoke the man unconsciously seemed to draw himself up a bit taller.

Now I asked, "Just what do you do in sales?"

"I go around the country giving inspirational talks at sales meetings, just feature that," he replied.

"Brother!" I exclaimed, "what were your bosses thinking of, giving you a job like that? They must be stupid men."

That seemed to annoy him. "What do you mean, stupid! They are smart men."

"Then could it be that they see something in you that you don't see in yourself? To inspire others you have to communicate enthusiasm and faith; and you'd better get those two qualities fast."

"Enthusiasm and faith," he repeated, "that's just what I haven't got."

"WELL," I continued, "I guess its time to start praying." I've prayed in all kinds of places, but this was my first prayer in an airplane washroom. That's for sure. So with bowed head I prayed aloud, "Lord, You are everywhere, down on the earth and up in the heavens. You are in the air around us. You are with us in this plane. Now this dejected man is one of Your children. He is having a hard time with himself. He lacks enthusiasm and has no faith in himself. Dear Lord, heal him and reorganize him." After a pause I suggested, "Now won't you pray."

Movingly he prayed, "Dear Lord, come and take charge of me, please. Reorganize me and give me some real faith and enthusiasm."

That was all. We shook hands and parted. Some weeks later I received a letter from him telling how different things had been since our encounter and that prayer. He used a very striking phrase: "The Lord put me back inside myself."

Quite an insight I would say. He was put back inside himself which is another way of saying he got organized. When that happens to any person things go a lot better. Then your enthusiasm and abilities function efficiently.

Firm Didn't Take 'Nyet' For Answer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Some months ago Elliott Sherwood received a circular saying a series of reference was being reserved for him, the first volume to be on Russia.

An enclosed return address card asked whether Sherwood wanted to buy the books. He wrote "nyet" on the appropriate line and mailed the card.

Someone in the publishing firm apparently didn't know "nyet" was Russian for "no." One by one Sherwood has received the reference volumes, which he has kept unopened to await developments. His correspondence from the publisher comes addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

The company apparently has sold its mailing list, because Sherwood now is receiving circulars from other companies addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I clean wrought iron?

A. Wrought iron fixtures and ornaments can be cleaned very efficiently by rubbing with a woolen rag, moistened with any thin oil, such as paraffin or kerosene.

Q. How can I make easier the job of scouring the inside of an oven that is encrusted with baking drippings?

A. After first turning off the pilot lights, place a bowl of household amonia in the oven and close the door. The fumes from the ammonia will loosen the charred drippings, making them much easier to remove.

Q. How can I strengthen some of my glassware, and make it less fragile?

A. Put your glassware into a vessel filled with slightly salted water which you allow to come slowly to a boil. The slower your boiling, the hardier your glassware.

Q. How can I keep egg yolks fresh for several days when I have no immediate use for them?

A. Place them in cold water, and keep in a dark, cool place.

Q. How can I remove some grease spots from my rugs and upholstered furniture?

A. Add enough water to a quantity of baking soda to make a paste, and then rub liberal amounts of this into the stained areas. Allow the paste to dry, then remove it with a brush or the vacuum cleaner, or the carpet sweeper. If the stain proves stubborn, you may have to repeat this operation a few times.

Q. How can some cracks in my laundry tubs be repaired?

A. By use of litharge - glycerin paste. This paste can be made by mixing enough glycerin with a quantity of litharge so that it can be applied as a plastic cement.

Q. How can I extract a stronger light from a reading lamp?

A. If you'll paint the inside of a parchment shade with a thin coat of white paint, you'll magnify the light from the lamp.

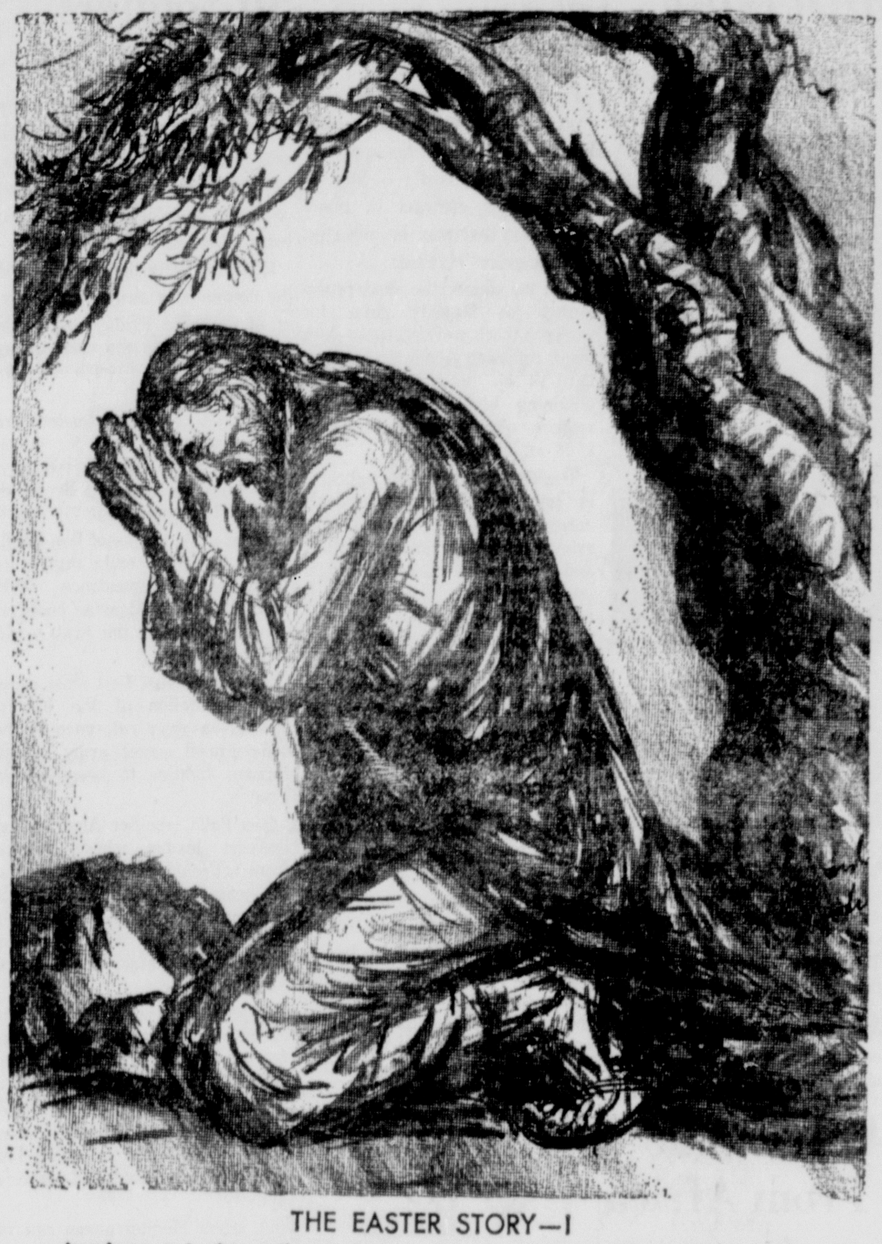
The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie



THE EASTER STORY—I

Jesus' agony in the garden of Gethsemane provided a revealing contrast between divine strength and human weakness. "Not my will, but thine be done," he prayed. As for his followers, St. Matthew concludes his story of Jesus' betrayal with this comment: "Then the disciples all deserted him and ran away."

Homemakers Join Club For Slimming Fun

Reducing together in a club can be wonderfully invigorating—provided you get in the spirit of the thing. This promising report comes from one of the members of a newly - formed club in Lincoln, Maine. Written in February, their goal is to be a size slimmer by Easter.

Ida Jean Kain

"Everyone is enthusiastic about our new reducing club," a member writes. "The first night we met there were seven in spite of the weather — 30 degrees below. Last night we had our second meeting and nine attended.

"Three of us have lost a total of seven pounds; one member to her chagrin had gained a pound. The others weighed in at their starting weight, and resolved to do better.

"AFTER WEIGHING in, we take group calisthenics — stretch, bend, swing. It's fun and streamlining. Before we break up we have a hot beverage, served with melba toast. Nothing fattening!

"We plan to meet every Thursday evening between now and Easter, and we hope to be in far better shape by that special date.

Your leaflet, "Slimming Clubs," helped us in getting organized. Personally, I find it a lot easier to diet knowing I will have to weigh in come Thursday. The exercises are fun to do at home and my children think I'm playing with them when I'm doing setups."

Such enthusiasm is contagious, and we wager this club member is pulling more than her own weight. Apparently this is a homemakers' club. Homemakers sometimes need a change of pace.

Too much routine can lead to a rut, and ruts are deadly dulling. By the way, in one reducing club homemakers, bored with cleaning their own houses, just for a lark, decided to clean each others. They finished the cleaning refreshed and in high spirits. Gone was the tired feeling which is a common syptom of boredom.

But back to our reducing club. To stimulate interest, I would suggest that on alternate weeks measurements be recorded. Aim toward one size slimmer.

In misses' sizes there is a one and one-half inch difference from one size to the next — in the waist, bust and abdomen. And two inches in the hips.

On poundage there is a 10, 12, 14 or 16-pound difference, depending on your size range. But 10 to 16 pounds and a couple of inches off are small hurdles when you have the fun of reducing together.

THE CAMARADERIE and friendly spirit of rivalry can add unexpected zest. Keep the spirit of rivalry bubbling. Don't allow the group sessions to turn into tea and social sympathizing.

Send a stamped, self - addressed long envelope for "Slimming Club" and "Hunger Control Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

Blind Man Quality Control Inspector

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russell Bowers, though blind, has been a quality control inspector for 19 years.

The Sharples Corporation, where Bowers works, has developed an attachment for him for a gauging stand widely used in industry. The attachment has a control unit that measures to within five ten - thousandths of an inch. Oversize parts sound one buzzer, undersize parts another and those within allowable tolerances a third.

Sharples says the cost of equipping a blind inspector is $150 more than for a sighted person. However, the company says the investment usually will be repaid quickly since blind persons generally can be trained to out-produce sighted persons in this type of work.

Barren Isle Exports Produce First Time

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — For the first time in its history, the island of Aruba is exporting vegetables.

Aruba is an extremely dry island 35 miles off the coast of Venezuela. Its 69 square miles produce refined oil, salt and phosphates, but water is so scarce it has to be imported and the soil is barren.

Several months ago, a firm called Hydroponica International built two hydroponic farms to produce fresh vegetables for the 48,000 citizens of Aruba. On a hydroponic farm, vegetables are grown in sawdust and shavings in concrete beds with big doses of fertilizer.

S. R. Robbins of Fort Myers, president of the firm, said that recently the two farms produced more tomatoes than we needed. The excess is being shipped to Puerto Rico and Miami, he said.

Tavern Owner Tries To Turn Law Around

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Al Ettinger feels that what is good for the sauce should be good for the soused.

Ettinger protested when the Sarasota County Commission granted a zoning permit for a new Methodist Church within 2,500 feet of his business — a bar. He pointed out that regulations do not permit establishments which sell liquor to be opened within 2,500 feet of a church.

"If you won't permit a bar near a church," Ettinger told the commissioners, "then you should not permit a church near a bar."

The commission agreed to take the matter under study.

Talking Radiator Leads To Injured

Mrs. Merle Smith said she heard radiator noises when she got up one morning. "I don't know why I put my ear to the radiator," she said. "But when I did I could hear someone saying, 'Help, help.' "

On investigating, she found that Mrs. Nell Grant, who lives in the apartment below Mrs. Smith's, had fallen and broken her leg and had been stranded there until her cries were heard via the radiator.

Confident Living

Getting Yourself Organized

It happened, of all places, in an airplane washroom. On a recent speaking tour we were aproaching our destination and I saw the Vacant sign on the washroom, so I opened the door and stepped in. But, to my amazement, another man tried to push his way in with me.

DR. PEALE

"My friend," I said, "actually there is only room for one at a time in here. But I'm glad to step aside. You go first. Politeness, you know. What's the big hurry?"

"I want to see you," he announced.

"Well," I replied, "I'll be back at my seat in a couple of minutes and we can have a chat."

"No," he insisted, "I want to see you in private."

—:—

WELL, IT crossed my mind that this was an unconventional fellow to say the least, but I closed the door behind us fearful that more might crowd in and asked, "What's the matter? Must be important."

"It is for a fact. I'm really miserable. I've lost all my self-confidence. Everything is going wrong. I am as low as you can get."

Sparring for a clearer impression of the man's personality, I asked, "What line of work are you in?"

Dejectedly he answered, "I'm just a peddler."

"What do you mean, a peddler?"

"I'm a salesman. A traveling sales representative."

Residents will be visited during the afternoon by teams. Those not at home will be visited early next week.

Each church will send its census team to the United Presbyterian Church at 2 p. m. tomorrow for instructions.

Churches of the area are sponsoring a union Lenten service Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Church of the Nazarene.

General Dies At 73

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Brig. Gen. Philip R. Faymonville, 73, military attache in Moscow for five years beginning in 1934 after the United States recognized the Soviet government, died Thursday. Gen. Faymonville, who retired from the Army in 1948, returned to Russia during World War II as a lend-lease administrator. He also served as military attache in Tokyo.

They Walked With Christ

LAZARUS

"... he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes ..."

—John XI:43,44

It is easy to understand the confusion, unbelief, and astonishment of the people who witnessed this event.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus and the brother of Martha and Mary, had been dead four days. The practical Martha told Jesus, when He asked them to take away the stone from before the dead man's tomb:

"Lord, by this time he stinketh."

Saddened a little by the lack of faith, even in His closest friends, Jesus ignored the objections and, lifted His face heavenward in a brief prayer:

"Father, I thank thee that thou heardest me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the multitude that standeth around I said it, that they may believe that thou didst send me."

Then He called into the dark tomb, "Lazarus, come forth."

Lazarus came stumbling out, still wrapped in his grave clothes.

"Loose him," said Jesus, "and let him go."

No doubt, as Lazarus walked again as a man and flexed his muscles painfully as feeling returned to his limbs, he tried to recall what it had been like to be dead and entombed.

It is quite likely that he could recall only a blank state of unconsciousness, similar to sleep, for Jesus had said:

"Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep."

Both Martha and Mary reproached Jesus with the same words before He had recalled Lazarus from the tomb:

"Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Perhaps it was for them, for their lack of faith, for their blindness to His true identity that Jesus wept in that moment, rather than for His friend Lazarus, whom He was about to restore to life. For the answer He gave Martha is the answer that lives today as the solace of all Christians who mourn for their loved ones:

"I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me, shall never die."

Ohio Church Secretary Due At Lisbon Holy Week Series

LISBON — Dr. Harold Monroe of Cleveland, executive secretary of the Ohio Society of Christian Churches, will be guest speaker for the annual Holy Week observance of the Lisbon Ministerial Association. It will begin Sunday, April 15, at 7:45 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Several changes have been made in this series. There will be no union Communion service Thursday evening, instead each participating church will have its own service, all starting at 7:45.

The Good Friday service will be held in the Trinity United Presbyterian Church from noon to 3:30 p.m. This type of service hasn't been followed since 1951, the association said.

Dr. Monroe will give four sermons, Sunday through Wednesday, and will be introduced Sunday evening by the Rev. William Spangler of the First Christian Church.

The Rev. William Brown of the Methodist Church will preside at the service April 15, the choir from Trinity U.P. church will present special music and ushers will be from the Methodist Church.

The Rev. Frank Hare of the Beaver Larger Parish will preside Monday. The Nazarene Church choir will furnish the music and the Christian Church the ushers.

The Rev. Russell Long of the Church of the Nazarene will preside Tuesday evening and the First Presbyterian Church will provide music and ushers will be from the Nazarene Church.

The Rev. Paul T. Gerrard of the host church will preside Wednesday evening. The Methodist Church will furnish the music and the host church the ushers.

The Rev. C. O. Armstrong of the host church will preside for Good Friday services — Rev. Gerrard will speak at noon, the Rev. Chalmers Cope at 12:30, Rev. Long at 1, Rev. Hare at 1:30, Rev. Spangler at 2, Rev. Brown at 2:30 and Rev. Armstrong at 3.

'Town Hall' Meeting Set For Lisbon Levy

LISBON — Mayor Dean Stockman and Council hope the "Town Hall" meeting Monday night will give community organizations a better understanding of the village's fund situation and the need for passage of the 3-mill levy on the May 8 ballot.

The administration has invited all organizations to send representatives and any group which may have been overlooked should feel free to send a representative, they said.

Mayor and councilmen will explain the need for the operating levy, which has been defeated several times.

Ohio Flag Will Fly In S. American Cities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's state flag will fly over six South American cities during April in connection with the "Visit U.S.A." program of the Commerce Department's new U.S. Travel Service.

The program is designed to attract more foreign visitors to the United States for goodwill reasons and to offset the outflow of money spent by Americans abroad.

Natives of the Bahamas beat the long leaves of the cactuslike sisal plant into hemp, dye it and weave it into highly colored baskets, belts and hats.

General Dies At 73

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Brig. Gen. Philip R. Faymonville, 73, military attache in Moscow for five years beginning in 1934 after the United States recognized the Soviet government, died Thursday. Gen. Faymonville, who retired from the Army in 1948, returned to Russia during World War II as a lend-lease administrator. He also served as military attache in Tokyo.

They Walked With Christ

LAZARUS

"... he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes ..."

—John XI:43,44

It is easy to understand the confusion, unbelief, and astonishment of the people who witnessed this event.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus and the brother of Martha and Mary, had been dead four days. The practical Martha told Jesus, when He asked them to take away the stone from before the dead man's tomb:

"Lord, by this time he stinketh."

Saddened a little by the lack of faith, even in His closest friends, Jesus ignored the objections and, lifted His face heavenward in a brief prayer:

"Father, I thank thee that thou heardest me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the multitude that standeth around I said it, that they may believe that thou didst send me."

Then He called into the dark tomb, "Lazarus, come forth."

Lazarus came stumbling out, still wrapped in his grave clothes.

"Loose him," said Jesus, "and let him go."

No doubt, as Lazarus walked again as a man and flexed his muscles painfully as feeling returned to his limbs, he tried to recall what it had been like to be dead and entombed.

It is quite likely that he could recall only a blank state of unconsciousness, similar to sleep, for Jesus had said:

"Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep."

Both Martha and Mary reproached Jesus with the same words before He had recalled Lazarus from the tomb:

"Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Perhaps it was for them, for their lack of faith, for their blindness to His true identity that Jesus wept in that moment, rather than for His friend Lazarus, whom He was about to restore to life. For the answer He gave Martha is the answer that lives today as the solace of all Christians who mourn for their loved ones:

"I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me, shall never die."

Ohio Church Secretary Due At Lisbon Holy Week Series

LISBON — Dr. Harold Monroe of Cleveland, executive secretary of the Ohio Society of Christian Churches, will be guest speaker for the annual Holy Week observance of the Lisbon Ministerial Association. It will begin Sunday, April 15, at 7:45 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Several changes have been made in this series. There will be no union Communion service Thursday evening, instead each participating church will have its own service, all starting at 7:45.

The Good Friday service will be held in the Trinity United Presbyterian Church from noon to 3:30 p.m. This type of service hasn't been followed since 1951, the association said.

Dr. Monroe will give four sermons, Sunday through Wednesday, and will be introduced Sunday evening by the Rev. William Spangler of the First Christian Church.

The Rev. William Brown of the Methodist Church will preside at the service April 15, the choir from Trinity U.P. church will present special music and ushers will be from the Methodist Church.

The Rev. Frank Hare of the Beaver Larger Parish will preside Monday. The Nazarene Church choir will furnish the music and the Christian Church the ushers.

The Rev. Russell Long of the Church of the Nazarene will preside Tuesday evening and the First Presbyterian Church will provide music and ushers will be from the Nazarene Church.

The Rev. Paul T. Gerrard of the host church will preside Wednesday evening. The Methodist Church will furnish the music and the host church the ushers.

The Rev. C. O. Armstrong of the host church will preside for Good Friday services — Rev. Gerrard will speak at noon, the Rev. Chalmers Cope at 12:30, Rev. Long at 1, Rev. Hare at 1:30, Rev. Spangler at 2, Rev. Brown at 2:30 and Rev. Armstrong at 3.

'Town Hall' Meeting Set For Lisbon Levy

LISBON — Mayor Dean Stockman and Council hope the "Town Hall" meeting Monday night will give community organizations a better understanding of the village's fund situation and the need for passage of the 3-mill levy on the May 8 ballot.

The administration has invited all organizations to send representatives and any group which may have been overlooked should feel free to send a representative, they said.

Mayor and councilmen will explain the need for the operating levy, which has been defeated several times.

Ohio Flag Will Fly In S. American Cities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's state flag will fly over six South American cities during April in connection with the "Visit U.S.A." program of the Commerce Department's new U.S. Travel Service.

The program is designed to attract more foreign visitors to the United States for goodwill reasons and to offset the outflow of money spent by Americans abroad.

Natives of the Bahamas beat the long leaves of the cactuslike sisal plant into hemp, dye it and weave it into highly colored baskets, belts and hats.

2 Bills Waited In Sewer Job

Council is scheduled to act Monday night on two ordinances that will clear the way for the administration to advertise for bids and let a contract for installation of a sanitary sewer to serve 42 homes on N. Surrey Rd. and S. Surrey Rd., Fisher Park.

Council will consider a so-called "determining ordinance," in which the city determines officially to proceed with the project, and legislation providing for the issuance of notes in anticipation of the issuance of bonds to finance the work. The bonds, in turn, will be amortized by special assessments collected from property-holders.

Council authorized presentation of the two ordinances March 19 after Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper reported on the status of the project. He said work might get under way by May 1 and be completed by mid-June. First enabling legislation for the project, a resolution of necessity, was passed Nov. 6, 1961.

Council also is scheduled to give second reading to the annual appropriation ordinance. The lengthy measure, providing funds for all municipal purposes in 1962, was placed on first reading, 5-1, at a special session Wednesday night.

Unless Council can muster at least six affirmative votes, the ordinance will go over to third reading at the next session April 16. Councilman Frank Duffy cast the lone dissent at the special session. Councilman Floyd Murray was absent.

Council also will consider legislation consenting to a change in the franchise of the Tri-State Transit Co., the bus concern which serves East Liverpool, Chester and Newell and also makes runs between downtown and East End.

In a dissolution of partnership that took place Thursday, John R. Campbell became the sole owner of the firm. He acquired the interest formerly held by his partner, Donald W. Barnes. The legislation, in effect, continues the company's franchise under the new ownership.

Given Breakfast, Gift

Insurance Sales Aide Feted On Retirement

Roland V. McIntosh of Gaston Pl. was honored and given a gift by fellow employes of the East Liverpool District of the Western & Southern Life Insurance Co. at a breakfast Friday in the Hotel Wilk in Wellsville.

He retires this weekend after more than 36 years as a company representative.

McIntosh started with the company Dec. 21, 1925, in the Wellsville office then at 5th and Main Sts. He was promoted to superintendent after eight months on the staff, continuing in that capacity until transferred to the East Liverpool office four years later.

McIntosh worked as superintendent of the city office until 1940. He was then transferred to the Steubenville District as superintendent for one year, and returned to East Liverpool again as superintendent in charge of the district until 1947.

Since that time, he has worked as sales representative in the East End area.

Among service awards he received in his career with Western & Southern is a gold plaque and chime clock given by William Safford, president. McIntosh was also appointed "Marshal of the Legion" for 35 years service.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, the former Ruth E. Foutts, have been married 39 years and have a son, Ronald V. McIntosh Jr. of Wichita Falls, Tex.

He is a member of the Yellow Creek Presbyterian Church and its Board of Trustees.

Retirement plans are indefinite, although Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh plan to visit their son and daughter-in-law and three granddaughters during Easter.

New Library Books To Help Fill Desire For Outdoor Life

Nature lovers and outdoors enthusiasts will find interesting reading in a trio of new books at the Carnegie Public Library, according to Miss Frances Jones, librarian.

Louise Dickinson Rich has written a companion book to her "We Took to the Woods," and its chief characters are toads, deer, black bears and faithful dogs who inhabit a region of Maine 40 miles from a railroad and 20 from a post office. The title is "The Natural World."

Rachel Peden, a farmer's wife in Indiana, pens an almanac of country living in "Rural Free." She lives in a remodeled school house and frequently serves as correspondent for Indiana newspapers, reporting on the excellence of her sassafrass tea.

Two editors from the magazine Outdoor Life, Leonard Miracle and Maurice Decker, have compiled a "Complete Book of Camping." Besides many tips on woodsman skills such as "axmanship," the guide includes a complete director of camp sites by state.

A pair of novels which wrestle with religious themes are to be found on this week's new bookshelf — "According to Mary," by Willa Gibbs, and "The Blood of the Lamb," by Peter DeVries.

The first concerns Mary Magdalene, the woman of ill repute who became one of Christ's most devoted converts, and the second deals with Dutch immigrants in America, devotees of the Evangelical Reformed faith. This second novel concerns many deep themes, . .the nature of evil and the doctrine of predestination.

Though Elizabeth Seifert is the veteran of 40 novels, the first being "Young Doctor Galahad," this grandmother of 11 finds time to conjure up still another romance, "The Honor of Dr. Shelton."

Madeline Duke is, in contrast to Mrs. Seifert, a brand new romantic novelist. The central character of this highly romantic tale laid in China of the early 1900's is an orphan girl adopted by a Russian doctor. The title is "Ride the Brooding Wind."

Science fiction fans can take heart in Wallace West's latest book, "Outposts In Space." Many travelers to the moon suffer permanent bodily harm, but at this particular juncture certain planets are being used for isolation of criminals and juvenile delinquents.

Those who relish good nostalgic novels of England shouldn't miss either "Winter In Thrush Green" by Miss Read or "Oh, Mary, This London" by Michael Campbell.

For good wacky fun the new bookshelf boasts two books of wry humor, Ludwig Bemelman's "Italian Holiday" and Gerald Green's "The Portofino PTA."

Unemployed Claims Rise

Unemployment claims for March showed a slight increase over February, with a total of 2,684 filed compared to 2,576 for the previous month, the Ohio State Employment Service reported today.

There were 343 new regular claims and 1,943 continued claims, for a total of 2,286 claims under the regular program, and 26 new extended payment claims and 372 continued extended claims for a total of 398 under the extended program, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said.

During March there were 1,068 applications for work, compared to 1,119 in February, and there were 46 placements made by the office in March compared to 37 in February. The placements this month included four handicapped workers. There were no handicapped placements in February.

Benefit payments for January and February totaled $152,147, Dinsmore said. This included $128,830 under the regular payments, including $14,951 dependency payments, and $23,317 under the extended program, including $1,946 dependency payments.

During the week there were 70 new regular claims and 491 continued claims, and five new extended payments claims and 86 continued extended claims, Dinsmore reported. This made a total of 647 claims compared to 661 claims last week, he said.

Nike Intercepts Missile Flashing At 3,000 M.P.H.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Nike-Zeus—a missile killer the Army wants to develop into a full-scale antimissile defense system—has intercepted a 3,000-mile-an-hour missile flashing over the New Mexico desert.

The Army hailed the test as a "comprehensive evaluation of major components of the Nike-Zeus system against a high-performance missile target."

But it was still only a warmup for the Zeus' big test over the Pacific, probably late this spring, when it will be matched against an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The Atlas travels almost eight times faster than the New Mexico target—17,500 miles an hour.

However, the New Mexico test —carried out three days ago with neither missile using a warhead— cheered the Army in its long campaign to sell the Pentagon on the Nike-Zeus.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said there were serious questions as to the practicality of the Zeus. For that reason, the Defense Department refused to permit the Army to go into production of some components of the Nike-Zeus until it could be tested thoroughly.

The test over New Mexico—at an undisclosed altitude—was the second of its kind for the Nike-Zeus. The Army said last December it successfully intercepted a Nike Hercules. It also has been tested — successfully, says the Army—against electronically simulated ICBMs.

The Pacific test will check out the system's tracking radar, detection radar and the performance of the battery itself.

Among weaknesses critics say hinder the Zeus' effectiveness is what they call its radar's inability to discriminate between missile warheads and decoy devices.

West Virginians May Get Slash In Phone Toll Rates

CHARLESTON — A new Public Service Commission order might result in an annual $438,000 reduction in intrastate toll rates charged West Virginians by Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

PSC Chairman Fred Caplan said the company has an option of voluntarily amending its intrastate toll rates or appearing at a May 9 hearing to show why it should not take such action.

The PSC order resulted from an amendment in cost allocation procedures recommended by a special committee of The National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners, of which the state commission is a member. The amendment also has federal Communication Commission approval.

Caplan said the committee has been studying the relationship of intrastate and interstate tolls for a number of years. On one occasion, the Federal Communication Commission ordered the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to reduce interstate tolls by about $50 million annually.

The adjustments between interstate and intrastate tariffs would be designed to give economic relief to those paying intrastate toll charges. The adjustments, however, would in no way affect local exchange rates in West Virginia.

An unoccupied one-story home on Peake St. was gutted by fire early this morning.

Sheppard Sues In High Court On Hypnotic Tests

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sam Sheppard has brought suit in the Ohio Supreme Court for the right to undergo hypnotic tests which, he hopes, will help him recall the intruder he claims bludgeoned his wife to death in 1954.

Sheppard was convicted of second-degree murder Dec. 21, 1954, in the fatal beating of his pregnant wife, Marilyn, in their Bay Village home July 4. He is confined in Marion Correctional Institution without hope of parole short of mid-1965.

The osteopath always has contended that a bushy-haired intruder committed the crime and then injured him in escaping.

In his petition against Ohio Corrections Commissioner Maury Koblentz Friday, Sheppard told the court he had obtained attorneys who have arranged to have experts in hypnosis, including Dr. William J. Bryan Jr. of Los Angeles, examine him.

The petition stated that because of injuries Sheppard claimed he suffered at the hands of the alleged intruder he suffers amnesia as far as the identity of the alleged intruder is concerned and is unable to recall his appearance.

Sheppard said he believes that through application of hypnosis memory will be restored so that he can clearly identify the actual murderer or murderers.

Midland customers of the Peoples Natural Gas Co. apparently stand to receive refunds under a Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission case affecting 22 gas concerns supplying Western Pennsylvania.

The PUC at Harrisburg said a refund totaling $1,700,000 along with new rate reductions totaling $813,000 resulted from its fight against wholesale gas rates charged by transmission companies.

Percentages of refunds and reductions to be made to each customer will have to be determined. The Federal Power Commission approved a settlement by which a Charleston supplier will reduce rates retroactive to April 5, 1960, as a result of reduced charges by a Tennessee firm. These reductions will be passed on to wholesale and retail gas distributors, then to customers.

2 Bills Waited In Sewer Job

Council is scheduled to act Monday night on two ordinances that will clear the way for the administration to advertise for bids and let a contract for installation of a sanitary sewer to serve 42 homes on N. Surrey Rd. and S. Surrey Rd., Fisher Park.

Council will consider a so-called "determining ordinance," in which the city determines officially to proceed with the project, and legislation providing for the issuance of notes in anticipation of the issuance of bonds to finance the work. The bonds, in turn, will be amortized by special assessments collected from property-holders.

Council authorized presentation of the two ordinances March 19 after Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper reported on the status of the project. He said work might get under way by May 1 and be completed by mid-June. First enabling legislation for the project, a resolution of necessity, was passed Nov. 6, 1961.

Council also is scheduled to give second reading to the annual appropriation ordinance. The lengthy measure, providing funds for all municipal purposes in 1962, was placed on first reading, 5-1, at a special session Wednesday night.

Unless Council can muster at least six affirmative votes, the ordinance will go over to third reading at the next session April 16. Councilman Frank Duffy cast the lone dissent at the special session. Councilman Floyd Murray was absent.

Council also will consider legislation consenting to a change in the franchise of the Tri-State Transit Co., the bus concern which serves East Liverpool, Chester and Newell and also makes runs between downtown and East End.

In a dissolution of partnership that took place Thursday, John R. Campbell became the sole owner of the firm. He acquired the interest formerly held by his partner, Donald W. Barnes. The legislation, in effect, continues the company's franchise under the new ownership.

Coroner's Ruling Due

CLEVELAND (AP)—The coroner is to rule in the traffic death of Stuart J. Kelley, 52, of Shaker Heights. He died Friday at the wheel of a car that hit a tree in that suburb.

Given Breakfast, Gift

Insurance Sales Aide Feted On Retirement

Roland V. McIntosh of Gaston Pl. was honored and given a gift by fellow employes of the East Liverpool District of the Western & Southern Life Insurance Co. at a breakfast Friday in the Hotel Wilk in Wellsville.

He retires this weekend after more than 36 years as a company representative.

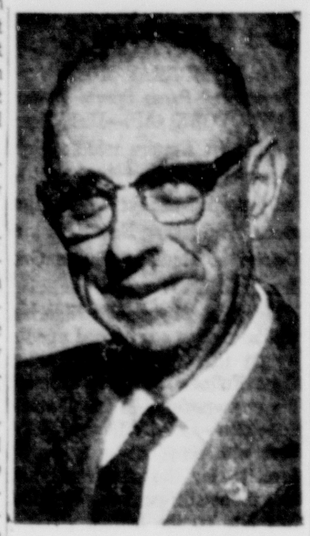
McIntosh started with the company Dec. 21, 1925, in the Wellsville office then at 5th and Main Sts. He was promoted to superintendent after eight months on the staff, continuing in that capacity until transferred to the East Liverpool office four years later.

McIntosh worked as superintendent of the city office until 1940. He was then transferred to the Steubenville District as superintendent for one year, and returned to East Liverpool again as superintendent in charge of the district until 1947.

Since that time, he has worked as sales representative in the East End area.

Among service awards he received in his career with Western & Southern is a gold plaque and chime clock given by William Safford, president. McIntosh was also appointed "Marshal of the Legion" for 35 years service.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, the former Ruth E. Foutts, have been married 39 years and have a son, Ronald V. McIntosh Jr. of Wichita Falls, Tex.



R. V. McINTOSH
With Firm For 36 Years.

He is a member of the Yellow Creek Presbyterian Church and its Board of Trustees.

Retirement plans are indefinite, although Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh plan to visit their son and daughter-in-law and three granddaughters during Easter.

New Library Books To Help Fill Desire For Outdoor Life

Nature lovers and outdoors enthusiasts will find interesting reading in a trio of new books at the Carnegie Public Library, according to Miss Frances Jones, librarian.

Louise Dickinson Rich has written a companion book to her "We Took to the Woods," and its chief characters are toads, deer, black bears and faithful dogs who inhabit a region of Maine 40 miles from a railroad and 20 from a post office. The title is "The Natural World."

Rachel Peden, a farmer's wife in Indiana, pens an almanac of country living in "Rural Free." She lives in a remodeled school house and frequently serves as correspondent for Indiana newspapers, reporting on the excellence of her sassafrass tea.

Two editors from the magazine Outdoor Life, Leonard Miracle and Maurice Decker, have compiled a "Complete Book of Camping." Besides many tips on woodsman skills such as "axmanship," the guide includes a complete director of camp sites by state.

A pair of novels which wrestle with religious themes are to be found on this week's new bookshelf — "According to Mary," by Willa Gibbs, and "The Blood of the Lamb," by Peter DeVries.

The first concerns Mary Magdalene, the woman of ill repute who became one of Christ's most devoted converts, and the second deals with Dutch immigrants in America, devotees of the Evangelical Reformed faith. This second novel concerns many deep themes. . .the nature of evil and the doctrine of predestination.

Though Elizabeth Seifert is the veteran of 40 novels, the first being "Young Doctor Galahad," this grandmother of 11 finds time to conjure up still another romance, "The Honor of Dr. Shelton."

Madeline Duke is, in contrast to Mrs. Seifert, a brand new romantic novelist. The central character of this highly romantic tale laid in China of the early 1900's is an orphan girl adopted by a Russian doctor. The title is "Ride the Brooding Wind."

Science fiction fans can take heart in Wallace West's latest book, "Outposts In Space." Many travelers to the moon suffer permanent bodily harm, but at this particular juncture certain planets are being used for isolation of criminals and juvenile delinquents.

Those who relish good nostalgic novels of England shouldn't miss either "Winter In Thrush Green" by Miss Read or "Oh, Mary, This London" by Michael Campbell.

For good wacky fun the new bookshelf boasts two books of wry humor, Ludwig Bemelman's "Italian Holiday" and Gerald Green's "The Portofino PTA."

Post To Obligate New Members

New members will be obligated at the meeting of the American Legion Post 374 Monday at 8 p. m. in the East End Home. Charles Moore and Fred Shaw, past commanders, will be in charge.

Pete Bonamy, director of publicity of Waterford Park, will screen colored movies of the park and thoroughbred racing.

The "Great Scots" barbershop quartet will sing.

Lunch will be served by Ted Galloway and committee.

The post will sponsor a dance tonight to music of George Miller's orchestra.

Wittenberg U. Lets Pacts For Dormitory

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Wittenberg University has awarded contracts totaling nearly $1 million for a 226-bed men's dormitory. Rodgers Construction Co. of Springfield was awarded the general contract after submitting a low bid of $610,000.

The building, first air-conditioned structure on the Wittenberg campus, will be financed by a 40-year loan from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The dormitory is expected to be completed in July 1963.

Unemployed Claims Rise

Unemployment claims for March showed a slight increase over February, with a total of 2,684 filed compared to 2,576 for the previous month, the Ohio State Employment Service reported today.

There were 343 new regular claims and 1,943 continued claims, for a total of 2,286 claims under the regular program, and 26 new extended payment claims and 372 continued extended claims for a total of 398 under the extended program, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said.

During March there were 1,068 applications for work, compared to 1,119 in February, and there were 46 placements made by the office in March compared to 37 in February. The placements this month included four handicapped workers. There were no handicapped placements in February.

Benefit payments for January and February totaled $152,147, Dinsmore said. This included $128,830 under the regular payments, including $14,951 dependency payments, and $23,317 under the extended program, including $1,946 dependency payments.

During the week there were 70 new regular claims and 491 continued claims, and five new extended payments claims and 86 continued extended claims, Dinsmore reported. This made a total of 647 claims compared to 661 claims last week, he said.

Nike Intercepts Missile Flashing At 3,000 M.P.H.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Nike-Zeus—a missile killer the Army wants to develop into a full-scale antimissile defense system—has intercepted a 3,000-mile-an-hour missile flashing over the New Mexico desert.

The Army hailed the test as a "comprehensive evaluation of major components of the Nike-Zeus system against a high-performance missile target."

But it was still only a warmup for the Zeus' big test over the Pacific, probably late this spring, when it will be matched against an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The Atlas travels almost eight times faster than the New Mexico target—17,500 miles an hour.

However, the New Mexico test—carried out three days ago with neither missile using a warhead—cheered the Army in its long campaign to sell the Pentagon on the Nike-Zeus.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said there were serious questions as to the practicality of the Zeus. For that reason, the Defense Department refused to permit the Army to go into production of some components of the Nike-Zeus until it could be tested thoroughly.

The test over New Mexico—at an undisclosed altitude—was the second of its kind for the Nike-Zeus. The Army said last December it successfully intercepted a Nike Hercules. It also has been tested — successfully, says the Army—against electronically simulated ICBMs.

The Pacific test will check out the system's tracking radar, detection radar and the performance of the battery itself.

Among weaknesses critics say hinder the Zeus' effectiveness is what they call its radar's inability to discriminate between missile warheads and decoy devices.

Chester Park Group Unable To Fill Post

The Chester City Park Commission could not come to a decision on a caretaker at a meeting Friday night.

Three candidates are being considered for the park job. The decision was deferred to the next meeting April 11. In other business, the commission discussed further plans for an inlet or lagoon for boat docks at the park.

Harold Dickey, chairman, will write to the U.S. Army Engineers at Pittsburgh and ask that a representative attend the commission next meeting to discuss the park project.

Jury Changes Charge

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Hamilton County grand jury has changed the charge against Charles E. Delph, 32, from second - degree murder to first-degree murder. The panel indicted Delph Friday in the fatal stabbing of his estranged wife Veralyn, 33, on Feb. 25. Prosecutor C. Watson Hover said fresh evidence justified the new charge.

West Virginians May Get Slash In Phone Toll Rates

CHARLESTON — A new Public Service Commission order might result in an annual $436,000 reduction in intrastate toll rates charged West Virginians by Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

PSC Chairman Fred Caplan said the company has an option of voluntarily amending its intrastate toll rates or appearing at a May 9 hearing to show why it should not take such action.

The PSC order resulted from an amendment in cost allocation procedures recommended by a special committee of The National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners, of which the state commission is a member. The amendment also has federal Communication Commission approval.

Caplan said the committee has been studying the relationship of intrastate and interstate tolls for a number of years. On one occasion, the Federal Communication Commission ordered the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to reduce interstate tolls by about $50 million annually.

The adjustments between interstate and intrastate tariffs would be designed to give economic relief to those paying intrastate toll charges. The adjustments, however, would in no way affect local exchange rates in West Virginia.

4 Killed, 2 Hurt In 2-Car Crash

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio (AP)—Four persons were killed and two more injured in a head-on automobile crash east of here late Friday night.

The smashup eight miles to the east on U.S. 36 killed Mrs. Hazel Campbell, 53, of Howard; Dale Young, 41, of Rt. 2, Walhonding (Coshocton County), and Young's 5-year-old son Roger; and George Dawson, 14, of Rt. 2, Danville.

Taken to Mercy Hospital here with undetermined injuries were Mrs. Doris Young, 29, wife of Dale, and Judy Cline, 17, of Rt. 2, Danville.

The Highway Patrol said one car evidently went left of center, hit the other head-on and rolled over the top of the second car before landing overturned.

The two teen-agers were in one auto, the Youngs and Mrs. Campbell in the other. All the victims resided in the general vicinity of the accident scene in Knox County.

Fire Damages Empty Home On Peake St.

An unoccupied one-story home on Peake St. was gutted by fire early this morning.

Firemen received a call at 12:55 a. m. from a passerby who spotted the blaze but thought it was on Dresden Ave. Peake intersects with Dresden and firemen said the glow could be seen on Dresden.

The fire apparently started in the left rear of the one-story frame home but had spread through the entire structure when firemen arrived. They battled the blaze for about two hours. A thousand feet of hose was laid.

Firemen were summoned to Mulberry St. in East End Friday afternoon at 3:43 when a car owned by Carl Bailey of 6th Ave., LaCroft, caught fire. It was out on arrival, firemen said.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — More than 1,000 officers of the United Rubber Workers are getting notice from the union's international president that they should work to "bring about complete non-discrimination within those plants" when the URW has contracts.

George Burdon, head of the 175,000-member URW, sent out this word along with a detailed report on President Kennedy's recent executive order aimed at ending discrimination in hiring, upgrading, layoffs and recalls in all companies holding contracts or subcontracts with a federal agency.

Sheppard Sues In High Court On Hypnotic Tests

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sam Sheppard has brought suit in the Ohio Supreme Court for the right to undergo hypnotic tests which, he hopes, will help him recall the intruder he claims bludgeoned his wife to death in 1954.

Sheppard was convicted of second-degree murder Dec. 21, 1954, in the fatal beating of his pregnant wife, Marilyn, in their Bay Village home July 4. He is confined in Marion Correctional Institution without hope of parole short of mid-1965.

The osteopath always has contended that a bushy-haired intruder committed the crime and then injured him in escaping.

In his petition against Ohio Corrections Commissioner Maury Koblentz Friday, Sheppard told the court he had obtained attorneys who have arranged to have experts in hypnosis, including Dr. William J. Bryan Jr. of Los Angeles, examine him.

The petition stated that because of injuries Sheppard claimed he suffered at the hands of the alleged intruder he suffers amnesia as far as the identity of the alleged intruder is concerned and is unable to recall his appearance.

Sheppard said he believes that through application of hypnosis memory will be restored so that he can clearly identify the actual murderer or murderers.

Bolt Kills Student And Injures Another

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Lightning killed an Emory University student Friday night and injured another youth as they walked across the university campus.

The victim was 19-year-old Clarence Eugene Warrell, a freshman from Tampa, Fla. His companion, freshman Donald Sinclair McCorquodale of Miami, also 19, was in satisfactory condition in Emory Hospital.

It's Baron's Vs. Shaffer's Trucking For Wellsville Title

Steubenville Five Edges Bright's In Overtime To Gain Finals

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Baron's Cafe of Steubenville, a team that refused to be beaten, will be around to defend its championship tonight when the Wellsville Jaycees crown the 1962 tournament winner.

The Baron five meets Shaffer Trucking of Wellsville in the title match which is billed for about 8:15. A consolation game between last night's losers — George Bright's of East Liverpool and Amo's Esso of Rochester — gets underway at 7 p.m.

Individual and team awards will be made immediately following the championship battle.

BRIGHT'S had Baron's struggling on the ropes Friday night at the Beacom Memorial Gym before the best crowd of the weeklong tournament which started with a field of 24 teams.

Baron's, which consists of Steubenville College stars of the past, was behind by four points with 14 seconds to go and its reign as champion very much in jeopardy.

The Steubenville five got a basket and brought the score down to 66-64. George Hale of Bright's took the ball out of bounds but it ended up in the possession of John Blanda of Baron's after the pass in bounds was blocked.

BLANDA took a 12-foot jump as the buzzer sounded and the ball swished the net to tie the game at 66-66 and cause an overtime.

Baron's grabbed the lead in the overtime and then hung on for the one-point victory.

Big Jim Smith, the former Little All-American, had one of his better night's in the tourney with a 24-point effort while Blanda, the hero of the contest, whipped in 19.

Tom Shaffer of Alliance, following a 40-point performance in the quarter - final round Thursday, paced Bright's again with 23 points while four other starters were in the double figures.

—:—

BRIGHT'S trailed at halftime, 38-31, but took a 52-45 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Shaffer Trucking, listing talent from Kent State University, was given a little scare late in the game, but maintained a wide margin most of the way to eliminate a smaller Amo's Esso five, 72-65.

Shaffer's jumped off to a 14-8 first quarter lead, then posted a 35-21 margin by halftime. The advantage after three periods was 52-43.

Four starters hit in the double figures for Shaffer's, with Maddox showing the way with 14.

Jim Irons, the former Monaca and Geneva standout, was high for the evening by leading Amo's attack with 27.

Dick Tiger, Referee Will Be On Spot

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion, and the referee will be on the spot tonight when Tiger meets hard-hitting Henry Hank of Detroit at Madison Square Garden.

Tiger, a 32-year-old Nigerian, will be risking a promised middleweight title fight against either Gene Fullmer or Terry Downes, the cochampions, in his 10-round television—ABC-TV 10 p.m. EST—bout with Hank. Tiger is the 8-5 favorite, but the odds won't help him if the stiff-punching Detroiter hits him on the button.

With the Benny (Kid) Paret tragedy of last week still very much in the news, the referee, who will be named at fight time, will be in the hot seat. The chances are that he will be quick to end the fight if one of the boxers is cut or jarred by a blow.

That's the way referees and ring physicians have reacted in the past following a fight in which a boxer has been seriously injured or killed. Paret, who was battered senseless last Saturday night at the Garden, still is in a coma.

Tiger, a vastly improved fighter in the last two years, has won six straight, including four by knockouts. In his last start, he stopped the formidable Florentino Fernandez of Cuba in the sixth round. Tiger has a 44-12-2 record, including 13 knockouts. He is ranked No. 1 contender behind champion Fullmer by the NBA and No. 2 contender behind Britain's Terry Downes and Fullmer by Ring Magazine.

Hank, 27, has a 52-14-3 record, including 36 knockouts. He is ranked fourth by the NBA and fifth by Ring.

Despite Tiger's hot streak, Hank was confident of victory.

Twins Release Martin; Pushed Aside By Allen

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Billy Martin, an 11-year major league veteran, was handed his unconditional release Friday by the Minnesota Twins.

Martin came to camp with the second base job virtually clinched but was pushed aside by Rookie Bernie Allen, of East Liverpool, O., a $50,000 bonus player from Purdue University.

Martin was a member of the New York Yankees from 1950 until 1957 and was the star of the Yankees' World Series victory in 1953. He was traded to Kansas City in mid-1957. From there, he went to Detroit in 1958, Cleveland in 1959, Cincinnati in 1960, Milwaukee in 1961 and joined the Twins in June of last year.

Boxing Has New Scare As Moore Pounds Foe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prizefighting got another scare when they carried Alejandro Lavorante out of the ring on a stretcher Friday night after his 10th-round knockout by Archie Moore.

It was the second time in less than a week that a fighter was taken by stretcher from a ring in a major match. But Lavorante, apparently suffering mostly from exhaustion, was not hospitalized.

Lavorante, 25, got a relentless pounding from Moore, who is about twice as old, but the South American was never knocked down. Moore, 197, staggered Lavorante, 211, several times in the eighth and ninth rounds, and the Argentine giant looked wobbly in the knees at the start of the 10th and last round of the nontitle match.

Moore, recognized as light heavyweight champion in California and parts of Europe, blasted away at the gangling Gaucho's midsection. Referee Tommy Hart halted the bout after 37 seconds of the 10th as Lavorante sagged against the ropes. It is listed as a knockout under California rules.

Lavorante stumbled to his corner and, as Moore waved to a cheering Sports Arena crowd of 13,532, the tired youngster slumped to the floor from his stool. He did not appear to lose consciousness—and tears glistened in his eyes as stretcher attendants carried him to his dressing room.

About 40 minutes after the knockout, ring announcer Jimmy Lennon informed the worried spectators watching a later bout, that Lavorante was talking to newsmen and apparently suffered no lasting injury. The crowd cheered.

At a midnight postfight party, Lavorante got an ovation from the guests. He posed for photographs with Moore and said in Spanish: "I feel all right."

Last Saturday, Benny (Kid) Paret was knocked senseless and carried out of the ring after losing his welterweight title to Emile Griffith. Paret is still in critical condition in a New York hospital.

In his dressing room, Lavorante lay battered and swollen on a stretcher after the fight. Newsmen were kept outside for a half hour, then were asked to leave after a five-minute session with the barely audible Lavorante.

Lavorante's manager said the fighter was suffering more from exhaustion than anything else.

As long as his fighter had to lose, said manager Pinkie George he was glad the defeat came at the hands of Moore, whom he praised as a credit to prize fighting.

Moore, wearing a brocaded, white silk robe, told newsmen in his dressing room: "Those body punches I was using were not spectacular but they are very effective."

He said of Lavorante: "He needs experience. I could take him to my salt mines (Archie talk for training camp) and make a champion out of him."

Lavorante fought gallantly but was unable to handle the bobbing, weaving attack of gray haired Moore, who kept his forehead on the chest of his 6-foot-4 opponent while blasting away through most of the fight.

Moore now has a record of 185 victories, 25 losses and 6 draws. Lavorante has won 19, lost 3.

Waterford Park Owner Bids On Wheeling Downs

An offer by the owner of Waterford Park race track to buy the Wheeling Downs track for $1,350,000 was announced Friday.

James F. Edwards of Huntington, Waterford's owner, made the offer last Tuesday. It was made public Friday by Edwards' attorney, Carl G. Bachmann of Wheeling.

Observers at Wheeling saw the Edwards' offer as forcing the hand of Wheeling Downs Harness Raceway, Inc., which has been negotiating to buy the track itself.

A spokesman for the harness raceway group had said Thursday that it hoped to complete about three weeks at a price "in excess of $1 million."

Wheeling Racing Association, Inc., owns Wheeling Downs and conducts thoroughbred races there. Wheeling Downs Harness Raceway leases the track to hold harness racing meets.

Wheeling Downs Harness Raceway's lease agreement gives it an option to buy the track from Wheeling Racing Association at any time for $1.5 million. The agreement also provides that if a third party makes an offer for the track, Wheeling Downs Harness Raceway may buy the track by matching the offer within a 30-day period.

The question now is whether Wheeling Downs Harness Raceway will match the Edwards offer within the required 30 days.

May Pitch Opener For Nats

Daniels Shows Top Form

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Determined Bennie Daniels, a 29-year-old retread who became a winner in the majors for the first time last year, likely will get the honor of firing the first official pitch in baseball's celebrated Presidential Opener at Washington.

The strong-armed right-hander reached opening day form Friday when he became the first member of the Senators' staff to go nine innings and blanked the Kansas City A's 3-0 on a three-hitter in an exhibition at West Palm Beach.

Daniels came to the Senators from Pittsburgh after the 1960 season and became the Nats only winner in the 1961 campaign with a 12-11 record and a 3.44 earned run average.

Now in his 10th season in organized baseball, Daniels never gave up on the way to becoming a winner, reaching the majors for the first time in 1957 and hanging on with the Pirates until he was traded. His career record up to that time was an unimpressive 8-16.

But he's No. 1 with the Senators after his second fine performance in succession—he spun a three-hitter for six innings in his previous outing—and probably will be tossing the first pitch toward the plate at Washington's new D.C. Stadium, April 9.

Daniels struck out three and walked only two as he set the A's down while Dale Long furnished him with the only run he needed.

Meanwhile, Houston edged San Francisco 6-5 in 10 innings at Phoenix, and the Chicago Cubs outslugged Boston 10-8 at Scottsdale to remain in a tie for the top spot in the National League with 13-7 records. The New York Yankees, who lost to Baltimore 9-3 in a night game at Miami, lead the AL with a 14-6 mark.

In other games, Cincinnati beat Detroit 8-1 at Tampa, Chicago's White Sox edged Minnesota 6-5 at Orlando, Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 5-4 at Fort Myers, the Los Angeles Angels beat Cleveland 4-3 at Palm Springs and the New York Mets nipped Philadelphia 2-1 in 10 innings at St. Petersburg.

Orlando Cepeda's fifth homer gave the Giants a 2-0 lead, but a homer barrage by the Colts put it away. Merritt Ranew connected twice, hitting the game-winner in the 10th. A 14-hit attack plus four Red Sox errors got the job done for the Cubs despite two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Carroll Hardy.

Skinny Brown and Wes Stock checked the Yankees on six hits while a two-run homer by John (Boog) Powell and Earl Robinson's bases-loaded triple paced the Orioles' 12-hit offensive.

OSU Nears Title In NCAA Swim

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State's versatile Buckeyes had their first NCAA swim championship since 1956—and their 11th since 1937—just about wrapped up today.

Seven events are on tonight's closing slate, but the Bucks had a huge 52-point total for the first nine, 22 ahead of runnerup Southern California, and were expected to add t otheir edge in the late going.

Steve Jackman, Minnesota's streamlined freestyler, was Friday night's standout as two new records went into the books. Minnesota scored only 18 points in last year's meet, but with Jackman splashing masterfully the Gophers were firmly in third place this time with 27.

Jackman broke the 50 - yard freestyle record, both intercollegiate and NCAA, twice. The Gopher great wheeled through the qualifier in 21.3 to break both, then took the final in 21.1. In the evening's finale, the 400 - yard freestyle relay, Jackman contributed a 46.9-second anchor which brought Minnesota from far back into a tie with Michigan State in a race which erased all the old records.

Jay Hebert Has Stroke Lead In Azalea Tourney

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Jay Hebert, a professional with perhaps the most mispronounced name in golf, moved into the third round of the $20,000 Azalea Open Tournament today with a one-stroke lead.

The 39-year-old Louisiana native, who pronounces his name "aye-bear," carded a 69, 3-under-par, for a 137 total to lead National Open champion Gene Littler by one stroke.

Back of them at 139 were Jim Ferrier, the first round leader, and Dave Marr, whose second round 66 was the best round of the tournament.

Tied for fifth at 140 were Dave Ragan, Mason Rudolph, and Billy Maxwell.

A score of 148 or under was needed to make the cut for the last two days of play. Sixty-seven pros and 10 amateurs continue in the field.

The leaders:
Jay Hebert 68-69—137.
Gene Littler 70-68—138.
Jim Ferrier 67-72—139.
Dave Marr 73-66—139.

Cicada 8-5 Favorite To Win Florida Derby

By GENE PLOWDEN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Cicada matches her tremendous speed against that of 10 colts in the mile and a furlong Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park today with a crowd of about 25,000 expected.

Cicada, 2-year-old champion filly in 1961, has never been out of the money in her 19 races and was 8-5 favorite over such promising derby-age colts as Ridan, Admiral's Voyage, Sharp Count, Black Beard, Good Fight, Rough Note, Doctor Hank K., Boone Co., Princegret, and Puss n Boots.

"She's a real good filly and has a good chance with these colts," said trainer J. H. (Casey) Hayes.

Cicada was a supplementary nominee for Sir Gaylord, who injured an ankle in late February but was back in training and will be pointed for the Kentucky Derby. Cicada also was nominated for the May classic and other triple crown events.

Boone Co. also was a supplementary nominee in the Florida Derby. Owner Glenn Stevens said the colt improved considerably since the nominations closed last month.

"I've taken a bigger gamble than that," Stevens said, referring to his paying $5,000 to make his colt eligible to run for the top purse of $85,800.

Rival trainers generally picked Ridan as the horse to beat, on the theory that a good colt is bigger, stronger and usually faster than a good filly.

40 Still In Running For AAU Ring Titles

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP)—Forty boxers still were in competition today in the National AAU Boxing Tournament and, for the most part, favorites remained in the running.

Tournament officials switched signals again late Friday, and for today's semifinals and finals set up 16 bouts in the afternoon and 14 at night. Pairings were to be made today.

Major upset victim in Friday's 53-bout program was Richard Sue of Portland, Ore., a 112-pound finalist last year. Sue, staggered in the second round, lost a decision to Billy Barber of St. Louis in the 119-pound category.

Injuries resulted in two verdicts.

Controversy Goes On; Paret Still In Coma

NEW YORK (AP)—While Benny (Kid) Paret continued to fight for his life, the bitter controversy over who was at fault in sending him into the ring against Emile Griffith continued today.

Paret, who was battered senseless just a week ago in losing his world welterweight championship to Griffith, continued in a "moderate coma," according to a hospital bulletin.

"There has been no change in his condition," the bulletin added.

Meanwhile, Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro, and the New York State Athletic Commission hurled charges and counter-charges at each other.

Alfaro said he agreed to the third in the series of Paret-Griffith bouts because the commission "kept after me."

He added that he did not want Paret to fight Griffith. Paret had been knocked out by Gene Fullmer in a middleweight championship bout in December. When he was carried out of the Madison Square Garden ring after the Griffith bout, speculation immediately arose that he was back too soon after the Fullmer fight.

"I wanted him to stay out of action for another three months then fight Jorge Fernandez of Argentina," said Alfaro.

Gen. Melvin L. Kruelwitch, chairman of the commission, denied exerting any pressure on Alfaro.

Paret's 56-year-old mother, Mrs. Maxima Crespo, arrived by plane from Havana Friday night and rushed to her son's bedside. She said she would remain until Paret gets well.

Mrs. Lucy Paret, the boxer's wife, who also has been maintaining a vigil at her husband's bedside, said she though he looked "much better."

Brown Confident Ninowski Will Play For Browns In Fall

DETROIT (AP)—Paul Brown, one of pro football's most persuasive talkers, is confident Jim Ninowski will change his mind and play for the Cleveland Browns next fall.

The Cleveland coach and the quarterback he acquired in Thursday's three-for - three deal with the Detroit Lions held a two-hour airport huddle here Friday.

Brown promised Ninowski he'd be No. 1 at Cleveland. And Ninowski promised he'd think it over.

"I've got a lot of things to think about," said Ninowski, former Michigan State star who lives in Detroit and doesn't want to play elsewhere. "We're still far apart."

Ninowski had threatened to quit the National Football League rather than go back to Cleveland, where his pro career started.

"There is no doubt in my mind that when the time comes next fall Jim Ninowski will be playing football in Cleveland," Brown said.

With Milt Plum dealt to Detroit in the big trade, the first-string Cleveland job belongs to Ninowski, Brown said.

Brown agreed with Coach George Wilson of the Lions that the trade will stand—even if Ninowski does quit.

Plum's fellings over the deal were similar to Ninowski's. The top passer in the NFL the past two years, Plum lives the year-round in Cleveland and also holds an off-season job there.

It's Baron's Vs. Shaffer's Trucking For Wellsville Title

Steubenville Five Edges Bright's In Overtime To Gain Finals

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Baron's Cafe of Steubenville, a team that refused to be beaten, will be around to defend its championship tonight when the Wellsville Jaycees crown the 1962 tournament winner.

The Baron five meets Shaffer Trucking of Wellsville in the title match which is billed for about 8:15. A consolation game between last night's losers — George Bright's of East Liverpool and Amo's Esso of Rochester — gets underway at 7 p.m.

Individual and team awards will be made immediately following the championship battle.

BRIGHT'S had Baron's struggling on the ropes Friday night at the Beacom Memorial Gym before the best crowd of the weeklong tournament which started with a field of 24 teams.

Baron's, which consists of Steubenville College stars of the past, was behind by four points with 14 seconds to go and its reign as champion very much in jeopardy.

The Steubenville five got a basket and brought the score down to 66-64. George Hale of Bright's took the ball out of bounds but it ended up in the possession of John Blanda of Baron's after the pass in bounds was blocked.

BLANDA took a 12-foot jump as the buzzer sounded and the ball swished the net to tie the game at 66-66 and cause an overtime.

Baron's grabbed the lead in the overtime and then hung on for the one-point victory.

Big Jim Smith, the former Little All-American, had one of his better night's in the tourney with a 24-point effort while Blanda, the hero of the contest, whipped in 19.

Tom Shaffer of Alliance, following a 40-point performance in the quarter - final round Thursday, paced Bright's again with 23 points while four other starters were in the double figures.

—:—

BRIGHT'S trailed at halftime, 38-31, but took a 52-45 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Shaffer Trucking, listing talent from Kent State University, was given a little scare late in the game, but maintained a wide margin most of the way to eliminate a smaller Amo's Esso five, 72-65.

Shaffer's jumped off to a 14-8 first quarter lead, then posted a 35-21 margin by halftime. The advantage after three periods was 52-43.

Four starters hit in the double figures for Shaffer's, with Maddox showing the way with 14.

Jim Irons, the former Monaca and Geneva standout, was high for the evening by leading Amo's attack with 27.

The strong-armed right-hander reached opening day form Friday when he became the first member of the Senators' staff to go nine innings and blanked the Kansas City A's 3-0 on a three-hitter in an exhibition at West Palm Beach.

Daniels came to the Senators from Pittsburgh after the 1960 season and became the Nats only winner in the 1961 campaign with a 12-11 record and a 3.44 earned run average.

Now in his 10th season in organized baseball, Daniels never gave up on the way to becoming a winner, reaching the majors for the first time in 1957 and hanging on with the Pirates until he was traded. His career record up to that time was an unimpressive 8-16.

But he's No. 1 with the Senators after his second fine performance in succession—he spun a three-hitter for six innings in his previous outing—and probably will be tossing the first pitch toward the plate at Washington's new D.C. Stadium, April 9.

Daniels struck out three and walked only two as he set the A's down while Dale Long furnished him with the only run he needed.

Meanwhile, Houston edged San Francisco 6-5 in 10 innings at Phoenix, and the Chicago Cubs outslugged Boston 10-8 at Scottsdale to remain in a tie for the top spot in the National League with 13-7 records. The New York Yankees, who lost to Baltimore 9-3 in a night game at Miami, lead the AL with a 14-6 mark.

In other games, Cincinnati beat Detroit 8-1 at Tampa, Chicago's White Sox edged Minnesota 6-5 at Orlando, Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 5-4 at Fort Myers, the Los Angeles Angels beat Cleveland 4-3 at Palm Springs and the New York Mets nipped Philadelphia 2-1 in 10 innings at St. Petersburg.

Orlando Cepeda's fifth homer gave the Giants a 2-0 lead, but a homer barrage by the Colts put it away. Merritt Ranew connected twice, hitting the game-winner in the 10th. A 14-hit attack plus four Red Sox errors got the job done for the Cubs despite two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Carroll Hardy.

Skinny Brown and Wes Stock checked the Yankees on six hits while a two-run homer by John (Boog) Powell and Earl Robinson's bases-loaded triple paced the Orioles' 12-hit offensive.

Cicada 8-5 Favorite To Win Florida Derby

By GENE PLOWDEN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Cicada matches her tremendous speed against that of 10 colts in the mile and a furlong Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park today with a crowd of about 25,000 expected.

Cicada, 2-year-old champion filly in 1961, has never been out of the money in her 19 races and was 8-5 favorite over such promising derby-age colts as Ridan, Admiral's Voyage, Sharp Count, Black Beard, Good Fight, Rough Note, Doctor Hank K., Boone Co., Princegret, and Puss n Boots.

"She's a real good filly and has a good chance with these colts," said trainer J. H. (Casey) Hayes.

Cicada was a supplementary nominee for Sir Gaylord, who injured an ankle in late February but was back in training and will be pointed for the Kentucky Derby. Cicada also was nominated for the May classic and other triple crown events.

Boone Co. also was a supplementary nominee in the Florida Derby. Owner Glenn Stevens said the colt improved considerably since the nominations closed last month.

"I've taken a bigger gamble than that," Stevens said, referring to his paying $5,000 to make his colt eligible to run for the top purse of $85,800.

Rival trainers generally picked Ridan as the horse to beat, on the theory that a good colt is bigger, stronger and usually faster than a good filly.

Cicada will carry 117 pounds to 122 on stakes-winning colts—Ridan, Admiral's Voyage, Sharp Count, Good Fight and Puss n Boots—in the Florida Derby, and 118 on Black Beard, Rough Note, Doctor Hank K., Boone Co., and Princegret, who have not won a stakes race.

Brown Confident Ninowski Will Play For Browns In Fall

DETROIT (AP)—Paul Brown, one of pro football's most persuasive talkers, is confident Jim Ninowski will change his mind and play for the Cleveland Browns next fall.

The Cleveland coach and the quarterback he acquired in Thursday's three-for - three deal with the Detroit Lions held a two-hour airport huddle here Friday.

Brown promised Ninowski he'd be No. 1 at Cleveland. And Ninowski promised he'd think it over.

"I've got a lot of things to think about," said Ninowski, former Michigan State star who lives in Detroit and doesn't want to play elsewhere. "We're still far apart."

Ninowski had threatened to quit the National Football League rather than go back to Cleveland, where his pro career started.

"There is no doubt in my mind that when the time comes next fall Jim Ninowski will be playing football in Cleveland," Brown said.

With Milt Plum dealt to Detroit in the big trade, the first-string Cleveland job belongs to Ninowski, Brown said.

Brown agreed with Coach George Wilson of the Lions that the trade will stand—even if Ninowski does quit.

Plum's fellings over the deal were similar to Ninowski's. The top passer in the NFL the past two years, Plum lives the year-round in Cleveland and also holds an off-season job there.

40 Still In Running For AAU Ring Titles

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP)—Forty boxers still were in competition today in the National AAU Boxing Tournament and, for the most part, favorites remained in the running.

Tournament officials switched signals again late Friday, and for today's semifinals and finals set up 16 bouts in the afternoon and 14 at night. Pairings were to be made today.

Major upset victim in Friday's 53-bout program was Richard Sue of Portland, Ore., a 112-pound finalist last year. Sue, staggered in the second round, lost a decision to Billy Barber of St. Louis in the 119-pound category.

Injuries resulted in two verdicts.

Controversy Goes On; Paret Still In Coma

NEW YORK (AP)—While Benny (Kid) Paret continued to fight for his life, the bitter controversy over who was at fault in sending him into the ring against Emile Griffith continued today.

Paret, who was battered senseless just a week ago in losing his world welterweight championship to Griffith, continued in a "moderate coma," according to a hospital bulletin.

"There has been no change in his condition," the bulletin added.

Meanwhile, Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro, and the New York State Athletic Commission hurled charges and counter-charges at each other.

Alfaro said he agreed to the third in the series of Paret-Griffith bouts because the commission "kept after me."

He added that he did not want Paret to fight Griffith. Paret had been knocked out by Gene Fullmer in a middleweight championship bout in December. When he was carried out of the Madison Square Garden ring after the Griffith bout, speculation immediately arose that he was back too soon after the Fullmer fight.

"I wanted him to stay out of action for another three months then fight Jorge Fernandez of Argentina," said Alfaro.

Gen. Melvin L. Kruelwitch, chairman of the commission, denied exerting any pressure on Alfaro.

Paret's 56-year-old mother, Mrs. Maxima Crespo, arrived by plane from Havana Friday night and rushed to her son's bedside. She said she would remain until Paret gets well.

Mrs. Lucy Paret, the boxer's wife, who also has been maintaining a vigil at her husband's bedside, said she though he looked "much better."

Kilmore Wins 121st Grand Steeplechase

AINTREE, England (AP)—Kilmore won the 121st running of the Grand National Steeplechase today on a course soaked by rain and sleet.

Wyndburgh was second, and Mr. What, winner of the world's toughest jumping race in 1958, took third place in the field of 32 starters for the four-mile, 856-yard event over 30 fences.

OSU Nears Title In NCAA Swim

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State's versatile Buckeyes had their first NCAA swim championship since 1956—and their 11th since 1937—just about wrapped up today.

Seven events are on tonight's closing slate, but the Bucks had a huge 52-point total for the first nine, 22 ahead of runnerup Southern California, and were expected to add t otheir edge in the late going.

Steve Jackman, Minnesota's streamlined freestyler, was Friday night's standout as two new records went into the books. Minnesota scored only 18 points in last year's meet, but with Jackman splashing masterfully the Gophers were firmly in third place this time with 27.

Jackman broke the 50 - yard freestyle record, both intercollegiate and NCAA, twice. The Gopher great wheeled through the qualifier in 21.3 to break both, then took the final in 21.1. In the evening's finale, the 400 - yard freestyle relay, Jackman contributed a 46.9-second anchor which brought Minnesota from far back into a tie with Michigan State in a race which erased all the old records.

Jay Hebert Has Stroke Lead In Azalea Tourney

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Jay Hebert, a professional with perhaps the most mispronounced name in golf, moved into the third round of the $20,000 Azalea Open Tournament today with a one-stroke lead.

The 39-year-old Louisiana native, who pronounces his name "aye-bear," carded a 69, 3-under-par, for a 137 total to lead National Open champion Gene Littler by one stroke.

Back of them at 139 were Jim Ferrier, the first round leader, and Dave Marr, whose second round 66 was the best round of the tournament.

Tied for fifth at 140 were Dave Ragan, Mason Rudolph, and Billy Maxwell.

A score of 148 or under was needed to make the cut for the last two days of play. Sixty-seven pros and 10 amateurs continue in the field.

The leaders:
Jay Hebert 68-69—137.
Gene Littler 70-68—138.

Fisher Denies Marriage Rift

Liz Taylor, Burton Go Nightclubbing In Rome

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton went nightclubbing in Rome early today.

Earlier, Eddie Fisher, in New York, denied that his marriage with the film star was on the rocks. Miss Taylor thus far has declined to make any statement backing up Fisher's denial.

Instead, smiling happily, she and the 36-year-old Welsh-born Burton, who plays "Anthony" in "Cleopatra" went on a round of the nightspots into the dawn hours.

A photographer caught them at 3:30 a.m. at the exit of "Brick Top's," a popular Rome nightclub where they had spent two hours.

Actually, Miss Taylor and Burton—both smiling broadly — appeared almost willing to pose. Liz, dressed in a leopard-skin coat and hat, held Burton by the arm.

Then they dashed for his big American automobile and roared away, losing pursuing photographers on the road to Ostia Antica.

Miss Taylor and Burton have been reported being together frequently off the set, but this was one of the few times that they appeared publicly.

In New York Friday, Fisher admitted that his wife refused to issue a statement denying reports of their estrangement.

During a news conference at the Hotel Pierre, he said that rumors of a breakup with Miss Taylor were "preposterous, ridiculous and absolutely false."

"The only romance between Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton is Marc Antony and Cleopatra, and I might say a mighty good one," he said.

Fisher flew to New York last week, ostensibly on business. He appeared on a television show Sunday night, then dropped from sight. It was discovered that he entered Gracie Square Hospital early Monday. He left the hospital Thursday and again went into hiding. He emerged to stage his news conference.

Fisher said he entered the hospital for a rest.

The filming of "Cleopatra" began in Rome last September. Some weeks ago, rumors of a rift between the Fishers were heard, with Burton's name figuring prominently. All involved—including Burton, who also is married—denied the reports.

At about the time Fisher flew here, Mrs. Burton returned to London from Rome.

Miss Taylor previously was married to hotel heir Nicky Hilton, actor Michael Wilding and the late Broadway showman Mike Todd, who left her a widow.

Fisher was divorced from actress Debbe Reynolds, who now is married to shoe tycoon Harry Karl.

Talks Recessed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Negotiations have been recessed until Tuesday between United Auto Workers Local 1005 and General Motors Corp. in a dispute over health and safety grievances. The union represents 6,700 workers at the GM Chevrolet plant in suburban Parma.

Area Warned As Salesmen Boost Effort

Advent of pleasant spring weather has brought the usual seasonal increase in the number of door-to-door salesmen working in the East Liverpool area, offering everything from aluminum siding to photographs, the Chamber of Commerce notified householders today.

In connection with the salesmen's arrival, the Chamber issued its traditional warning: "Investigate before you invest."

The Chamber said it has been advised that itinerant photographers have been calling on homes in the outlying areas — principally LaCroft and Glenmoor. Salesmen for out-of-town aluminum siding and roofing concerns also have been active in the district, it said.

A telephone solicitation campaign also is under way, offering magazine subscriptions, the Chamber said.

Persons seeking further information on any of the concerns or their products should telephone the Chamber's community protection service, the Chamber said.

It also issued these tips to persons approached by itinerant salesmen:

Don't sign a contract for any work or merchandise until you are satisfied entirely with the terms. If in doubt on any of the provisions, consult your attorney.

Don't rely on verbal promises from the salesman; the only binding provisions are in the written contract.

Compare the estimates with a quotation from a local concern.

If you are approached by itinerant salesman who does not have a license issued by the city, notify the police department.

Another property improvement scheme that crops up in the spring is the door-to-door sale of humus or top soil by the pound or the bushel, the Chamber said. It reminded householders a small quantity of the lawn material can prove costly when purchased by the pound or bushel.

Cows with access to water consume 15 to 20 per cent more water than cows watered twice a day, say Ohio State University extension workers.

5 Face Possible Death Terms In Clumsy Slaying

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Five young men face possible death sentences in a clumsy slaying for which they claim they were hired and coached by the victim himself.

Four of the five, all Phoenix Negroes, admitted taking a retired Albany, N.Y., jeweler, Samuel L. Resnick, into the Arizona desert and tugging on opposite ends of an 18-foot rope to strangle him. The fifth told of setting it up because Resnick said he had an unbearably painful, incurable cancer and wanted his wife Lillian to collect $50,000 life insurance.

The cancer story is disputed by medical evidence; the insurance angle by Resnick's family. But the state says it doesn't matter. Premeditated killing still is murder, punishable by death in the gas chamber.

Held on first-degree murder charges are Clemmie Jackson, 19; his brother, R. E., 21; Ernest Spurlock, 29; John Henry Lewis Jones, 21, and Jesse Tillis, 19.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR SON CHARLES DEAN TICE, WHO PASSED AWAY APRIL 1ST, 1961.
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTER.

IN memory of Charles D. Tice who left us one year ago today March 31, 1961.
When the evening shades are falling,
And I'm sitting all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing
If you only could come home.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much I miss you yet.
Altho your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain,
This world would seem like Heaven
If I had you back again.
God gives us strength to carry on
And courage to heal the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
You bid no one a last farewell
Or even said goodbye
You were gone before we knew it
And only God knows why.
Sadly missed by your wife Cleda and Family.

Fisher Denies Marriage Rift

Liz Taylor, Burton Go Nightclubbing In Rome

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton went nightclubbing in Rome early today.

Earlier, Eddie Fisher, in New York, denied that his marriage with the film star was on the rocks. Miss Taylor thus far has declined to make any statement backing up Fisher's denial.

Instead, smiling happily, she and the 36-year-old Welsh-born Burton, who plays "Anthony" in "Cleopatra" went on a round of the nightspots into the dawn hours.

A photographer caught them at 3:30 a.m. at the exit of "Brick Top's," a popular Rome nightclub where they had spent two hours.

Actually, Miss Taylor and Burton—both smiling broadly — appeared almost willing to pose. Liz, dressed in a leopard-skin coat and hat, held Burton by the arm.

Then they dashed for his big American automobile and roared away, losing pursuing photographers on the road to Ostia Antica.

Miss Taylor and Burton have been reported being together frequently off the set, but this was one of the few times that they appeared publicly.

In New York Friday, Fisher admitted that his wife refused to issue a statement denying reports of their estrangement.

During a news conference at the Hotel Pierre, he said that rumors of a breakup with Miss Taylor were "preposterous, ridiculous and absolutely false."

"The only romance between Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton is Marc Antony and Cleopatra, and I might say a mighty good one," he said.

Fisher flew to New York last week, ostensibly on business. He appeared on a television show Sunday night, then dropped from sight. It was discovered that he entered Gracie Square Hospital early Monday. He left the hospital Thursday and again went into hiding. He emerged to stage his news conference.

Fisher said he entered the hospital for a rest.

The filming of "Cleopatra" began in Rome last September. Some weeks ago, rumors of a rift between the Fishers were heard, with Burton's name figuring prominently. All involved—including Burton, who also is married—denied the reports.

At about the time Fisher flew here, Mrs. Burton returned to London from Rome.

Miss Taylor previously was married to hotel heir Nicky Hilton, actor Michael Wilding and the late Broadway showman Mike Todd, who left her a widow.

Fisher was divorced from actress Debbe Reynolds, who now is married to shoe tycoon Harry Karl.

Talks Recessed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Negotiations have been recessed until Tuesday between United Auto Workers Local 1005 and General Motors Corp. in a dispute over health and safety grievances. The union represents 6,700 workers at the GM Chevrolet plant in suburban Parma.

Area Warned As Salesmen Boost Effort

Advent of pleasant spring weather has brought the usual seasonal increase in the number of door-to-door salesmen working in the East Liverpool area, offering everything from aluminum siding to photographs, the Chamber of Commerce notified householders today.

In connection with the salesmen's arrival, the Chamber issued its traditional warning: "Investigate before you invest."

The Chamber said it has been advised that itinerant photographers have been calling on homes in the outlying areas — principally LaCroft and Glenmoor. Salesmen for out-of-town aluminum siding and roofing concerns also have been active in the district, it said.

A telephone solicitation campaign also is under way, offering magazine subscriptions, the Chamber said.

Persons seeking further information on any of the concerns or their products should telephone the Chamber's community protection service, the Chamber said.

It also issued these tips to persons approached by itinerant salesmen:

Don't sign a contract for any work or merchandise until you are satisfied entirely with the terms. If in doubt on any of the provisions, consult your attorney.

Don't rely on verbal promises from the salesman; the only binding provisions are in the written contract.

Compare the estimates with a quotation from a local concern.

If you are approached by itinerant salesman who does not have a license issued by the city, notify the police department.

Another property improvement scheme that crops up in the spring is the door-to-door sale of humus or top soil by the pound or the bushel, the Chamber said. It reminded householders a small quantity of the lawn material can prove costly when purchased by the pound or bushel.

Cows with access to water consume 15 to 20 per cent more water than cows watered twice a day, say Ohio State University extension workers.

5 Face Possible Death Terms In Clumsy Slaying

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Five young men face possible death sentences in a clumsy slaying for which they claim they were hired and coached by the victim himself.

Four of the five, all Phoenix Negroes, admitted taking a retired Albany, N.Y., jeweler, Samuel L. Resnick, into the Arizona desert and tugging on opposite ends of an 18-foot rope to strangle him. The fifth told of setting it up because Resnick said he had an unbearably painful, incurable cancer and wanted his wife Lillian to collect $50,000 life insurance.

The cancer story is disputed by medical evidence; the insurance angle by Resnick's family. But the state says it doesn't matter. Premeditated killing still is murder, punishable by death in the gas chamber.

Held on first-degree murder charges are Clemmie Jackson, 19; his brother, R. E., 21; Ernest Spurlock, 29; John Henry Lewis Jones, 21, and Jesse Tillis, 19.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR SON CHARLES DEAN TICE, WHO PASSED AWAY APRIL 1ST, 1961.
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTER.

IN memory of Charles D. Tice who left us one year ago today March 31, 1961.
When the evening shades are falling,
And I'm sitting all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing
If you only could come home.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much I miss you yet.
Altho your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain
This world would seem like Heaven
If I had you back again.
God gives us strength to carry on
And courage to heal the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
You bid no one a last farewell
Or even said goodbye
You were gone before we knew it
And only God knows why.
Sadly missed by your wife Cleda and Family.

GET AWAY!
(from the noise and traffic)

Here's a nice 44 acre farm out on the SPRUCEDALE ROAD with a stocked lake and a 6 year old house on it that should satisfy that urge to be alone. The house has 4 bedrooms and bath, custom kitchen, attached garage, full basement with good coal furnace. Owner would like $15,000 for the whole thing or $13,500 and he'll keep 32 acres.

OR here's a smaller place closer in. This five room brick home is located on paved road in CALCUTTA and has 1½ baths, two bedrooms, oil furnace, huge attached 2-car garage, enclosed breezeway, comfy livingroom with open fireplace, diningroom, modern kitchen. Owner will let the house and about an acre of nice ground go for $16,500. EXTRA LAND AVAILABLE.

JUST OUTSIDE CITY LIMITS BUT HAS CITY WATER AND SEWER: This little cottage is cute as can be with its big yard and fruit trees. It has two bedrooms and bath, carpeted livingroom, big cheery kitchen. It's heated by an oil furnace. Garage is in the basement. OWNER TRANSFERRED TO CLEVELAND AND MUST HAVE QUICK SALE. NOW ASKING $15,000.

WOULD YOU BUY A HOME IF YOU COULD GET ONE FOR ONLY $2,000? It may sound fantastic but WE HAVE ONE! It's up on SHADYSIDE OVERLOOKING THE CITY. Of course it needs fixing up but WE'RE NOT KIDDING ABOUT THAT PRICE. ¾ acre of ground goes with it.

(from the noise and traffic)

Here's a nice 44 acre farm out on the SPRUCEDALE ROAD with a stocked lake and a 6 year old house on it that should satisfy that urge to be alone. The house has 4 bedrooms and bath, custom kitchen, attached garage, full basement with good coal furnace. Owner would like $15,000 for the whole thing or $13,500 and he'll keep 32 acres.

OR here's a smaller place closer in. This five room brick home is located on paved road in CALCUTTA and has 1½ baths, two bedrooms, oil furnace, huge attached 2-car garage, enclosed breezeway, comfy livingroom with open fireplace, diningroom, modern kitchen. Owner will let the house and about an acre of nice ground go for $16,500. EXTRA LAND AVAILABLE.

JUST OUTSIDE CITY LIMITS BUT HAS CITY WATER AND SEWER: This little cottage is cute as can be with its big yard and fruit trees. It has two bedrooms and bath, carpeted livingroom, big cheery kitchen. It's heated by an oil furnace. Garage is in the basement. OWNER TRANSFERRED TO CLEVELAND AND MUST HAVE QUICK SALE. NOW ASKING $15 000.

WOULD YOU BUY A HOME IF YOU COULD GET ONE FOR ONLY $2,000? It may sound fantastic but WE HAVE ONE! It's up on SHADYSIDE OVERLOOKING THE CITY. Of course it needs fixing up but WE'RE NOT KIDDING ABOUT THAT PRICE. ¾ acre of ground goes with it.

BRIDGES

QUESTION: "What is the longest suspension bridge in the world?

ANSWER: That is the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco. Spanning 4,200 feet, it is the world's longest suspension bridge. It seems quite different from the bridge pictured above, but the two are built upon the same principle. The bridge in the illustration is an early suspension bridge. The most important part of it are the top two ropes. The man crossing the river uses the two upper ropes for handrails. These two ropes are secured on each bank. Then other ropes are hung in a V-shape from the top ones, to a lower rope that gives the man something to walk upon. Modern suspension bridges, such as the Golden Gate and the George Washington Bridge in New York City, are slightly more elaborate. The top and side ropes are steel cables, and instead of a rope or two of twisted grasses to walk upon, there is a great asphalt, steel and concrete platform. There is another important addition to the primitive bridge. Obviously, a bridge made out of two steel cables slung loosely over 4,200 feet is bound to swing a good deal in high winds, so suspension bridges of today are secured at special points upon towers. The towers are concrete blocks sunk into the water and rising several hundred feet into the air. These towers, with the steel cables draped over them, give the bridges their majestic beauty.

FOR YOU TO DO: Suspension bridges are part of a group called "fixed bridges." Others in this group include simple and continuous span, arch and cantilever bridges. Find out how each type of bridge is built.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What can I do about some bluing spots on white materials?

A. Bluings differ chemically and any spots due to them require different treatments. Cold water is a general method. Dampening the spot with alcohol before laundering will usually remove the stain. If the stain is persistent, oxalic acid may be used.

Q. What can I do when the handle of an umbrella persists in coming off every time the umbrella is used?

A. Fill the cavity in the handle with some melted alum, and then quickly press the stick into it, holding it firmly until it sets.

Q. How can I freshen my white kid gloves?

A. Slip them on your hands and rub some moistened bread crumbs or white cornmeal between the palms and fingers. Polish with a cotton-flannel cloth.

Q. How can I clean bottles whose insides are badly water-stained?

A. By filling the bottles with water and adding a teaspoonful of baking soda, or add broken eggshells to a soda solution, and then shake well.

Q. How can I make a "dustless" dustcloth?

A. Dip clean dustcloths into a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of linseed oil or vegetable oil and one pint of gasoline or benzine. Hang these cloths outside in the shade to dry before using.

Q. How can I renovate a pot lid that has lost its knob?

A. A sharp-pointed screw thrust up through the hole and into a cork will put it back into the knob class. The cork is heatproof, too.

New Building Hits $15,625

New construction and remodeling estimated to cost $15,625 got under way in East Liverpool in March, according to building permits issued by Mayor Bert H. Goodballet's office.

An $8,000 project in East End topped the 10 permits. February permits hit $389,800 — boosted by the Ohio Power Co.'s plans to erect a $356,000 substation in Klondyke as well as a $30,000 business building remodeling in the downtown area.

The March permits, the estimated costs, the persons to whom they were issued and the work authorized:

Volino Construction Co., to erect a one-sotry concrete block building on Railroad St. for the Birch Equipment and Machine Co., $8,000.

Milton Kittle, to enclose a porch on a house at 1038 Edgewood Ave., $75.

Potters Construction Co., to remodel a home in Highland Colony, $500.

Same, to repair fire damage to a home at 926 Kent St., $3,000.

Same, to do remodeling work at the Dawson Funeral Home, 215 W. 5th St., $400.

John C. McCaughtry, to repair a garage at 815 Chester Ave., $150.

George F. Anderson, to erect a concrete block foundation on Park Way, $500.

Alvin Dickey, to place siding and downspouts on a building at 509-511 Elm St., $1,000.

Edward Medrovich, to remodel building at Washington and E. 5th Sts., $700.

Francis H. Lang Chosen For Post In Pension Board

Atty. Francis H. Lang Friday night was named a member of the Board of Trustees of the Police Pension Fund, filling the vacancy created by the recent death of Atty. Jason H. Brookes.

In a reorganization that followed, O. Earl Greenawalt, former mayor and Municipal Court bailiff, was elected chairman, the post which Atty. Brookes held for many years. Atty. Lang was named vice chairman and Patrolman Charles E. (Bill) Tice was returned as secretary.

Atty. Lang and Greenawalt are the two members of the board representing the public. Officer Tice and Patrolman K. H. Mooney are police department representatives elected by their fellow officers. Councilmen George E. Willshaw and Floyd Murray represent the city. They are selected by Council President Charles N. Edwards.

The reorganization meeting was held in Atty. Lang's office in the Potters Savings & Loan Building. It was the second reorganization of the board forced by death in recent months. Earlier, death claimed Lt. Micheal Winter Jr., a police department representative and secretary of the board.

Union Official Cleared Of Misusing Funds

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—An official of Teamsters Local 377 here has been cleared by Cleveland Joint Teamsters Council 41 of five charges of misusing union funds.

He is John J. Angelo, secretary-treasurer of Local 377, who had been found guilty by a local trial board, which ordered his immediate removal from the union in December.

Angelo appealed to the Cleveland group headed by William Presser. International Teamsters president James R. Hoffa granted Angelo a stay of execution pending outcome of his appeal.

Informed of the council action, Angelo said: "The decision points out that the charges against me were politically motivated . . . completely vindicates me and proves . . . that charges were without foundation."

Sewer Plant Head Speaks

Charles Huddlestun discussed legal aspects of sewage treatment as speaker at the Lions Club luncheon Friday noon in the Travelers Hotel.

The superintendent of the municipal sewage disposal plant said the seven objectives for treating waste at disposal plants include preventing diseases, maintaining clean river water, aiding propagation and survival of fish life, conserving clean water for industrial and agricultural uses, and preventing silting of river shipping channels.

Huddlestun said modern research has not changed the fundamental principles involved in sewage treatment, but the need of personal cleanliness in community life has led to better practices.

The first treatment plant in Ohio was opened in Canton in 1893, and the state listed 325 disposal plants in January 1961, he said. They serve 391 municipalities, representing 90 per cent of the incorporated population in Ohio.

Huddlestun said less than one per cent of the community wastes not being treated in sewage plants flows into the Ohio River. Surveys have indicated game fish are returning to the river, and eight states that are members of the Ohio River Valley Sanitation Commission are attempting to control pollution through corrective steps.

He was introduced by Howard Tice, program chairman.

New Building Hits $15,625

New construction and remodeling estimated to cost $15,625 got under way in East Liverpool in March, according to building permits issued by Mayor Bert H. Goodballet's office.

An $8,000 project in East End topped the 10 permits. February permits hit $389,800 — boosted by the Ohio Power Co.'s plans to erect a $356,000 substation in Klondyke as well as a $30,000 business building remodeling in the downtown area.

The March permits, the estimated costs, the persons to whom they were issued and the work authorized:

Volino Construction Co., to erect a one-sotry concrete block building on Railroad St. for the Birch Equipment and Machine Co., $8,000.

Milton Kittle, to enclose a porch on a house at 1038 Edgewood Ave., $75.

Potters Construction Co., to remodel a home in Highland Colony, $500.

Same, to repair fire damage to a home at 926 Kent St., $3,000.

Same, to do remodeling work at the Dawson Funeral Home, 215 W. 5th St., $400.

John C. McCaughtry, to repair a garage at 815 Chester Ave., $150.

George F. Anderson, to erect a concrete block foundation on Park Way, $500.

Alvin Dickey, to place siding and downspouts on a building at 509-511 Elm St., $1,000.

Edward Medrovich, to remodel building at Washington and E. 5th Sts., $700.

Francis H. Lang Chosen For Post In Pension Board

Atty. Francis H. Lang Friday ight was named a member of he Board of Trustees of the Police Pension Fund, filing the vacancy created by the recent death of Atty. Jason H. Brookes.

In a reorganization that followed, O. Earl Greenawalt, former mayor and Municipal Court bailiff, was elected chairman, the post which Atty. Brookes held for many years. Atty. Lang was named vice chairman and Patrolman Charles E. (Bill) Tice was returned as secretary.

Atty. Lang and Greenawalt are the two members of the board representing the public. Officer Tice and Patrolman K. H. Mooney are police department representatives, elected by their fellow officers. Councilmen George E. Willshaw and Floyd Murray represent the city. They are selected by Council President Charles N. Edwards.

The reorganization meeting was held in Atty. Lang's office in the Potters Savings & Loan Building. It was the second reorganization of the board forced by death in recent months. Earlier, death claimed Lt. Micheal Winter Jr., a police department representative and secretary of the board.

Union Official Cleared Of Misusing Funds

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—An official of Teamsters Local 377 here has been cleared by Cleveland Joint Teamsters Council 41 of five charges of misusing union funds.

He is John J. Angelo, secretary-treasurer of Local 377, who had been found guilty by a local trial board, which ordered his immediate removal from the union in December.

Angelo appealed to the Cleveland group headed by William Presser. International Teamsters president James R. Hoffa granted Angelo a stay of execution pending outcome of his appeal.

Informed of the council action, Angelo said: "The decision points out that the charges against me were politically motivated . . . completely vindicates me and proves . . . that charges were without foundation."

Ohio Couple Killed When Car Hits Train

GREENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A young Greenville couple died when their automobile hit a freight train at a non-signal crossing Friday night.

Melvin L. Saintignon, 27, and his wife, Shirley Mae, 25, were the victims of the mishap on the southeast side of town. Mrs. Saintignon's father, Virgil Fritz, who also was in the car when it struck the Pennsylvania Railroad train, escaped with minor injury.

Sewer Plant Head Speaks

Charles Huddlestun discussed legal aspects of sewage treatment as speaker at the Lions Club luncheon Friday noon in the Travelers Hotel.

The superintendent of the municipal sewage disposal plant said the seven objectives for treating waste at disposal plants include preventing diseases, maintaining clean river water, aiding propagation and survival of fish life, conserving clean water for industrial and agricultural uses, and preventing silting of river shipping channels.

Huddlestun said modern research has not changed the fundamental principles involved in sewage treatment, but the need of personal cleanliness in community life has led to better practices.

The first treatment plant in Ohio was opened in Canton in 1893, and the state listed 325 disposal plants in January 1961, he said. They serve 391 municipalities, representing 90 per cent of the incorporated population in Ohio.

Huddlestun said less than one per cent of the community wastes not being treated in sewage plants flows into the Ohio River. Surveys have indicated game fish are returning to the river, and eight states that are members of the Ohio River Valley Sanitation Commission are attempting to control pollution through corrective steps.

He was introduced by Howard Tice, program chairman.

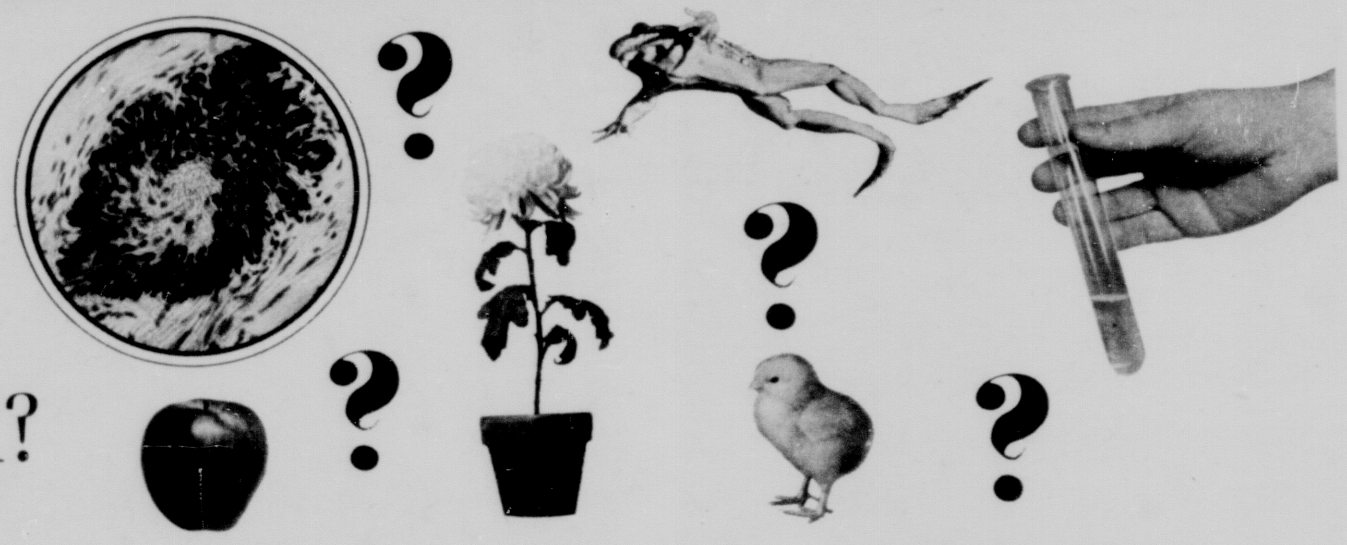
WHERE IS THE CURE FOR CANCER?



A quarter-century of intense research has saved the lives of many victims—yet this disease remains our No. 2 killer, with the major breakthrough still to come By CURTIS MITCHELL

THIS APRIL is Cancer Control Month. This year, by decree of the President of the United States, is Cancer Progress Year. It recognizes 25 years of fighting the nation's No. 2 killer.

What kind of progress does it commemorate?

For an answer, turn back to 1961. That was a year when 510,000 new cancer cases were diagnosed and 270,000 cancer victims died.

It was a year when laymen and scientists agreed that no Dr. Jonas Salk was likely to emerge with a cure-all vaccine and that progress would be made only by nibbling endlessly at the edges of ignorance.

It was a year in which Congress, seeking answers, gave more than $100 million in tax money to the National Cancer Institute's research projects; and the two million volunteers of the American Cancer Society collected another $30 million contributed in nickels, dimes, and dollars.

But there was no complete answer, neither for victims nor for the untouched, except to repeat the dismal statistics which confront us all.

For instance, in an average city of 100,000, this will happen in 1962: 280 people will develop new cancers; 150 others will die.

And two out of three families in town—one in every four persons—will be attacked by cancer at some time or other.

Progress is slow, but progress is being made.

In 1937—25 years ago—when Congress founded the National Cancer Institute, of seven persons struck down, only one lived. Today, one out of three survives.

In 1937, when the American Cancer Society began its first educational campaign, only 160,000 survivors were alive after five years to prove that cancer could be licked. Today, the survivors number 1,100,000. Last year alone, 170,000 new victors were considered "cured."

Research and education are turning the tide. We now know enough about uterine cancer to save practically all of the 32,000 women who will be attacked by it this year—provided they co-operate. A detection technique, called the "Pap" smear and invented by Dr. George N. Papanicolaou, makes early discovery possible. Last year, eight million women took this test. Sixty million should have taken it. If they had, fatal cancer of the uterus and cervix could be almost wiped out.

In other areas the future is clouded. Lung cancer will afflict 45,000 persons this year, mostly men, and kill about 39,000. Leukemia, a cancer of the blood-forming tissues, will hit—and kill—16,000 persons.

Cancer of the colon and rectum will probably strike 72,000 and kill 40,000. And 31,000 men will develop cancer of the prostate; one half will die.

AGAINST this gloomy backdrop, we can see a few hopeful sparks. Last year, for example, saw the imaginative use of a technique for flooding cancerous organs with doses of drugs so strong they would kill any ordinary man. Surgeons first tightened a tourniquet to stop blood from flowing into the afflicted arm, leg, or organ. Then they opened the body and severed the artery and vein supplying the area. To these supply pipes, they connected a heart-lung pump. As this machine circulated the isolated blood supply through the isolated organ, an anticancer drug was fed into it.

After treatment, the "used" blood was drained out and replaced, the artery and vein reconnected to the body's vascular system, and general circulation restored. The strong dose of drug had shrunk the tumor.

And in basic research it becomes clearer to many scientists that human cancer may be caused by a virus. The notion is attractive because, if it is true, a vaccine may be perfected to prevent it. Fifty years ago, Dr. Peyton Rous found that a virus caused cancer in chickens. Twenty-five years ago, it was discovered that viruses passed through the milk of mother mice to their offspring. Could it be that the killer virus might be circulating in human blood, too?

PERHAPS the biggest quest is the search for an anticancer wonder drug. Six years ago, the Government began a massive testing program. But what do you test to discover a miracle? The answer: anything! Sand, ooze, garbage, tundra, tadpoles. About 600,000 compounds have been tested; 200 of them merited clinical examination. About 20 are useful to humans. But no drug examined yet is a cure; at best, we have found only palliatives.

Nobody knows yet where the final cure or cures for cancers will be found. But cures will be found because numerous clues to a cure already are known—some have been known for many years.

A century ago, an Italian workman came to Dr. William Bradley Cole in New York. He had a cancerous lump in his neck which Doctor Cole removed surgically. After a while, the workman returned, his cancer larger than ever. Again it was removed. Presently, the man staggered back to Surgeon Cole's office for the third time with his cancer so far beyond control that another operation was out of the question.

But before he died, he was attacked by infectious erysipelas. His fever raged for days, then subsided; and with it went his "incurable" cancer, which completely healed itself.

We still are in the dark about what happened, but some day—perhaps this year or next—a dedicated scientist will unlock the mystery of the secret "cure" that may have been known to that Italian workman's body 100 years ago.

According to Bulletin L-12 of the Office of Civil Defense....

THIS IS THE DISASTER KIT EVERY FAMILY NEEDS FOR EMERGENCY ACTION

The disaster kit conforming to OCD Bulletin L-12 that makes it possible for you to take the life-saving steps your Doctor would want you to take before he arrives...

This is the Disaster Kit for Emergency Action available from Superior Hospital Supply Co. of Chicago, Ill. When 2 large and 2 small bath towels, and a bed sheet are added, this Disaster Kit meets OCD recommendations.

From radio, television and newspapers there comes a constant stream of warnings, predictions and, all too often, conflicting instructions on what to do in the event of atomic attack. Right now, most people are so confused they don't know what to do.

Forgotten by most of these self-styled experts are the common forms of disaster; accident, fire, explosion, flood, tornado and hurricane. These every day disasters are the killers that are just around the corner from every one of us.

SURVIVAL DEPENDS ON GOOD COMMON SENSE.

When disaster comes, the only thing we can do is use our God-given common-sense.

The first thing you must do, if you have even a 10 minute warning, is get your loved ones to a place that affords a degree of safety.

The second thing you can and must do, is give aid to your family.

YOUR ACTIONS IMMEDIATELY AFTER A DISASTER CAN MEAN LIFE OR DEATH FOR YOUR LOVED ONES.

To save an injured person, you must know what to do, and you must have the supplies to do it with.

The United States Government OFFICE OF CIVIL DEFENSE has recommended that every home have a DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION. (Publication L-12, revised June 1960.)

This DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION gives you the tools your Doctor would tell you are needed to help the injured members of your family survive until they could receive professional treatment.

WHY YOU NEED THE COMPLETE DISASTER KIT FOR EMERGENCY ACTION.

Bleeding, broken bones, shock, burns and suffocation, require specialized, emergency treatment. You need more than a bottle of Iodine and a couple of bandages found in the common drug store first aid kit, to help the seriously injured person.

What the Disaster Kit for Emergency Action should have according to OCD Bulletin L-12.

Office of Civil Defense recommendations include 20 items ranging from Benzalkonium Chloride Solution to sterile Carlisle surgical dressings to Castor Oil base eye drops to large wooden splints, none of which are readily available through regular retail stores, or even drug stores.

The SUPERIOR HOSPITAL SUPPLY CO. for over 20 years one of our country's leading suppliers of hospital and professional medical equipment has made this DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION available for the first time to civilian and non-professionals.

This Disaster Kit belongs in every home, school, car, office and shelter in America.

This Disaster Kit could save your life.

The DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION is packed in a heavy-duty, moisture resistant container with a handle for carrying or hanging. All items are manufactured to highest medical and professional standards. Included in each Kit are COPIES OF GOVERNMENT FIRST AID INSTRUCTIONS THAT TELL YOU HOW TO USE THE ITEMS IN THE KIT. Also included are most recent U. S. Government releases on fallout protection.

A detection technique, called the "Pap" smear and invented by Dr. George N. Papanicolaou, makes early discovery possible. Last year, eight million women took this test. Sixty million should have taken it. If they had, fatal cancer of the uterus and cervix could be almost wiped out.

In other areas the future is clouded. Lung cancer will afflict 45,000 persons this year, mostly men, and kill about 39,000. Leukemia, a cancer of the blood-forming tissues, will hit—and kill—16,000 persons.

Cancer of the colon and rectum will probably strike 72,000 and kill 40,000. And 31,000 men will develop cancer of the prostate; one half will die.

AGAINST this gloomy backdrop, we can see a few hopeful sparks. Last year, for example, saw the imaginative use of a technique for flooding cancerous organs with doses of drugs so strong they would kill any ordinary man. Surgeons first tightened a tourniquet to stop blood from flowing into the afflicted arm, leg, or organ. Then they opened the body and severed the artery and vein supplying the area. To these supply pipes, they connected a heart-lung pump. As this machine circulated the isolated blood supply through the isolated organ, an anticancer drug was fed into it.

After treatment, the "used" blood was drained out and replaced, the artery and vein reconnected to the body's vascular system, and general circulation restored. The strong dose of drug had shrunk the tumor.

And in basic research it becomes clearer to many scientists that human cancer may be caused by a virus. The notion is attractive because, if it is true, a vaccine may be perfected to prevent it. Fifty years ago, Dr. Peyton Rous found that a virus caused cancer in chickens. Twenty-five years ago, it was discovered that viruses passed through the milk of mother mice to their offspring. Could it be that the killer virus might be circulating in human blood, too?

PERHAPS the biggest quest is the search for an anticancer wonder drug. Six years ago, the Government began a massive testing program. But what do you test to discover a miracle? The answer: anything! Sand, ooze, garbage, tundra, tadpoles. About 600,000 compounds have been tested; 200 of them merited clinical examination. About 20 are useful to humans. But no drug examined yet is a cure; at best, we have found only palliatives.

Nobody knows yet where the final cure or cures for cancers will be found. But cures will be found because numerous clues to a cure already are known—some have been known for many years.

A century ago, an Italian workman came to Dr. William Bradley Cole in New York. He had a cancerous lump in his neck which Doctor Cole removed surgically. After a while, the workman returned, his cancer larger than ever. Again it was removed. Presently, the man staggered back to Surgeon Cole's office for the third time with his cancer so far beyond control that another operation was out of the question.

But before he died, he was attacked by infectious erysipelas. His fever raged for days, then subsided; and with it went his "incurable" cancer, which completely healed itself.

We still are in the dark about what happened, but some day—perhaps this year or next—a dedicated scientist will unlock the mystery of the secret "cure" that may have been known to that Italian workman's body 100 years ago.

According to Bulletin L-12 of the Office of Civil Defense...

THIS IS THE DISASTER KIT EVERY FAMILY NEEDS FOR EMERGENCY ACTION

The disaster kit conforming to OCD Bulletin L-12 that makes it possible for you to take the life-saving steps your Doctor would want you to take before he arrives...

This is the Disaster Kit for Emergency Action available from Superior Hospital Supply Co. of Chicago, Ill. When 2 large and 2 small bath towels, and a bed sheet are added, this Disaster Kit meets OCD recommendations.

From radio, television and newspapers there comes a constant stream of warnings, predictions and, all too often, conflicting instructions on what to do in the event of atomic attack. Right now, most people are so confused they don't know what to do.

Forgotten by most of these self-styled experts are the common forms of disaster; accident, fire, explosion, flood, tornado and hurricane. These every day disasters are the killers that are just around the corner from every one of us.

SURVIVAL DEPENDS ON GOOD COMMON SENSE.

When disaster comes, the only thing we can do is use our God-given common-sense.

The first thing you must do, if you have even a 10 minute warning, is get your loved ones to a place that affords a degree of safety.

The second thing you can and must do, is give aid to your family.

YOUR ACTIONS IMMEDIATELY AFTER A DISASTER CAN MEAN LIFE OR DEATH FOR YOUR LOVED ONES.

To save an injured person, you must know what to do, and you must have the supplies to do it with.

The United States Government OFFICE OF CIVIL DEFENSE has recommended that every home have a DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION. (Publication L-12, revised June 1960.)

This DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION gives you the tools your Doctor would tell you are needed to help the injured members of your family survive until they could receive professional treatment.

WHY YOU NEED THE COMPLETE DISASTER KIT FOR EMERGENCY ACTION.

Bleeding, broken bones, shock, burns and suffocation, require specialized, emergency treatment. You need more than a bottle of Iodine and a couple of bandages found in the common drug store first aid kit, to help the seriously injured person.

What the Disaster Kit for Emergency Action should have according to OCD Bulletin L-12.

Office of Civil Defense recommendations include 20 items ranging from Benzalkonium Chloride Solution to sterile Carlisle surgical dressings to Castor Oil base eye drops to large wooden splints, none of which are readily available through regular retail stores, or even drug stores.

The SUPERIOR HOSPITAL SUPPLY CO. for over 20 years one of our country's leading suppliers of hospital and professional medical equipment has made this DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION available for the first time to civilian and non-professionals.

This Disaster Kit belongs in every home, school, car, office and shelter in America.

This Disaster Kit could save your life.

The DISASTER KIT for EMERGENCY ACTION is packed in a heavy-duty, moisture resistant container with a handle for carrying or hanging. Tony Curtis Photographs the Rat Pack

Sinatra, Lawford, Tony shoot it out.

Tony visited Frank Sinatra and his fellow Clansmen on the set of "Sergeants 3" and came up with these striking candids

Tony tried for a more formal picture of clansmen Dean, Peter, Frank, but someone's hand got in the way.

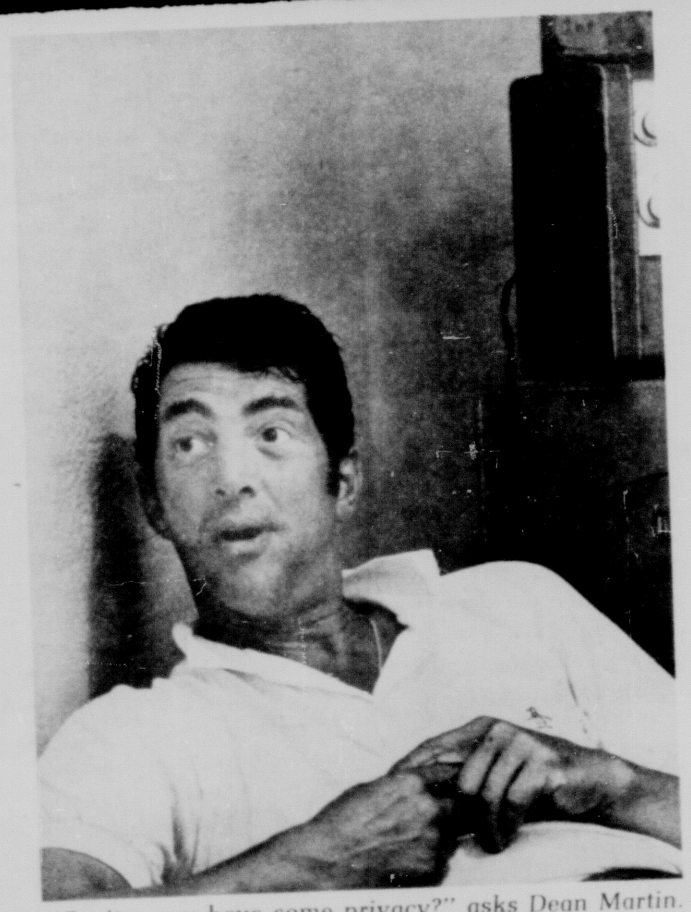
When Frank began unfolding his dramatic talent, cameraman Tony was right there with his 35 mm.

■ VERSATILE Tony Curtis is equally at home at both ends of a camera.

In front of a lens, of course, he ranks as one of Hollywood's top stars, while behind it he shoots pictures that rival the work of many professional photographers.

Some of Curtis' best work in still pictures are these which he took of his chums in the "Rat Pack" while they were making "Sergeants 3" on location in Kanab, Utah. The Pack (also known as the Clan) is the closely knit group of Hollywood elite headed by Frank Sinatra and including Dean Martin, Peter Lawford, Sammy Davis, Jr., and Joey Bishop. They have become collectively famous for carrying the doctrine of palship to a new extreme. The Clansmen and their wives visit one another's homes, party together, spark one another's opening nights, and have made two films together: "Ocean's 11" and the current "Sergeants 3."

On the Utah set, Curtis carried his 35 mm. camera with him constantly and got shots of his friends clowning, relaxing, and sometimes just acting. Among the easygoing Clansmen it's hard to tell when they're doing what, but clearly they had a great time, and Tony caught them at it.



"Can't a guy have some privacy?" asks Dean Martin.

A study in contrasts: Peter Lawford looks on intently while "Dino" clowns with deadpan Frank Sinatra.

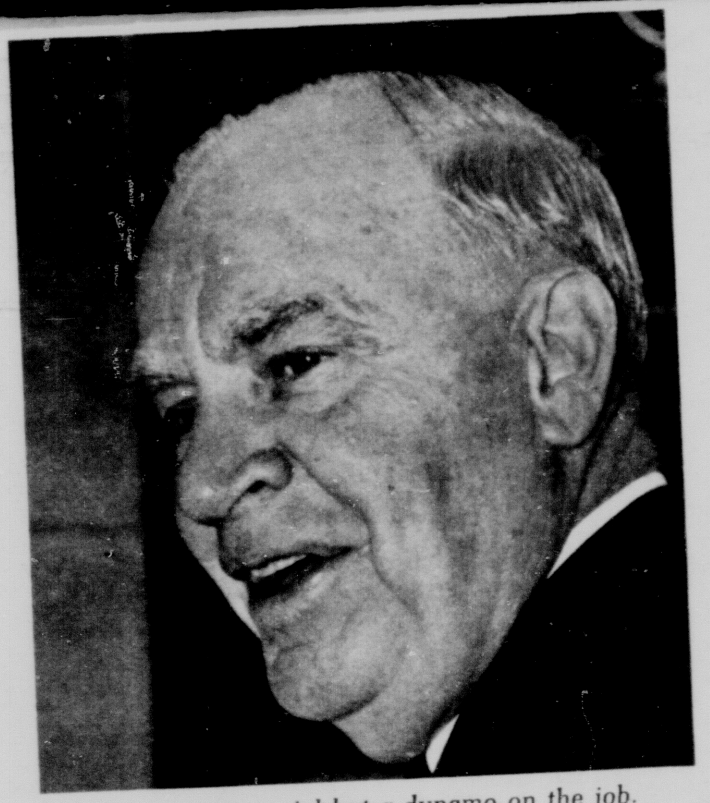
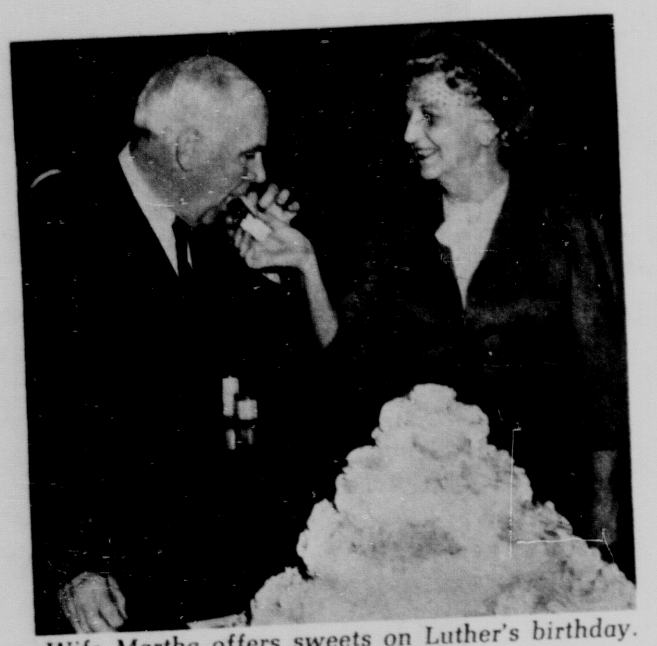
Luther Hodges— He Lives the American Dream



The Secretary is genial but a dynamo on the job.



Wife Martha offers sweets on Luther's birthday.

IN 1914, the 16 year-old son of a tenant farmer began his career selling newspapers, magazines, candy, and popcorn on the main-line trains between Roanoke and Norfolk, Va.

Going east on train No. 4 as far as Suffolk, he would catch No. 3 to return to Roanoke. "I prayed," he recalls, "that just once we would miss connections with No. 3 at Suffolk so I could go on to Norfolk and see both a large city and the ocean. I had never seen either."

One day this dream was fulfilled. Arriving in Norfolk at night, he was permitted a day's layover in the city. Sleeping in a 25-cent flophouse room with a dozen other persons, he clutched the railway's money bags for fear they would be snatched from him. When day came, he wandered about the city, took a long look at the ocean, and dreamed of worlds beyond.

This boy, who today is Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, not only dreamed but acted. It would be hard to find a sharper exemplification of the American dream, of an ascent from rags to riches, from obscurity to eminence.

Secretary Hodges was born March 9, 1898, in a log cabin in the red-clay country of Virginia, the eighth of nine children.

The shack was on a tobacco farm where his parents were tenants. When he was two, the crops failed and the family moved to the North Carolina mill town of Leaksville. His mother, a tender, gentle woman, died when he was 11. His father, living a life of hardship, was himself harsh and unbending. The boy's life was one of great stress. "We never even celebrated Christmas," Luther Hodges told me.

In the Rev. P. H. Gwynn, a Presbyterian minister, he found a friend who saw his value and gave him encouragement. So intense was the boy's affinity for his mentor, a classics scholar, that the boy made straight A's in Greek and Latin. "This boy will some day be governor of the state," the Rev. Mr. Gwynn predicted.

Luther's father, however, opposed his son's going to college. None of his brothers had—why should he? When he was 16, Luther did not have funds to complete high school, but he was determined to get a job, raise money, then continue his education. At the invitation of his sister, Mrs. S. F. Crews, wife of a railroad brakeman, he went to live with her in Roanoke, where he landed the job as a candy butcher.

Hodges worked his way through high school, then the University of North Carolina. He waited tables, fired furnaces, ran a clothes-pressing club, sold Bibles door to door, and worked in a textile plant. Despite all this, he made the basketball team, managed the baseball team, and was elected president of both the student council and the senior class. He was voted "best all-around man on campus."

He also found time to go a-courting. He met the lady of his dreams in the spring of 1919. Though Luther was just a senior, the Rev. Mr. Gwynn had arranged for him to deliver the commencement address at the Leaksville High School. On the platform with him was the lady—Martha Blakeney, a teacher.

"I saw a pretty brown-haired girl dressed in organdy," he recalls. "I had to have a date with her. And I did."

"Oh, Luther Hodges is all right," Martha Blakeney told a friend, "but he's not the kind of man I'd marry." When he did ask her to marry him, her answer was: "I love you very much, but I've had a hard time, and I won't marry a man who earns under $3,000 a year."

"This came as a surprise but not a permanent setback," Hodges told me. "She had lost her mother early and had to struggle. Just the same, she cashed in everything she had for our wedding, June 24, 1922."

The Hodges have enjoyed a comfortable camaraderie. As E. L. Rankin, Jr., his press secretary for six years, puts it, "The Hodges are very frank with each other. He talks things over with her, she tells him what she thinks, he values her opinion—and makes up his own mind."

The Great Career Begins

Hodges, who as a prospective bridegroom earned $83 a month, rose steadily in the business world. He organized the first personnel department in the textile mills owned by Marshall Field and Co., and by 1943 he was a vice president of the company.

By 1950 he was earning more than $75,000 a year, but he also was looking to new horizons. "Making money is the easiest thing men do," he told Gen. Capus Waynick, a friend.

"I told myself," he reminisces, "you're over 50. If you're going to do it, better do it now."

He resigned from Marshall Field, and the Hodges moved to West Germany, where he served as chief of our Economic Cooperation Administration's industry division.

When a friend suggested he try politics in 1952, Hodges, a political novice, entered the fray to become a candidate for North Carolina's lieutenant governor, and won. Gov. William B. Umstead died two years later, and Hodges succeeded. He was 56.

On his first day in office, he faced a bank of push buttons on his desk in Raleigh. "Partly for devilment and partly to find out what would happen, I began punching them," he recalls. "People started coming in from back offices and everywhere. I was brand-new and didn't even know them. I said, 'What do you do, and why do you do it?' That was the basic approach, and mitted at a much lower fee.

On Nov. 22 when a stretcher was brought to my room to transfer me, I grabbed my father's arm and hauled myself to my feet. "I'll walk out!" I said. And with Dad's help, I made it—only as far as the corridor, true, but it was part of the promise I made to myself to walk again sooner than anyone expected.

The Institute's policy is to put patients in four-bed rooms, and my roommates were much worse off than I was. I couldn't feel too sorry for myself: a girl of 15 had been pushed into an empty swimming pool during a playful scuffle and her neck was broken, resulting in almost total paralysis; a girl of 17 was totally paralyzed from the waist down, the aftermath of an automobile accident; a woman of 35 was an amputee. There I was with no parts of my body missing and with a good chance of making all of them work again!

THE ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR, Dr. Donald Covalt, made it very clear to me right from the beginning that I was facing the hardest work of my life. "Pat," he said, "we can't spoon-feed rehabilitation. You'll have to work for every step of progress with everything you've got, and then you'll have to work some more."

I was put "on program" almost immediately, and for the first few weeks I was too exhausted to stay up past 8:30 p.m. Classes began promptly at 9 and, except for lunch, went right through to 4.

My first session was mat class, where I worked on exercises to strengthen my arms and legs, back and tummy. The second hour was devoted to physiotherapy to extend the range of motion in all my joints. Next came occupational therapy to re-educate my muscles and improve hand-to-eye coordination. After the lunch break, the afternoon classes were devoted to speech therapy, ambulation, and more exercise.

For awhile my biggest block was in learning to feed myself. I was so clumsy in handling a spoon or a fork that I was always spilling mashed potatoes or green peas down my blouse. I insisted on eating in my room, sitting in a chair with my face turned to the wall. But my roommate with the broken neck soon cured me of this self-consciousness. She ate with me, and the two of us would explode laughing at the mess we were making of ourselves.

It wasn't long before the self-help lab devised a fork for me bent to an angle that was right for my range of motion and with a knoblike affair on the handle for me to grasp. I became pretty good at spearing my food without slopping it.

I didn't wait for permission to get out of my wheel chair. One day I just decided I didn't need it anymore. I held onto the walls and shuffled my way to classes.

That evening I stood beside the elevator on my floor and waited for my dad to step out. I walked with him to my room, and he was as proud as though I had just been crowned Miss America.

Any patient who can prove to the doctors' and therapists' satisfaction that he is able to manage an activity is given permission to go ahead and try it. I set to work proving that I could walk in the streets, cross the road before the red light changed, and get aboard a bus. My therapist went with me on these tryouts, and I did everything under her observing eyes. Finally, I was checked out for short excursions.

MY ROOMMATE, the 35-year-old amputee, and I decided to take the bus and go shopping. If people stared at us, we were too busy to notice—my friend with her crutches and I shuffling after her, favoring my right leg, which was always stronger than the left. But we swung aboard a bus and made it to the store, where my friend's crutches cleared the aisles for us. Then we pooled our money on a taxi and came safely back as elated as the team that climbed Mt. Everest.

On March 3, 1961, after 3½ months at the Institute, I was discharged. At home, my parents and two kid brothers, Tommy, 14, and Michael, 9, did not let me rest on my laurels. I admit I wanted to be babied a bit, but they did me the great favor of not doing it. I had definite chores to do: straightening up downstairs with the vacuum, washing dishes, helping with supper, going to market.

MY GREATEST ambition was to drive my car. Mother was frightened of the idea, but Dad felt I could do it. He took me through all the paces over and over again, testing my reaction time, and soon I was a licensed driver again.

After a two-week checkup visit to the Institute last July, I have a clearer picture of what I must do to complete my recovery.

I have speech lessons at home with a private instructor twice a week. I wear a special brace on my left thumb for driving, and I still have trouble handling small objects like coins. My left leg drags just a bit, and I won't be able to read until I can be fitted with corrective lenses. My handwriting is still large and scraggly with an uphill slant, but my typewriter practice is coming along very well.

On my rebirthday party last Oct. 2, I thought of those 132 activities of daily living I had to relearn, and I felt nothing but the deepest joy and gratitude at how incredibly lucky I'd been.

I no longer ask why did this have to happen to me. I think only of the miracle of having all my five senses back, and I pray to God for the strength and courage to make a complete recovery. I believe that He must have had some good reason for pulling me through and that I will have my chance at a full life as a whole woman.

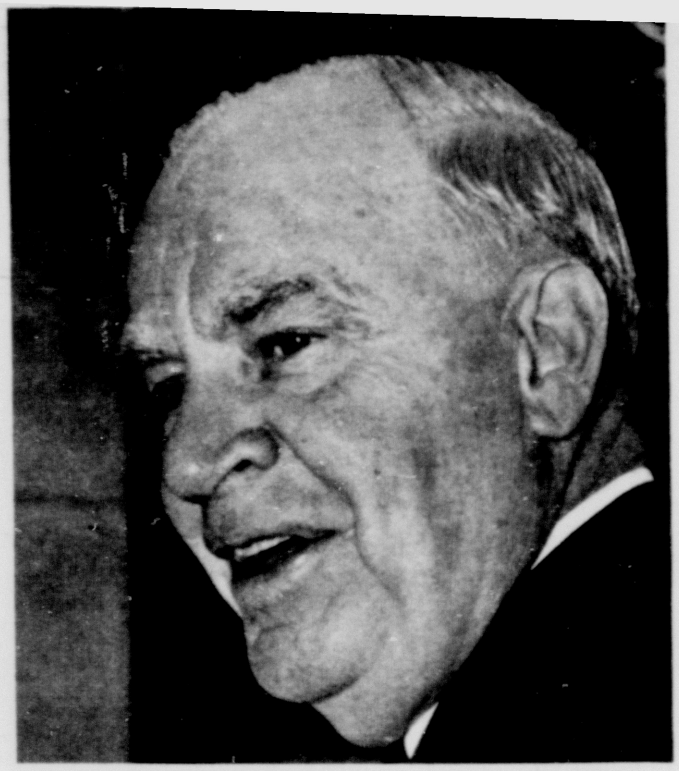
Luther Hodges—He Lives the American Dream



The Secretary is genial but a dynamo on the job.

Wife Martha offers sweets on Luther's birthday.

IN 1914, the 16 year-old son of a tenant farmer began his career selling newspapers, magazines, candy, and popcorn on the main-line trains between Roanoke and Norfolk, Va.

Going east on train No. 4 as far as Suffolk, he would catch No. 3 to return to Roanoke. "I prayed," he recalls, "that just once we would miss connections with No. 3 at Suffolk so I could go on to Norfolk and see both a large city and the ocean. I had never seen either."

One day this dream was fulfilled. Arriving in Norfolk at night, he was permitted a day's layover in the city. Sleeping in a 25-cent flophouse room with a dozen other persons, he clutched the railway's money bags for fear they would be snatched from him. When day came, he wandered about the city, took a long look at the ocean, and dreamed of worlds beyond.

This boy, who today is Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, not only dreamed but acted. It would be hard to find a sharper exemplification of the American dream, of an ascent from rags to riches, from obscurity to eminence.

Secretary Hodges was born March 9, 1898, in a log cabin in the red-clay country of Virginia, the eighth of nine children.

The shack was on a tobacco farm where his parents were tenants. When he was two, the crops failed and the family moved to the North Carolina mill town of Leaksville. His mother, a tender, gentle woman, died when he was 11. His father, living a life of hardship, was himself harsh and unbending. The boy's life was one of great stress. "We never even celebrated Christmas," Luther Hodges told me.

In the Rev. P. H. Gwynn, a Presbyterian minister, he found a friend who saw his value and gave him encouragement. So intense was the boy's affinity for his mentor, a classics scholar, that the boy made straight A's in Greek and Latin. "This boy will some day be governor of the state," the Rev. Mr. Gwynn predicted.

Luther's father, however, opposed his son's going to college. None of his brothers had—why should he? When he was 16, Luther did not have funds to complete high school, but he was determined to get a job, raise money, then continue his education. At the invitation of his sister, Mrs. S. F. Crews, wife of a railroad brakeman, he went to live with her in Roanoke, where he landed the job as a candy butcher.

Hodges worked his way through high school, then the University of North Carolina. He waited tables, fired furnaces, ran a clothes-pressing club, sold Bibles door to door, and worked in a textile plant. Despite all this, he made the basketball team, managed the baseball team, and was elected president of both the student council and the senior class. He was voted "best all-around man on campus."

He also found time to go a-courting. He met the lady of his dreams in the spring of 1919. Though Luther was just a senior, the Rev. Mr. Gwynn had arranged for him to deliver the commencement address at the Leaksville High School. On the platform with him was the lady—Martha Blakeney, a teacher.

"I saw a pretty brown-haired girl dressed in organdy," he recalls. "I had to have a date with her. And I did."

"Oh, Luther Hodges is all right," Martha Blakeney told a friend, "but he's not the kind of man I'd marry." When he did ask her to marry him, her answer was: "I love you very much, but I've had a hard time, and I won't marry a man who earns under $3,000 a year."

"This came as a surprise but not a permanent setback," Hodges told me. "She had lost her mother early and had to struggle. Just the same, she cashed in everything she had for our wedding, June 24, 1922."

The Hodges have enjoyed a comfortable camaraderie. As E. L. Rankin, Jr., his press secretary for six years, puts it, "The Hodges are very frank with each other. He talks things over with her, she tells him what she thinks, he values her opinion—and makes up his own mind."

The Great Career Begins

Hodges, who as a prospective bridegroom earned $83 a month, rose steadily in the business world. He organized the first personnel department in the textile mills owned by Marshall Field and Co., and by 1943 he was a vice president of the company.

By 1950 he was earning more than $75,000 a year, but he also was looking to new horizons. "Making money is the easiest thing men do," he told Gen. Capus Waynick, a friend.

"I told myself," he reminisces, "you're over 50. If you're going to do it, better do it now."

He resigned from Marshall Field, and the Hodges moved to West Germany, where he served as chief of our Economic Cooperation Administration's industry division.

When a friend suggested he try politics in 1952, Hodges, a political novice, entered the fray to become a candidate for North Carolina's lieutenant governor, and won. Gov. William B. Umstead died two years later, and Hodges succeeded. He was 56.

On his first day in office, he faced a bank of push buttons on his desk in Raleigh. "Partly for devilment and partly to find out what would happen, I began punching them," he recalls. "People started coming in from back offices and everywhere. I was brand-new and didn't even know them. I said, 'What do you do, and why do you do it?' That was the basic approach, and it created interest—and consternation."

The main theme of Hodges' administration was increasing the industrial development of North Carolina through "Operation Bootstrap." Big out-of-state industries were aggressively encouraged to set up branches in the state. Small businessmen got financial transfusions when the Governor created the Business Development Corp., with lending power of $10 million to service industries needing special help.

In 1956, Hodges entered the race for a full four-year term as governor and won in a landslide. He served longer as governor than any other man elected to that job.

It was just nine years after Luther Hodges entered politics that he was invited to Palm Beach, where President-elect Kennedy announced his appointment as Secretary of Commerce. On the plane returning from Palm Beach, the 62-year-old, silver-haired dynamo sat deep in thought. His private secretary leaned over. "Has it sunk in yet?" he asked.

Hodges raised a hand. "Don't bother me," he replied. "I've already started working."

The Hodges now live in an apartment in Washington's Woodley Place. Their children are far from home, however. Nancy, 35, the wife of John C. Finlay, an oil executive, lives in New Delhi, India. Betsy, 36, is the wife of an oil-company engineer and lives in Anacortes, Wash. Luther II, 25, is doing research in business administration at the University of North Carolina. The Hodges are proud grandparents of eight youngsters.

For all his family pride, Luther Hodges is not a demonstrative father or grandfather. "In general," says E. L. Rankin, "he is quite restrained. There are no outward displays of affection. He is sentimental, but his exterior doesn't show it. He's a very complicated man."

Hodges apparently applied his own early background to the rearing of his children. "When my son was about 10," he says, "we came home after a year in Europe, where he had been getting an allowance. I told him then, 'Your allowance will be cut when you get back to America. You will have to earn your own spending money.'"

The Hodges are urbane and cosmopolitan. They enjoy good books and cherish their associations with playwright Paul Green of the Carolina Playmakers and with Carl Sandburg.

Mrs. Hodges, who is popular with the cabinet wives, sponsors her share of public events and used to entertain extensively. Yet essentially she is not a clubwoman or a joiner. Her deepest satisfactions are in reading, bridge (which she plays with tournament skill), history, and painting still life and landscapes.

The Secretary, on the other hand, is indefatigable in fishing and hunting. Says General Waynick, "When he pulls a trigger, something is likely to drop."

He is facile, too, with a quip. Asked by a reporter when the Business Ethics Advisory Council of the Commerce Department will complete the code it began last May, he said, "About January." Asked why the delay, he replied, "It's hard to write a new Ten Commandments."

A natural extrovert and optimist, Hodges has always been a joiner. Even while he was building his career, he was active in the Methodist Church and the YMCA. He organized classes for illiterate millworkers and for 10 years taught at night. Entering politics, he developed a showman's flare. When a magazine asked him to pose in his underwear, he genially complied. Martha Hodges, more reserved than he, thought that this was too great a price for the governor of North Carolina to pay.

Early to Bed and Early to Rise . . .

Secretary Hodges is buoyantly youthful. He rises at 6 a.m., retires at 10 (at the latest, 10:30), even if there are guests. He says, "I just tell them, 'Excuse me, I'm going to bed.'" He eats lightly, and his favorite foods are white beans, turnip salad, and corn bread. He has kept his weight at 190 pounds, the same as it was when he was sworn in as governor. He doesn't smoke, and drinks very moderately.

His twin fetishes are punctuality and speed. With his associates, he is demanding. His own tempo is so fast that he wants his staff to anticipate his thoughts. He writes notes to them before leaving home in the morning and arrives at his office at 8 or 8:15 with a brief case crammed with, "Klotz: What think?—H" or "Ruder: See H." By 8:30 he expects an answer. After all, it is two hours since he thought of it!

When he loses patience, he is likely to apologize—though in an indirect way. "I've decided," he once told a secretary who had briefly fallen from grace, "that you and I shouldn't get mad at the same time."

The Only Way Is Up

Hodges assumed the post of Secretary of Commerce without illusions. He knew that for many years, in both Democratic and Republican administrations, the power of the Commerce Department had declined, that its single towering figure had been Herbert Hoover. To his new employees, he quipped: "The only way this department can go is up."

Up is where he is trying to take it. As co-chairman of the important advisory committee on labor-management (the so-called "wage-price committee"), he has developed cordial relations with the Department of Labor, which had long been hostile to Commerce. Congress, at his request, has set up the U. S. Travel Service to stimulate tourism in the United States. The Department also has assumed broader powers, with responsibility for the President's depressed-area program and with its role in developing international trade.

Hodges' job also is to reassure businessmen that the President is not antibusiness. "I want the Department of Commerce to mean to the average businessman what the Department of Labor has come to mean to labor," the Secretary told me.

Luther Hodges believes firmly that the American dream that propelled him is still a great national resource, but one that citizens must not expect to have handed them as a dole.

"It is the search for security," he told me, "that keeps men from getting ahead. If they would stop thinking of punching the clock, work for the love of work, and not be afraid to make bold moves, there would be no stopping them."

Behind each word, one seems to hear the slogan Hodges has lived by: "It can be done."

On Nov. 22 when a stretcher was brought to my room to transfer me, I grabbed my father's arm and hauled myself to my feet. "I'll walk out!" I said. And with Dad's help, I made it—only as far as the corridor, true, but it was part of the promise I made to myself to walk again sooner than anyone expected.

The Institute's policy is to put patients in four-bed rooms, and my roommates were much worse off than I was. I couldn't feel too sorry for myself: a girl of 15 had been pushed into an empty swimming pool during a playful scuffle and her neck was broken, resulting in almost total paralysis; a girl of 17 was totally paralyzed from the waist down, the aftermath of an automobile accident; a woman of 35 was an amputee. There I was with no parts of my body missing and with a good chance of making all of them work again!

THE ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR, Dr. Donald Covalt, made it very clear to me right from the beginning that I was facing the hardest work of my life. "Pat," he said, "we can't spoon-feed rehabilitation. You'll have to work for every step of progress with everything you've got, and then you'll have to work some more."

I was put "on program" almost immediately, and for the first few weeks I was too exhausted to stay up past 8:30 p.m. Classes began promptly at 9 and, except for lunch, went right through to 4.

My first session was mat class, where I worked on exercises to strengthen my arms and legs, back and tummy. The second hour was devoted to physiotherapy to extend the range of motion in all my joints. Next came occupational therapy to re-educate my muscles and improve hand-to-eye coordination. After the lunch break, the afternoon classes were devoted to speech therapy, ambulation, and more exercise.

For awhile my biggest block was in learning to feed myself. I was so clumsy in handling a spoon or a fork that I was always spilling mashed potatoes or green peas down my blouse. I insisted on eating in my room, sitting in a chair with my face turned to the wall. But my roommate with the broken neck soon cured me of this self-consciousness. She ate with me, and the two of us would explode laughing at the mess we were making of ourselves.

It wasn't long before the self-help lab devised a fork for me bent to an angle that was right for my range of motion and with a knoblike affair on the handle for me to grasp. I became pretty good at spearing my food without slopping it.

I didn't wait for permission to get out of my wheel chair. One day I just decided I didn't need it anymore. I held onto the walls and shuffled my way to classes.

That evening I stood beside the elevator on my floor and waited for my dad to step out. I walked with him to my room, and he was as proud as though I had just been crowned Miss America.

Any patient who can prove to the doctors' and therapists' satisfaction that he is able to manage an activity is given permission to go ahead and try it. I set to work proving that I could walk in the streets, cross the road before the red light changed, and get aboard a bus. My therapist went with me on these tryouts, and I did everything under her observing eyes. Finally, I was checked out for short excursions.

MY ROOMMATE, the 35-year-old amputee, and I decided to take the bus and go shopping. If people stared at us, we were too busy to notice—my friend with her crutches and I shuffling after her, favoring my right leg, which was always stronger than the left. But we swung aboard a bus and made it to the store, where my friend's crutches cleared the aisles for us. Then we pooled our money on a taxi and came safely back as elated as the team that climbed Mt. Everest.

On March 3, 1961, after 3½ months at the Institute, I was discharged. At home, my parents and two kid brothers, Tommy, 14, and Michael, 9, did not let me rest on my laurels. I admit I wanted to be babied a bit, but they did me the great favor of not doing it. I had definite chores to do: straightening up downstairs with the vacuum, washing dishes, helping with supper, going to market.

MY GREATEST ambition was to drive my car. Mother was frightened of the idea, but Dad felt I could do it. He took me through all the paces over and over again, testing my reaction time, and soon I was a licensed driver again.

After a two-week checkup visit to the Institute last July, I have a clearer picture of what I must do to complete my recovery.

I have speech lessons at home with a private instructor twice a week. I wear a special brace on my left thumb for driving, and I still have trouble handling small objects like coins. My left leg drags just a bit, and I won't be able to read until I can be fitted with corrective lenses. My handwriting is still large and scraggly with an uphill slant, but my typewriter practice is coming along very well.

On my rebirthday party last Oct. 2, I thought of those 132 activities of daily living I had to relearn, and I felt nothing but the deepest joy and gratitude at how incredibly lucky I'd been.

I no longer ask why did this have to happen to me. I think only of the miracle of having all my five senses back, and I pray to God for the strength and courage to make a complete recovery. I believe that He must have had some good reason for pulling me through and that I will have my chance at a full life as a whole woman.

Pitting her will power against a disease that left her a "human vegetable," a courageous 18-year-old girl keeps a three-word promise:

I'll Walk

By PAT GRANITO as told to Terry Morris

ON OCT. 2, 1961, I celebrated my first rebirthday. For me rebirth is no figure of speech. I mean my fight against a disease called encephalitis, which reduced me to sightless, speechless, immobile infancy again.

I mean, too, my struggle to relearn the 132 separate and distinct activities of daily living which I had taken for granted, as any healthy girl of 18 would.

I have not drawn the number 132 from a hat. By the calculations of specialists, that is the number of ordinary, commonplace movements and functions basic to living as an independent adult.

Less than a year ago, I could do none of these things. I could not turn from side to side in bed, sit, or lie down without help. I could not reach down and pull up a blanket or shift a pillow to a more comfortable angle under my head.

I could do none of the little things nor any of the big ones, either. I could not speak beyond a sort of croak. I could not see near objects at all and distant ones only with distortion. I could not walk except to take a few staggering, shuffling steps, and I could not make more than clumsy, flailing motions with my arms.

The disease struck Sunday evening, Oct. 2, 1960. My date, Billy, and I went to the movies and I felt fine, just a bit tired from all the dancing at my cousin's wedding the night before. We stopped at a snack bar for a hamburger, as usual, and then I asked to be driven home. I remember getting into the car and feeling so weary that I kept rolling over against the car door until Billy asked me to stop fooling around and behave myself.

And that's all I remember with any clarity until, 28 days later, I heard someone say: "She's a vegetable and as long as you water her, she'll stay alive."

I felt that I was lying on a marble slab so icy that my whole body was too chilled and rigid to move. I was staring into blackness, and I thought this iciness and blackness must be death.

To be in a coma can be as great a blessing as sound sleep. I knew nothing of the way poor Billy drove back to the snack bar to call the police for an ambulance. I knew nothing of the convulsions that racked my body or the futile banging of my arms and legs. Nor did I know about the call from Huntington (N.Y.) Hospital to my parents and their desperate ride to reach me before death did.

I did not know, either, that I was in the grip of a disease which inflames the brain and damages the nerve tissue, inflicting lesions to adjacent regions of the brain and spinal cord. Doctors call it meningeal encephalitis.

A vital part of "watering the vegetable" was to give me more air and to make feeding easier. An incision was made in my throat, and I was fed through a tube inserted there.

Gradually my sight was coming back and I could distinguish light and shade and make out large masses. Of course, I learned later that what I thought I was seeing was greatly distorted. A spinal tap showed my doctor that the acute phase of the disease was over. "We know that we've saved Pat's life," he said, "but now the problem is to animate this doll and bring her back to the living."

Each minute of the following days was full of large frustrations and small triumphs. I was still only croaking out sounds like a frog. Yet, each day as the doctor came to visit me he never failed to ask: "How are you today?" I concentrated with all my might on forming one word and, finally, one day I managed to croak: "Fine." I felt as though I had won an election!

SUPPORTED on both sides and my head wobbling like a baby's, I started to take a couple of steps in my room and then out in the corridor. There didn't seem to be any floor under me, but I kept at it, getting a foot down and picking it up, down and up, counting each step. Strong arms were holding me up physically, but just as important were my parents and relatives and friends who were holding me up spiritually.

By mid-November, the doctors felt that there was little more that could be done for me at the Huntington Hospital. What I needed was a whole program of relearning, and the best place for that was the Institute for Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

My doctor was willing to make the necessary referral, but the Institute had only 111 beds for adult inpatients, and referrals were made from all over the world. Fees amounted to $40 a day, and my mother had already gone back to work to help finance my hospitalization and medical bills. Dad was determined, though, and he managed to get me ad-

I told him then, 'Your allowance will be cut when you get back to America. You will have to earn your own spending money.'"

The Hodges are urbane and cosmopolitan. They enjoy good books and cherish their associations with playwright Paul Green of the Carolina Playmakers and with Carl Sandburg.

Mrs. Hodges, who is popular with the cabinet wives, sponsors her share of public events and used to entertain extensively. Yet essentially she is not a clubwoman or a joiner. Her deepest satisfactions are in reading, bridge (which she plays with tournament skill), history, and painting still life and landscapes.

The Secretary, on the other hand, is indefatigable in fishing and hunting. Says General Waynick, "When he pulls a trigger, something is likely to drop."

He is facile, too, with a quip. Asked by a reporter when the Business Ethics Advisory Council of the Commerce Department will complete the code it began last May, he said, "About January." Asked why the delay, he replied, "It's hard to write a new Ten Commandments."

A natural extrovert and optimist, Hodges has always been a joiner. Even while he was building his career, he was active in the Methodist Church and the YMCA. He organized classes for illiterate millworkers and for 10 years taught at night. Entering politics, he developed a showman's flare. When a magazine asked him to pose in his underwear, he genially complied. Martha Hodges, more reserved than he, thought that this was too great a price for the governor of North Carolina to pay.

Early to Bed and Early to Rise . . .

Secretary Hodges is buoyantly youthful. He rises at 6 a.m., retires at 10 (at the latest, 10:30), even if there are guests. He says, "I just tell them, 'Excuse me, I'm going to bed.'" He eats lightly, and his favorite foods are white beans, turnip salad, and corn bread. He has kept his weight at 190 pounds, the same as it was when he was sworn in as governor. He doesn't smoke, and drinks very moderately.

His twin fetishes are punctuality and speed. With his associates, he is demanding. His own tempo is so fast that he wants his staff to anticipate his thoughts. He writes notes to them before leaving home in the morning and arrives at his office at 8 or 8:15 with a brief case crammed with, "Klotz: What think?—H" or "Ruder: See H." By 8:30 he expects an answer. After all, it is two hours since he thought of it!

When he loses patience, he is likely to apologize—though in an indirect way. "I've decided," he once told a secretary who had briefly fallen from grace, "that you and I shouldn't get mad at the same time."

The Only Way Is Up

Hodges assumed the post of Secretary of Commerce without illusions. He knew that for many years, in both Democratic and Republican administrations, the power of the Commerce Department had declined, that its single towering figure had been Herbert Hoover. To his new employees, he quipped: "The only way this department can go is up."

Up is where he is trying to take it. As co-chairman of the important advisory committee on labor-management (the so-called "wage-price committee"), he has developed cordial relations with the Department of Labor, which had long been hostile to Commerce. Congress, at his request, has set up the U. S. Travel Service to stimulate tourism in the United States. The Department also has assumed broader powers, with responsibility for the President's depressed-area program and with its role in developing international trade.

Hodges' job also is to reassure businessmen that the President is not antibusiness. "I want the Department of Commerce to mean to the average businessman what the Department of Labor has come to mean to labor," the Secretary told me.

Luther Hodges believes firmly that the American dream that propelled him is still a great national resource, but one that citizens must not expect to have handed them as a dole.

"It is the search for security," he told me, "that keeps men from getting ahead. If they would stop thinking of punching the clock, work for the love of work, and not be afraid to make bold moves, there would be no stopping them."

Behind each word, one seems to hear the slogan Hodges has lived by: "It can be done."

Pitting her will power against a disease that left her a "human vegetable," a courageous 18-year-old girl keeps a three-word promise:

I'll Walk

By PAT GRANITO as told to Terry Morris

ON OCT. 2, 1961, I celebrated my first rebirthday. For me rebirth is no figure of speech. I mean my fight against a disease called encephalitis, which reduced me to sightless, speechless, immobile infancy again.

I mean, too, my struggle to relearn the 132 separate and distinct activities of daily living which I had taken for granted, as any healthy girl of 18 would.

I have not drawn the number 132 from a hat. By the calculations of specialists, that is the number of ordinary, commonplace movements and functions basic to living as an independent adult.

Less than a year ago, I could do none of these things. I could not turn from side to side in bed, sit, or lie down without help. I could not reach down and pull up a blanket or shift a pillow to a more comfortable angle under my head.

I could do none of the little things nor any of the big ones, either. I could not speak beyond a sort of croak. I could not see near objects at all and distant ones only with distortion. I could not walk except to take a few staggering, shuffling steps, and I could not make more than clumsy, flailing motions with my arms.

The disease struck Sunday evening, Oct. 2, 1960. My date, Billy, and I went to the movies and I felt fine, just a bit tired from all the dancing at my cousin's wedding the night before. We stopped at a snack bar for a hamburger, as usual, and then I asked to be driven home. I remember getting into the car and feeling so weary that I kept rolling over against the car door until Billy asked me to stop fooling around and behave myself.

And that's all I remember with any clarity until, 28 days later, I heard someone say: "She's a vegetable and as long as you water her, she'll stay alive."

I felt that I was lying on a marble slab so icy that my whole body was too chilled and rigid to move. I was staring into blackness, and I thought this iciness and blackness must be death.

To be in a coma can be as great a blessing as sound sleep. I knew nothing of the way poor Billy drove back to the snack bar to call the police for an ambulance. I knew nothing of the convulsions that racked my body or the futile banging of my arms and legs. Nor did I know about the call from Huntington (N.Y.) Hospital to my parents and their desperate ride to reach me before death did.

I did not know, either, that I was in the grip of a disease which inflames the brain and damages the nerve tissue, inflicting lesions to adjacent regions of the brain and spinal cord. Doctors call it meningeal encephalitis.

A vital part of "watering the vegetable" was to give me more air and to make feeding easier. An incision was made in my throat, and I was fed through a tube inserted there.

Gradually my sight was coming back and I could distinguish light and shade and make out large masses. Of course, I learned later that what I thought I was seeing was greatly distorted. A spinal tap showed my doctor that the acute phase of the disease was over. "We know that we've saved Pat's life," he said, "but now the problem is to animate this doll and bring her back to the living."

Each minute of the following days was full of large frustrations and small triumphs. I was still only croaking out sounds like a frog. Yet, each day as the doctor came to visit me he never failed to ask: "How are you today?" I concentrated with all my might on forming one word and, finally, one day I managed to croak: "Fine." I felt as though I had won an election!

SUPPORTED on both sides and my head wobbling like a baby's, I started to take a couple of steps in my room and then out in the corridor. There didn't seem to be any floor under me, but I kept at it, getting a foot down and picking it up, down and up, counting each step. Strong arms were holding me up physically, but just as important were my parents and relatives and friends who were holding me up spiritually.

By mid-November, the doctors felt that there was little more that could be done for me at the Huntington Hospital. What I needed was a whole program of relearning, and the best place for that was the Institute for Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

My doctor was willing to make the necessary referral, but the Institute had only 111 beds for adult inpatients, and referrals were made from all over the world. Fees amounted to $40 a day, and my mother had already gone back to work to help finance my hospitalization and medical bills. Dad was determined, though, and he managed to get me ad-

My Husband Bought Me for Six Sheep

By SAMIRA EL HODEIBY
as told to LEO HEIMAN

Samira—a married woman at age 15.

In danger of becoming an old

EDITORS' NOTE: This strange but true story was uncovered by Family Weekly's Middle East correspondent, Leo Heiman. As an unusual personal experience of an ordinary person it makes fascinating reading, but also, by contrast, it gives American readers a greater understanding of our own social customs and spiritual values regarding marriage and family life.

WHEN I WAS 12 years old, three years ago, I first became aware of being worth a little bit more than the camel dung we Bedouin girls collected for our campfires.

On that day, old Ibrahim Zuabbi, our neighbor and friend who grew rich and powerful smuggling camels from Trans-Jordan to Israel, visited our encampment in the Negev desert and looked me over with interest.

I crept up to my father's tent, pressed my ear to the wet camel hides, and listened. After ex-

maid at 15, this Bedouin girl describes how her father "sold" her at a unique Bride Market

changing information about the weather, crops, price of camels, and new official regulations, Ibrahim came to the point. "My dear friend Soleiman, whom I cherish as a brother, I notice your daughter growing up as a fresh spring flower on a mountain slope."

"Which one?" asked my father, although he knew very well that Ibrahim meant me.

"The one called Samira. I could use a junior wife, and a gift of two camels would compensate your generosity for letting me have her."

"She is too young, and the law says she must still go to school," my father hedged, probably to get a better price for me.

"Ah, the law, the regulations, and the government. What do the infidels know of our ancient way of life? And since when do you register the births of daughters, my dear friend Soleiman?"

The haggling over my body and soul went on for hours, as if I were a goat or a pound of cheese. Of course, we women are discarded and replaced, like furniture, as soon as we get old and useless. And in any case, our menfolk love their rifles and pistols more than their women. Girls are cheap, rifles very expensive.

But ever since an Arabic-speaking Israeli inspector, together with two Arab women teachers, visited our encampment to register all children of school age for compulsory education, I went to school and enjoyed reading books, studying geography and history, and learning how to write and count.

IN THE END, my father and Ibrahim agreed to wait till the end of the school year because the teachers would certainly complain to the authorities if I were taken out of school and sold to a man who already had one wife. On the other hand, if they married me off during summer recess and I became pregnant at once, the authorities would be powerless to act.

"But I don't need your camels, Ibrahim," my father said. "I've got enough camels of my own. Now if you could let me have two horses, six fat sheep, and ten Maria Theresa gold coins, I'd be honored to let you have my Samira as your junior wife."

No contracts were written, but the two men sealed their agreement with a firm handshake, drank a cup of coffee, and Ibrahim departed.

What no one, including myself, suspected was that a young warrior from the Sakhnein tribe would fall in love with me and plot my abduction!

He was Soltan ibn Farid, a young man of about 20, who became one of the first Bedouin tractor mechanics after having graduated from a government-sponsored school. He earned well but knew it was useless to ask for my hand.

My father may not have cared much for me, but he would never agree to let his daughter live in the city since he regarded all city women as "shameless wenches."

Months passed and the school year came to an end. I was already about 13 and getting ready to be acquired by old Ibrahim. On my way from school one day, Soltan ibn Farid met me "by chance" on the path near our encampment.

When I told him I was being given away to Ibrahim, he became angry and said he would abduct me—which is exactly what he did three days later. He drove up to our tents in a hired jeep with two friends, all three shooting their pistols in the air. While the entire encampment was thrown into confusion, Soltan grabbed me, pushed me into the jeep, and drove away.

He could have kidnaped me more easily from the remote path which I used on the way from school, but this would have been real kidnaping. What he did was not criminal abduction by Bedouin tradition, but "taking away the sweetheart by force," which is much more romantic and does not call for a blood vendetta.

My father was angered because Soltan used a jeep instead of camels or horses, and this may have been the reason why he went to the police. A patrol of Negev police found us in a cave near the Hebron mountains five days later.

I must say that Soltan was very kind to me, and he did not touch me all this time, saying he wanted me to sign a voluntary marriage agreement first. But I was afraid to do it.

The officer in charge arrested Soltan for abducting and corrupting a minor. My marriage to Ibrahim had to be postponed because he was not sure whether I was still innocent and wanted to await the outcome of the trial to decide whether the agreement still stood.

A doctor examined me and the charge of corrupting a minor was dropped at once. Moreover, when I took pity on poor Soltan and testified that I went with him of my own free will, the abduction charge was dropped, too.

But the beating I got from my father was something to remember. And because I said I ran away with Soltan of my own free will, Ibrahim cancelled our marriage. He told my father: "If she ran away once, she can do it again."

I was an outcast in our tribe, but lack of suitors at least allowed me to finish primary school last summer. Then my father called me to his tent for a serious talk. It was the first time he had called me by my name.

"Samira, you will be 15 years old soon and an old maid by our standards. Because of your stupidity in defending the worthless Soltan, you are branded and defamed. No worthy suitor will ever ask me for your hand. But I can't let you become a spinster. We never had them in our clan. So let me take you to the Bride Market. I am asking you in advance because I want you to agree to any suitor I choose for you and not run away again. You are a big girl now, educated, too, and you must understand that this is your last chance."

I kissed my father's hand and agreed. Now let me explain about the Bride Market. This is not an official institution but probably a relic of the old days when rich tribesmen bought themselves slave girls and concubines, in addition to their official wives. Nowadays, if suitors do not call at the father's tent, or if he dislikes the prospective husbands who do call, he takes his daughter to the Beersheba Camel Market.

On the first Thursday of the month, the Camel Market becomes the Bride Market as well. A father brings his daughter, displays her along with his camels, and hopes that an eligible suitor will approach to bargain about marriage.

I was lucky, I guess, for the first Thursday my father took me, I met my future husband.

THE MARKETPLACE was crowded with Bedouin tribesmen, Jews, and foreign tourists. Hozeil, the fortuneteller, did a brisk business, but I did not have to ask him for my future. It was plain to me the moment a young mustachioed warrior stepped up to my father to ask about the price of a camel.

He haggled about the camel, but kept his eyes riveted on me. I lowered my lashes demurely.

The young tribesman was a member of the Bedouin elite. He packed a rifle and had a license as a government scout in the desert. His name was Ismail Rashid el Mansour, son of the late Sheik Rashid Ali el Mansour.

"Would you consider it an offense, Honorable Sir, if I offered you six sheep and two goats in exchange for your pretty daughter's hand?" he asked my father. "Or I should say in partial compensation, for she is plainly worth mountains of gold." He smiled at me.

I LIKED HIM right away and was pleased by his way of speaking. My father smiled, too, but tradition demanded some haggling and bargaining, and he countered by demanding two camels and 10 gold coins as well. They settled one hour later on six sheep, two goats, five gold coins, and two sacks of rice.

My wedding date was set for the start of the rainy season. It did not rain when I got married, but it poured one day later—a good omen, my mother said tearfully.

I am Ismail's first wife, and he promises not to marry again. We live in a tent near Jerucham in central Negev and do not lack anything.

I am even allowed to read newspapers and magazines, which my husband brings from town. Twice a month we visit Beersheba and go shopping as the Israeli ladies do. We also have a big transistor radio and a portable gas range, which is much better than the camel-dung fire my mother used to cook upon.

I guess I am better off than most Bedouin girls, but sometimes I miss school and wake up at night crying, having dreamt that I went on to high school and became the first Bedouin girl to finish college. Well, perhaps my daughter will be the first Bedouin girl to graduate from Jerusalem University.

maid at 15, this Bedouin girl describes how her father "sold" her at a unique Bride Market

changing information about the weather, crops, price of camels, and new official regulations, Ibrahim came to the point. "My dear friend Soleiman, whom I cherish as a brother, I notice your daughter growing up as a fresh spring flower on a mountain slope."

"Which one?" asked my father, although he knew very well that Ibrahim meant me.

"The one called Samira. I could use a junior wife, and a gift of two camels would compensate your generosity for letting me have her."

"She is too young, and the law says she must still go to school," my father hedged, probably to get a better price for me.

"Ah, the law, the regulations, and the government. What do the infidels know of our ancient way of life? And since when do you register the births of daughters, my dear friend Soleiman?"

The haggling over my body and soul went on for hours, as if I were a goat or a pound of cheese. Of course, we women are discarded and replaced, like furniture, as soon as we get old and useless. And in any case, our menfolk love their rifles and pistols more than their women. Girls are cheap, rifles very expensive.

But ever since an Arabic-speaking Israeli inspector, together with two Arab women teachers, visited our encampment to register all children of school age for compulsory education, I went to school and enjoyed reading books, studying geography and history, and learning how to write and count.

IN THE END, my father and Ibrahim agreed to wait till the end of the school year because the teachers would certainly complain to the authorities if I were taken out of school and sold to a man who already had one wife. On the other hand, if they married me off during summer recess and I became pregnant at once, the authorities would be powerless to act.

"But I don't need your camels, Ibrahim," my father said. "I've got enough camels of my own. Now if you could let me have two horses, six fat sheep, and ten Maria Theresa gold coins, I'd be honored to let you have my Samira as your junior wife."

No contracts were written, but the two men sealed their agreement with a firm handshake, drank a cup of coffee, and Ibrahim departed.

What no one, including myself, suspected was that a young warrior from the Sakhnein tribe would fall in love with me and plot my abduction!

He was Soltan ibn Farid, a young man of about 20, who became one of the first Bedouin tractor mechanics after having graduated from a government-sponsored school. He earned well but knew it was useless to ask for my hand.

My father may not have cared much for me, but he would never agree to let his daughter live in the city since he regarded all city women as "shameless wenches."

Months passed and the school year came to an end. I was already about 13 and getting ready to be acquired by old Ibrahim. On my way from school one day, Soltan ibn Farid met me "by chance" on the path near our encampment.

When I told him I was being given away to Ibrahim, he became angry and said he would abduct me—which is exactly what he did three days later. He drove up to our tents in a hired jeep with two friends, all three shooting their pistols in the air. While the entire encampment was thrown into confusion, Soltan grabbed me, pushed me into the jeep, and drove away.

He could have kidnaped me more easily from the remote path which I used on the way from school, but this would have been real kidnaping. What he did was not criminal abduction by Bedouin tradition, but "taking away the sweetheart by force," which is much more romantic and does not call for a blood vendetta.

My father was angered because Soltan used a jeep instead of camels or horses, and this may have been the reason why he went to the police. A patrol of Negev police found us in a cave near the Hebron mountains five days later.

I must say that Soltan was very kind to me, and he did not touch me all this time, saying he wanted me to sign a voluntary marriage agreement first. But I was afraid to do it.

The officer in charge arrested Soltan for abducting and corrupting a minor. My marriage to Ibrahim had to be postponed because he was not sure whether I was still innocent and wanted to await the outcome of the trial to decide whether the agreement still stood.

A doctor examined me and the charge of corrupting a minor was dropped at once. Moreover, when I took pity on poor Soltan and testified that I went with him of my own free will, the abduction charge was dropped, too.

But the beating I got from my father was something to remember. And because I said I ran away with Soltan of my own free will, Ibrahim cancelled our marriage. He told my father: "If she ran away once, she can do it again."

I was an outcast in our tribe, but lack of suitors at least allowed me to finish primary school last summer. Then my father called me to his tent for a serious talk. It was the first time he had called me by my name.

"Samira, you will be 15 years old soon and an old maid by our standards. Because of your stupidity in defending the worthless Soltan, you are branded and defamed. No worthy suitor will ever ask me for your hand. But I can't let you become a spinster. We never had them in our clan. So let me take you to the Bride Market. I am asking you in advance because I want you to agree to any suitor I choose for you and not run away again. You are a big girl now, educated, too, and you must understand that this is your last chance."

I kissed my father's hand and agreed. Now let me explain about the Bride Market. This is not an official institution but probably a relic of the old days when rich tribesmen bought themselves slave girls and concubines, in addition to their official wives. Nowadays, if suitors do not call at the father's tent, or if he dislikes the prospective husbands who do call, he takes his daughter to the Beersheba Camel Market.

On the first Thursday of the month, the Camel Market becomes the Bride Market as well. A father brings his daughter, displays her along with his camels, and hopes that an eligible suitor will approach to bargain about marriage.

I was lucky, I guess, for the first Thursday my father took me, I met my future husband.

THE MARKETPLACE was crowded with Bedouin tribesmen, Jews, and foreign tourists. Hozeil, the fortuneteller, did a brisk business, but I did not have to ask him for my future. It was plain to me the moment a young mustachioed warrior stepped up to my father to ask about the price of a camel.

He haggled about the camel, but kept his eyes riveted on me. I lowered my lashes demurely.

The young tribesman was a member of the Bedouin elite. He packed a rifle and had a license as a government scout in the desert. His name was Ismail Rashid el Mansour, son of the late Sheik Rashid Ali el Mansour.

"Would you consider it an offense, Honorable Sir, if I offered you six sheep and two goats in exchange for your pretty daughter's hand?" he asked my father. "Or I should say in partial compensation, for she is plainly worth mountains of gold." He smiled at me.

I LIKED HIM right away and was pleased by his way of speaking. My father smiled, too, but tradition demanded some haggling and bargaining, and he countered by demanding two camels and 10 gold coins as well. They settled one hour later on six sheep, two goats, five gold coins, and two sacks of rice.

My wedding date was set for the start of the rainy season. It did not rain when I got married, but it poured one day later—a good omen, my mother said tearfully.

I am Ismail's first wife, and he promises not to marry again. We live in a tent near Jerucham in central Negev and do not lack anything.

I am even allowed to read newspapers and magazines, which my husband brings from town. Twice a month we visit Beersheba and go shopping as the Israeli ladies do. We also have a big transistor radio and a portable gas range, which is much better than the camel-dung fire my mother used to cook upon.

I guess I am better off than most Bedouin girls, but sometimes I miss school and wake up at night crying, having dreamt that I went on to high school and became the first Bedouin girl to finish college. Well, perhaps my daughter will be the first Bedouin girl to graduate from Jerusalem University.
